Bitter Battles Flare In Hills Across Korea

Allies Straighten Central Front Sag

SEOUL, Korea, Tuesday, Nov. 20 (AP)—United Nations and Communist infantry grappled in a series of bitter hill battles clear across the Korean front Monday.

American jet pilots roared up and down "Mig Alley" over North Korea, looking for a fight. They saw only eight Russian-made MIG jets, and all of them stayed over Manchuria, where the Allied fliers are forbidden to pursue.

Chinese Communist infantry made three vain counterattacks Monday against the positions taken on the central front by a beefed-up South Korean division Saturday and Sunday. Instead, the Reds lost another hill in the area.

"Operation Vulture"

That two-day surprise drive, dubbed "Operation Vulture," straightened a three-mile sag in the Allied line on the Pukhan River front. An Allied briefing officer said 1,679 Chinese bodies had been counted so far and the hills "are still littered with bodies."

The Eighth Army today identified the successful Allied division as the South Korean Sixth, one of the best of the Korean republic's units. Previously, identification had been a closely-kept secret.

On the western front west of Yonchon, the British Shropshire light infantry repulsed swarms of Chinese in a 12-hour battle. The Reds were trying to regain a hill which they took Saturday and which the Shropshires recaptured Sunday.

Doughboys Regain Hill

On the east coast south of Kosong, a battalion of North Korean Reds shoved doughboys off two hills early Monday, then promptly lost one of them back to a counterattack.

Farther inland on the eastern front light Red attacks in the Punchbowl area were repulsed.

The North Korean communique, broadcast from Pyongyang early Tuesday, asserted that Allied attacks were repulsed on both the central and eastern fronts.

Contradicting Allied reports of virtually no air action, the Red communique alleged that seven American jets were shot down and five were damaged in a great battle north of Pyongyang Monday.

Prosecutor Who Aided Tax Probe Won't Be Fired

Another Revenue Official Resigns

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Sen. Williams (R-Del) said today he has received assurance that Charles O'Gara will not be fired as a federal prosecutor for telling senators there was "a shocking system of corruption" in San Francisco's internal revenue bureau.

While Williams was making this announcement, another senior official of the revenue service, Daniel A. Bolich, resigned. Bolich gave ill health as the reason.

Commissioner John B. Dunlap announced the resignation without comment. Bolich, a veteran employe, has served as assistant commissioner and was on the management staff at the time of his resignation.

Members of a House Ways and Means subcommittee probing the Internal Revenue Service disclosed that Bolich has been under investigation for several months.

Bolich Probe To Continue

He gave up his job as assistant commissioner last August, on grounds of health, and requested reassignment. He was transferred to Dunlap's management staff.

Adrian W. Dewind, counsel for the House subcommittee, told newsmen tonight the investigation of Bolich "will continue."

Sen. Williams said he received his assurance about O'Gara from Attorney General McGrath.

"I was given the positive assurance by the attorney general that Mr. Charles O'Gara would not be fired as a result of any cooperation which Mr. O'Gara had given to me personally or to any congressional committee," Williams said.

The Delaware Republican has devoted several months to a personal investigation of the nation's tax collecting system.

Service Under Congress Fire

The Internal Revenue Service, under fire in Congress on charges of inefficiency and corruption, has been shaken in recent months by more than 25 resignations, firings and suspensions. Bolich's departure by resignation is the latest in this series.

Earlier today Williams released part of the testimony O'Gara gave to a secret session of the Senate Finance Committee last Aug. 31. O'Gara is an assistant U. S. attorney at San Francisco.

Williams, a member of the Finance Committee, said he was making the information public now because a recommendation for O'Gara's dismissal is before the Justice Department. Chauncey Tramutolo, U. S. attorney at San Francisco, has accused his assistant of "slandering innocent people" before a grand jury.

Junior A-Blast Set Off In Nevada

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 19 (AP)—A junior size atomic explosion today set off a new series of tests in the development of the nation's nuclear warfare.

It was a little more grownup than the baby A-bomb of a month ago but not as awesomly adult as the later mountain-shakers.

Sending up a flaming tower like a grest skyrocket, it apparently was detonated at the ground surface at 9 a. m. (P. S. T.) Subsequently an Army statement said that preliminary "very effective results are indicated."

Troops participated, also technical experts and 250 military observers representing the armed forces.

The manner in which atomic GIs took part wasn't disclosed except that they were "involved in layout of field fortifications, materiel and equipment for test purposes."

The detonation was in the "what-is-it" category because the AEC declined to disclose "the method of delivery."

Fanatical Chinese Charge Is Led By Woman In Black

WESTERN FRONT, Korea, Nov. 19 (AP) — A mysterious woman in blck, brandishing a pistol, led a fanatical Chinese charge through minefields and machine-gun fire on this front Saturday, a rescued British soldier reported today.

Cpl. Gordon Taylor, 25, Manchester, member of the King's Shropshire Light Infantry, was captured when the Reds overran a British hill position in the Saturday morning attack. He was rescued when the Shropshires stormed back up the hill Sunday and found him in a ruined dugout, where he had taken shelter from British artillery fire.

Taylor gave this account: He was in his position on the crest of the hill when the Chinese suddenly launched the onslaught in typical Communist style—wave on wave of swarming infantry that ignored the hail of rifle and machine-gun fire poured onto them.

A small part of the Shropshire position was overrun and Taylor was caught behind the Chinese.

"I lay there and saw the woman, all dressed in a black uniform, without insignia, and waving a revolver," he said.

"She shouted orders to everyone and was the leader.

"She led the men right through the minefields, over the barbed wire and through the fire."

Fixer, Five Ex-College Cagers Sent To Jail

Sollazo Receives Eight To 16 Years; Judge Blasts Intercollegiate Sports

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—A basketball fixer was sentenced to a long prison term today by a judge who called college basketball and football a hordid big business. Five former college players also drew jail terms, and nine others received suspended sentences.

"Commercialism and over-emphasis in intercollegiate football and basketball are rampant throughout the country," said General Sessions Judge Saul S. Streit. He said the nation's schools are courting an "atomic athletic scandal."

He sentenced Gambler Salvatore Sollazzo to eight to 16 years in prison for spending $22,000 to bribe basketball stars of big-time Madison Square Garden games.

Streit called Sollazzo "a cool, calculating and cunning weasel, who preys on the gullible and unsuspecting."

Five former players drew jail terms as conspirators in the biggest scandal in the history of intercollegiate sports.

One of them, Edward Gard, a Sollazzo lieutenant from Long Island University, got an indeterminate sentence up to three years.

Other former players and their sentences were Sherman White of LIU, one year; Edward Warner and Alvin Roth of City College of New York, and Harvey "Connie" Schaff of New York University, six months each.

Schaff broke down at the sentence, his tall frame sagging at the knees. Later, however, he left the courtroom without aid.

Judge Streit called the players "mature young men, all over 22 years of age, who should have known the iniquity of their conduct."

The court suspended sentence on Adolph Biggs, Richard Feurtado, Nathan Miller, and Leroy Smith, all of LIU; and Norman Mager, Irwin Darbrot, Herbert Cohen, Floyd Layne and Edward Roman, all of City College.

Some of them wept with relief at escaping jail terms.

Cases against 16 other players are pending in the big cage scandal, in which players rigged points in games for the benefit of gamblers.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said "the itch for easy money" led the young men to sell out their schools.

Judge Streit, however, saw the scandal as evidence of widespread corruption in the college athletic setup.

He blamed college authorities, alumni and coaches—labelling as "despicable" the attitude of many big-time coaches.

He advised the nation's schools to clean house in a hurry, or have Congress or the states do it for them.

Bribery such as unearthed on the basketball courts, Judge Streit went on, begins when schools bid for athletes.

As examples of over-emphasis in football, Streit singled out Oklahoma, Texas, Texas A. & M., Southern Methodist, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Maryland and Kentucky. Only Kentucky has been mixed up in the basketball scandal.

East-West Chasm Deep, Eden Says

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today the chasm between East and West was so deep, wide and alarming that he did not believe any "sudden or spectacular move" would lessen the tension.

Rather, he proposed that East and West try to settle some of their little differences before tackling the big ones.

Making his first statement in a full foreign policy debate since the new Conservative government took office, Eden ranged all the chief trouble spots of the world, from Korea to Germany, Iran and Egypt.

"There is now virtually no diplomatic contact between East and West, between either side of the iron curtain," Eden said in his grim report.

Such an impasse, he said, "has rarely existed in history before." "It is the depth and the width of the forbidding chasm that separates East and West mentally as well as physically, that is so forbidding for the present and so alarming for the future."

Most Air Force Men Get Christmas Leave

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Most Air Force training activities will be suspended between Dec. 22 and Jan. 2 to give Christmas leave to as many men as possible.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, said today that leave will be granted as liberally as training schedules and local conditions will permit.

Similar action was taken last week by the Army.

Acheson Pleads For Acceptance Of U.S. Arms Plan

Russia's Vishinsky Makes No Comment

PARIS, Nov. 19 (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson appealed today to the world, and obviously to the Soviet Union most of all, to accept Western disarmament proposals as a turning point on the road to peace.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, who earlier had laughed scornfully at the proposals, sat in poker-faced silence during the one hour and 20 minutes in which the secretary patiently explained the arms reduction plan to the 60-nation Political Committee. After the committee adjourned until tomorrow, Vishinsky left the room without saying whether he had relented in any degree. He is expected to reply later this week.

Could Be "Turning Point"

"I believe these proposals," Acheson said at the beginning of a detailed explanation of the United States-British-French program, "if accepted could and would produce a turning point in history, a turning point at which the world could turn back from the tensions, the dangers which confront all of us in every country, could relax the effort toward armament which is going on all over the world and by doing so could find a way to solve some of the greatest questions which divide East and West."

"There is no magic in them (these proposals) which by itself can solve the troubles of this very grievously stricken world. They are proposals which in my estimation open up a broad highway along which we can all march together to find solutions to our problems, to reduce the tensions and difficulties between us, to move toward peace, toward cooperation and away from the very dangerous rapids which all of us can see before us.

Two Paths To Choose From

"We can follow the broad, clear path, or we can turn aside into the dark and noisesome alleys of propaganda and bickering and assertion and counter-assertions. We can fritter away the hope of the world.

"We can fritter it away into small advantages that are taken of one another here and there for minor and really silly purposes. Or we can seize this great opportunity before us. My country is willing to seize it. Our colleagues in France and Great Britain are willing to seize it with us. I believe that around this table there are scores of delegates who are willing to seize it also. The great question is are all of us ready to do this?"

Fire Kills 14 Children

QUITO, Ecuador, Nov. 19 (AP)—A fire in a motion picture theater at Cuenca yesterday took the lives of 14 children under the age of 12. The blaze was caused by a short circuit, firemen said, adding that they had to break down locked doors to enter the theater after the alarm.

Mother Finds Son After 39 Years

It opened to page 431 where her son's Inglewood address was listed. She had searched throughout the nation without success. (Story at bottom of page)

Six-Engine Jet Bomber Crash Fatal To Three

B-47 Stratojet Dives To Ground, Explodes

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif., Nov. 19 (AP)—a mammoth six-engine jet bomber crashed shortly after a takeoff at this base this afternoon and the three crew members were killed, the Air Force announced.

The huge B-47 Stratojet, a high altitude and high speed bomber, crashed to the ground a quarter of a mile west of the runway just after it got into the air. It exploded after the crash.

Officials at this base in the desert, an Air Force flight test center, formerly named Muroc, Calif., said the six-engine craft was beginning a routine test flight.

Dead Are Identified

Killed were Capt. Joseph E. Wolfe, Jr., 33, the pilot, assistant chief of the experimental test operations branch at Edwards Air Force base; Maj. Robert A. Mortland, 30, co-pilot, and Master Sgt. Christy N. Spiro, 32. There was no one else aboard.

The cause of the crash was not known but will be the subject of an investigation by an officers' board, the Air Force said.

The B-47 is America's newest and fastest atom bomb carrier. Several of the nation's foremost test pilots have been flying pilot evaluation tests on the huge craft.

B-47 Believed World's Fastest

They include Maj. Carles Yeager, first man to fly faster than sound; Brig. Gen. Albert Boyd, commander of the secret flight test center here; Lt. Col. Frank K. Everest, Maj. Jack Ridley and Maj. Robert Mortland.

The first of the sleek, swept-wing bombers was flown into Edwards on Oct. 26. Since then, at least one more has arrived from the Boeing factory at Wichita, Kas.

Pilots assigned to the test program have been flying the B-47, believed to be the world's fastest bomber, on two and three missions a day to familiarize themselves with its flight characteristics.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 19 (AP)—Herschel D. Newso, Columbus, Ind., today was reelected to a two-year term as master of the National Grange which is holding its 85th annual convention here.

Threatened Strike Would Curtail Flow Of Blood Plasma To Military

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Federal mediation officials today sought to stave off a threatened strike at a blood plasma processing plant, while the Red Cross and the armed forces ordered sharp cutbacks in blood collection in the Eastern United States.

The dispute involves the CIO United Chemical Workers Union and the Sharp and Dohme Company's blood processing plant at West Point, Pa. The workers have authorized a strike, at midnight tomorrow, if a new contract is not reached when the old agreement expires tomorrow.

Officials here said if the strike develops, it would shut off about one-fourth of the flow of blood plasma to the armed forces.

In Philadelphia, however, a government mediation spokesman said the strike "would threaten the Army's entire blood plasma program."

A company spokesman said union officials had indicated their members would refuse to process blood in the event of a strike.

But Herbert Heath, CIO local president, said the union had agreed to process blood received before the walkout.

Federal mediators conferred at length with union and company representatives here in an attempt to settle the dispute.

Meanwhile the Red Cross advised its chapters in the East and Southeast to ship no blood to the Pennsylvania plant after midnight tonight unless the strike threat is called off.

The Red Cross emphasized, however, that this did not mean the chapters should close down their blood centers. Many chapters collect blood for hospitals in their own community and some are supplying whole blood for direct shipment to the Korean war front.

Wife Threatened With Divorce If She Votes For Truman

HAMILTON, O., Nov. 9 (AP)—President Truman's name came up in a divorce case today.

Judith McCullom told Common Pleas Court Judge P. P. Boli that her husband, Ben told her he would get a divorce if she voted for Harry Truman for president if he runs again. She also accused him of cruelty.

"We wonder how Harry Truman will bear up under this with all of his other troubles," Judge Boli said. "Despite the enormity of this final charge, we are unconvinced the plaintiff is entitled to a decree."

Warmup On Way As Nation Shivers

[By The Associated Press]

A vast mass of cold air brought wintry temperatures to most of the nation Monday, but a warmup was reported on the way.

Freezing readings were reported as far south as Florida. Several subzero readings were recorded in the northern plains states. The cold air mass, centered east of the Mississippi River, was moving slowly eastward, however, and southerly winds rushing in its wake brought warmer temperatures as it passed.

Snow fell Monday in the Lake Superior area and the eastern Great Lakes region. Light snow fell on Cleveland, where residents of the southeastern part of the city were still digging out of three-foot drifts dumped over the weekend by a freakish storm that left only some three inches on the other side of town.

Monday's snow was quite light in most areas. A few scattered flurries were reported through the Northern Appalachians, from West Virginia and Maryland northward through Pennsylvania, New York and northern and western sections of New England. Temperatures in the snow area were cold, with highs of from around 25 to 30 reported Monday.

U. S. Steel And Union Open Talks Nov. 27

Pittsburgh, Nov. 19. (AP) — United States Steel Corp., bellwether of the industry, will open negotiations with the CIO United Steelworkers Tuesday, Nov. 27, on a 22-point union demand, including a wage hike.

Philip Murray, president of the one-million member steel union, and John A. Stevens, vice president of the firm, will head the 75-man negotiating teams.

Besides asking for a "substantial wage increase," Murray will demand an industry-wide union shop, productivity bonus, severence pay, improved vacations, premium pay for weekend working hours and a guaranteed annual wage.

Lower Price Freeze On Soap Is Planned

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The government said today it plans a new freeze on prices of soaps and cleansers at present levels, which are well below existing ceilings.

The Office of Price Stabilization told manufacturers their ceilings will be roiled back soon to about the level of current selling prices to wholesalers. An OPS aide told reporters this will amount to a cut of about seven to nine per cent below the present ceilings.

OPS said this will not have any affect on prices of soaps and cleansers to housewives, since these products already reflect the lower manufacturing prices.

Pentagon Sends Atrocity Queries To Gen. Ridgway

General Requested To Clarify Report

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Defense Department disclosed tonight it has asked Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway for a more specific "clarifying" statement on the reported Communist slaughter of some 5,500 American prisoners of war in Korea.

High officials at the Pentagon said they expect Gen. Ridgway's headquarters in Tokyo to issue a new statement very soon, perhaps within 24 hours.

These officials said it should contain answers to certain specific questions sent to the Far Eastern commander in a series of earlier messages from Washington.

Timing Regretted By Ridgway

The latest message to Gen. Ridgway was sent today after defense officials had digested the supreme Allied commander's Nov. 18 statement.

Over the weekend, Gen. Ridgway expressed regret over the manner of timing of a report on the atrocities released to newsmen last Wednesday by Col. James M. Hanley, chief of the war crimes section of the U. S. 8th Army in Korea.

Ridgway's statement neither confirmed nor denied the accuracy of Hanley's figures, but said it was regrettable that the information was not coordinated before it was released.

Duplications Suggested

Some sources in Washington and Tokyo have suggested there may have been duplications in Hanley's reports on the killings. The story had caused anguish among thousands of families of captured American GIs and had shocked the nation.

The Defense Department fired back its new request for specific information and details because it was feared that many American families would construe Ridgway's statement to confirm the reports made by Hanley.

High officials said the facts so far received from the supreme commander have not added substantially to the total of known American dead in the Korean campaign.

Bull Kills Farmer

ANNISTON, Ala., Nov. 19 (AP)—The crushed and mangled body of a farmer was found today, a bull standing belligerently over it.

Coroner Bowie Jones said the man, A. F. Trapp, 37, had made a desperate run through a pine thicket, but was chased down and killed yesterday by the dehorned bull.

North Korean "Peace" Plan Perils Talks

May Mean Return To Former Stand

TOKYO, Tuesday, Nov. 20 (AP)—High level political maneuvers by the foreign ministers of North Korea and Communist China thoroughly confused the Korean armistice outlook today while truce negotiators were in recess.

Potentially the situation could result in a breakdown of the four-month-old talks at a time when agreement had seemed closer than ever before.

The impending Allied plan called for an armistice before Christmas.

The statements on the North Korean and Chinese foreign ministers set forth sterner conditions for a cease-fire than their truce delegates had been asking recently in the Panmunjom talks.

They differed in part, but the extreme demands of the two Communist countries in effect carried the Reds back to their stand prior to the first truce talks on July 10.

Insist On Troop Removal

One or both again insisted upon removal of foreign troops, a cease-fire along the 38th parallel and an immediate stop to the fighting as pre-requisites to peace.

All these points were included in a proposal made by Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky in Paris Nov. 8 before the U. N. General Assembly. None of these proposals was acceptable to the U. N. command in Korea.

AP Correspondent William Jorden, at Munsan covering the armistice effort, said the Red foreign ministers' statements indicated that, at best, they would try to revise the pending Allied truce plan.

Jorden said the Red statements could be pure propaganda, but that if they were taken up by the Communist team at the next truce meeting on Wednesday, "it seemed highly possible that they would wreck those discussions beyond hope of repair."

The latest North Korean proposal, a four-point plan, was announced late Monday night by the Pyongyang radio. It was addressed by North Korean Foreign Minister Pak Hong Wong to the chairman of the U. N. Security Council and U. N. General Assembly.

The Pyongyang broadcast listed these North Korean proposals to end the war:

1. Cessation of hostilities as the first step to achieve a peaceful settlement of the Korean question.
2. Acceptance of the "just and reasonable" proposals made by the North Korean and Chinese Red army to withdraw each of the opposing forces two kilometers (1.24 miles) from the battle line and establish a buffer zone.
3. Withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea.
4. Severe punishment of those responsible for the atrocities committed against Koreans opposing the prolongation of the Korean war and against "peace-loving" Korean residents.

The first U. N. comment was made by Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, U. N. command spokesman at Munsan, Korea.

He said if the North Korean peace proposal were made across the conference table at Panmunjom "it would receive an immediate and unmistakable reply."

He did not elaborate on what the reply might be, but left no doubt he meant it would be flatly rejected. The U. N. command all along has refused to consider at this time the withdrawal of all foreign troops but deferred that question to a higher level later.

The North Korean proposal made no reference to exchange of prisoners but brought up the explosive atrocity issue and demand for war crimes punishments.

Mother Drops Phone Book, Finds Son Lost 39 Years

LONG BEACH, Calif., Nov. 19 (AP)—When you can drop a phone book and find a son lost for 39 years it really is Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Katherine Young, 59, told a reporter today that last Tuesday she was looking in the telephone book for the number of a friend. She dropped the book and it fell open to page 431.

As she picked it up a name near the bottom of the page caught her eye. The name, Jacob H. Koch, was the same as that of her long lost son.

It was her son. After a couple of telephone calls they were reunited. Unknown to each other, the son has been living in Inglewood, 15 miles from here, for the last 10 years, and the mother has been in Long Beach for nine years.

"Looks maybe like God had something to do with this," said Koch, now 40, as he told of seeing his mother in her home. He is an aviation inspector at North American Aircraft Co. and his mother is employed in a laundry at Laguna Beach, Calif.

Mrs. Young related that she grew up in Denver and when 17 married Harry Koch. They moved to La Crosse, Wis., but separated when their son was six months of age, and she took Jacob with her to Cheyenne, Wyo.

But before the boy was a year old Harry Koch obtained the child, and as far as Mrs. Young was concerned they dropped from sight.

She said the elder Koch is now living in San Francisco. Mrs. Young married G. H. Young in 1942 and he died in 1947.

"Commercialism and over-emphasis in intercollegiate football and basketball are rampant throughout the country," said General Sessions Judge Saul S. Streit. He said the nation's schools are courting an "atomic athletic scandal."

He sentenced Gambler Salvatore Sollazzo to eight to 16 years in prison for spending $22,000 to bribe basketball stars of big-time Madison Square Garden games.

Streit called Sollazzo "a cool, calculating and cunning weasel, who preys on the gullible and unsuspecting."

Five former players drew jail terms as conspirators in the biggest scandal in the history of intercollegiate sports.

One of them, Edward Gard, a Sollazzo lieutenant from Long Island University, got an indeterminate sentence up to three years.

Other former players and their sentences were Sherman White of LIU, one year; Edward Warner and Alvin Roth of City College of New York, and Harvey "Connie" Schaff of New York University, six months each.

Schaff broke down at the sentence, his tall frame sagging at the knees. Later, however, he left the courtroom without aid.

Judge Streit called the players "mature young men, all over 22 years of age, who should have known the iniquity of their conduct."

The court suspended sentence on Adolph Biggs, Richard Feurtado, Nathan Miller, and Leroy Smith, all of LIU; and Norman Mager, Irwin Darbrot, Herbert Cohen, Floyd Layne and Edward Roman, all of City College.

Some of them wept with relief at escaping jail terms.

Cases against 16 other players are pending in the big cage scandal, in which players rigged points in games for the benefit of gamblers.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said "the itch for easy money" led the young men to sell out their schools.

Judge Streit, however, saw the scandal as evidence of widespread corruption in the college athletic setup.

He blamed college authorities, alumni and coaches—labelling as "despicable" the attitude of many big-time coaches.

He advised the nation's schools to clean house in a hurry, or have Congress or the states do it for them.

Bribery such as unearthed on the basketball courts, Judge Streit went on, begins when schools bid for athletes.

As examples of over-emphasis in football, Streit singled out Oklahoma, Texas, Texas A. & M., Southern Methodist, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Maryland and Kentucky. Only Kentucky has been mixed up in the basketball scandal.

East-West Chasm Deep, Eden Says

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today the chasm between East and West was so deep, wide and alarming that he did not believe any "sudden or spectacular move" would lessen the tension.

Rather, he proposed that East and West try to settle some of their little differences before tackling the big ones.

Making his first statement in a full foreign policy debate since the new Conservative government took office, Eden ranged all the chief trouble spots of the world, from Korea to Germany, Iran and Egypt.

"There is now virtually no diplomatic contact between East and West, between either side of the iron curtain," Eden said in his grim report.

Such an impasse, he said, "has rarely existed in history before." "It is the depth and the width of the forbidding chasm that separates East and West mentally as well as physically, that is so forbidding for the present and so alarming for the future."

Most Air Force Men Get Christmas Leave

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Most Air Force training activities will be suspended between Dec. 22 and Jan. 2 to give Christmas leave to as many men as possible.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, said today that leave will be granted as liberally as training schedules and local conditions will permit.

Similar action was taken last week by the Army.

Russia's Vishinsky Makes No Comment

PARIS, Nov. 19 (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson appealed today to the world, and obviously to the Soviet Union most of all, to accept Western disarmament proposals as a turning point on the road to peace.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, who earlier had laughed scornfully at the proposals, sat in poker-faced silence during the one hour and 20 minutes in which the secretary patiently explained the arms reduction plan to the 60-nation Political Committee. After the committee adjourned until tomorrow, Vishinsky left the room without saying whether he had relented in any degree. He is expected to reply later this week.

Could Be "Turning Point"

"I believe these proposals," Acheson said at the beginning of a detailed explanation of the United States-British-French program, "if accepted could and would produce a turning point in history, a turning point at which the world could turn back from the tensions, the dangers which confront all of us in every country, could relax the effort toward armament which is going on all over the world and by doing so could find a way to solve some of the greatest questions which divide East and West."

"There is no magic in them (these proposals) which by itself can solve the troubles of this very grievously stricken world. They are proposals which in my estimation open up a broad highway along which we can all march together to find solutions to our problems, to reduce the tensions and difficulties between us, to move toward peace, toward cooperation and away from the very dangerous rapids which all of us can see before us.

Two Paths To Choose From

"We can follow the broad, clear path, or we can turn aside into the dark and noisesome alleys of propaganda and bickering and assertion and counter-assertions. We can fritter away the hope of the world.

"We can fritter it away into small advantages that are taken of one another here and there for minor and really silly purposes. Or we can seize this great opportunity before us. My country is willing to seize it. Our colleagues in France and Great Britain are willing to seize it with us. I believe that around this table there are scores of delegates who are willing to seize it also. The great question is are all of us ready to do this?"

Fire Kills 14 Children

QUITO, Ecuador, Nov. 19 (AP)—A fire in a motion picture theater at Cuenca yesterday took the lives of 14 children under the age of 12. The blaze was caused by a short circuit, firemen said, adding that they had to break down locked doors to enter the theater after the alarm.

Mother Finds Son After 39 Years

Mrs. Katherine Young, 59, and her son, Jacob Koch, 40, are reunited after a 39-year separation because she dropped her Long Beach, Calif., telephone book. It opened to page 431 where her son's Inglewood address was listed. She had searched throughout the nation without success. (Story at bottom of page)

Six-Engine Jet Bomber Crash Fatal To Three

B-47 Stratojet Dives To Ground, Explodes

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif., Nov. 19 (AP)—a mammoth six-engine jet bomber crashed shortly after a takeoff at this base this afternoon and the three crew members were killed, the Air Force announced.

The huge B-47 Stratojet, a high altitude and high speed bomber, crashed to the ground a quarter of a mile west of the runway just after it got into the air. It exploded after the crash.

Officials at this base in the desert, an Air Force flight test center, formerly named Muroc, Calif., said the six-engine craft was beginning a routine test flight.

Dead Are Identified

Killed were Capt. Joseph E. Wolfe, Jr., 33, the pilot, assistant chief of the experimental test operations branch at Edwards Air Force base; Maj. Robert A. Mortland, 30, co-pilot, and Master Sgt. Christy N. Spiro, 32. There was no one else aboard.

The cause of the crash was not known but will be the subject of an investigation by an officers' board, the Air Force said.

B-47 Believed World's Fastest

They include Maj. Carles Yeager, first man to fly faster than sound; Brig. Gen. Albert Boyd, commander of the secret flight test center here; Lt. Col. Frank K. Everest, Maj. Jack Ridley and Maj. Robert Mortland.

The first of the sleek, swept-wing bombers was flown into Edwards on Oct. 26. Since then, at least one more has arrived from the Boeing factory at Wichita, Kas.

Pilots assigned to the test program have been flying the B-47, believed to be the world's fastest bomber, on two and three missions a day to familiarize themselves with its flight characteristics.

Grange Reelects Newso

Wife Threatened With Divorce If She Votes For Truman

HAMILTON, O., Nov. 9 (AP)—President Truman's name came up in a divorce case today.

Judith McCullom told Common Pleas Court Judge P. P. Boli that her husband, Ben told her he would get a divorce if she voted for Harry Truman for president if he runs again. She also accused him of cruelty.

"We wonder how Harry Truman will bear up under this with all of his other troubles," Judge Boli said. "Despite the enormity of this final charge, we are unconvinced the plaintiff is entitled to a decree."

Warmup On Way As Nation Shivers

[By The Associated Press]

A vast mass of cold air brought wintry temperatures to most of the nation Monday, but a warmup was reported on the way.

Freezing readings were reported as far south as Florida. Several sub-zero readings were recorded in the northern plains states. The cold air mass, centered east of the Mississippi River, was moving slowly eastward, however, and southerly winds rushing in its wake brought warmer temperatures as it passed.

Snow fell Monday in the Lake Superior area and the eastern Great Lakes region. Light snow fell on Cleveland, where residents of the southeastern part of the city were still digging out of three-foot drifts dumped over the weekend by a freakish storm that left only some three inches on the other side of town.

Monday's snow was quite light in most areas. A few scattered flurries were reported through the Northern Appalachians, from West Virginia and Maryland northward through Pennsylvania, New York and northern and western sections of New England. Temperatures in the snow area were cold, with highs of from around 25 to 30 reported Monday.

U. S. Steel And Union Open Talks Nov. 27

Pittsburgh, Nov. 19. (AP) — United States Steel Corp., bellwether of the industry, will open negotiations with the CIO United Steelworkers Tuesday, Nov. 27, on a 22-point union demand, including a wage hike.

Philip Murray, president of the one-million member steel union, and John A. Stevens, vice president of the firm, will head the 75-man negotiating teams.

Besides asking for a "substantial wage increase," Murray will demand an industry-wide union shop, productivity bonus, severence pay, improved vacations, premium pay for weekend working hours and a guaranteed annual wage.

Lower Price Freeze On Soap Is Planned

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The government said today it plans a new freeze on prices of soaps and cleansers at present levels, which are well below existing ceilings.

The Office of Price Stabilization told manufacturers their ceilings will be rolled back soon to about the level of current selling prices to wholesalers. An OPS aide told reporters this will amount to a cut of about seven to nine per cent below the present ceilings.

OPS said this will not have any affect on prices of soaps and cleansers to housewives, since these products already reflect the lower manufacturing prices.

Threatened Strike Would Curtail Flow Of Blood Plasma To Military

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Federal mediation officials today sought to stave off a threatened strike at a blood plasma processing plant, while the Red Cross and the armed forces ordered sharp cutbacks in blood collection in the Eastern United States.

The dispute involves the CIO United Chemical Workers Union and the Sharp and Dohme Company's blood processing plant at West Point, Pa. The workers have authorized a strike, at midnight tomorrow, if a new contract is not reached when the old agreement expires tomorrow.

Officials here said if the strike develops, it would shut off about one-fourth of the flow of blood plasma to the armed forces.

In Philadelphia, however, a government mediation spokesman said the strike "would threaten the Army's entire blood plasma program."

A company spokesman said union officials had indicated their members would refuse to process blood in the event of a strike.

But Herbert Heath, CIO local president, said the union had agreed to process blood received before the walkout.

Federal mediators conferred at length with union and company representatives here in an attempt to settle the dispute.

Meanwhile the Red Cross advised its chapters in the East and Southeast to ship no blood to the Pennsylvania plant after midnight tonight unless the strike threat is called off.

The Red Cross emphasized, however, that this did not mean the chapters should close down their blood centers. Many chapters collect blood for hospitals in their own community and some are supplying whole blood for direct shipment to the Korean war front.

Pentagon Sends Atrocity Queries To Gen. Ridgway

General Requested To Clarify Report

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Defense Department disclosed tonight it has asked Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway for a more specific "clarifying" statement on the reported Communist slaughter of some 5,500 American prisoners of war in Korea.

High officials at the Pentagon said they expect Gen. Ridgway's headquarters in Tokyo to issue a new statement very soon, perhaps within 24 hours.

These officials said it should contain answers to certain specific questions sent to the Far Eastern commander in a series of earlier messages from Washington.

Timing Regretted By Ridgway

The latest message to Gen. Ridgway was sent today after defense officials had digested the supreme Allied commander's Nov. 18 statement.

Over the weekend, Gen. Ridgway expressed regret over the manner of timing of a report on the atrocities released to newsmen last Wednesday by Col. James M. Hanley, chief of the war crimes section of the U. S. 8th Army in Korea.

Ridgway's statement neither confirmed nor denied the accuracy of Hanley's figures, but said it was regrettable that the information was not coordinated before it was released.

Duplications Suggested

Some sources in Washington and Tokyo have suggested there may have been duplications in Hanley's reports on the killings. The story had caused anguish among thousands of families of captured American GIs and had shocked the nation.

The Defense Department fired back its new request for specific information and details because it was feared that many American families would construe Ridgway's statement to confirm the reports made by Hanley.

High officials said the facts so far received from the supreme commander have not added substantially to the total of known American dead in the Korean campaign.

Bull Kills Farmer

ANNISTON, Ala., Nov. 19 (AP)—The crushed and mangled body of a farmer was found today, a bull standing belligerently over it.

Coroner Bowie Jones said the man, A. F. Trapp, 37, had made a desperate run through a pine thicket, but was chased down and killed yesterday by the dehorned bull.

North Korean "Peace" Plan Perils Talks

May Mean Return To Former Stand

TOKYO, Tuesday, Nov. 20 (AP)—High level political maneuvers by the foreign ministers of North Korea and Communist China thoroughly confused the Korean armistice outlook today while truce negotiators were in recess.

Potentially the situation could result in a breakdown of the four-month-old talks at a time when agreement had seemed closer than ever before.

The impending Allied plan called for an armistice before Christmas.

The statements on the North Korean and Chinese foreign ministers set forth sterner conditions for a cease-fire than their truce delegates had been asking recently in the Panmunjom talks.

They differed in part, but the extreme demands of the two Communist countries in effect carried the Reds back to their stand prior to the first truce talks on July 10.

Insist On Troop Removal

One or both again insisted upon removal of foreign troops, a cease-fire along the 38th parallel and an immediate stop to the fighting as pre-requisites to peace.

All these points were included in a proposal made by Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky in Paris Nov. 8 before the U. N. General Assembly. None of these proposals was acceptable to the U. N. command in Korea.

AP Correspondent William Jorden, at Munsan covering the armistice effort, said the Red foreign ministers' statements indicated that, at best, they would try to revise the pending Allied truce plan.

Jorden said the Red statements could be pure propaganda, but that if they were taken up by the Communist team at the next truce meeting on Wednesday, "it seemed highly possible that they would wreck those discussions beyond hope of repair."

The latest North Korean proposal, a four-point plan, was announced late Monday night by the Pyongyang radio. It was addressed by North Korean Foreign Minister Pak Hong Wong to the chairman of the U. N. Security Council and U. N. General Assembly.

The Pyongyang broadcast listed these North Korean proposals to end the war:

1. Cessation of hostilities as the first step to achieve a peaceful settlement of the Korean question.

2. Acceptance of the "just and reasonable" proposals made by the North Korean and Chinese Red army to withdraw each of the opposing forces two kilometers (1.24 miles) from the battle line and establish a buffer zone.

3. Withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea.

4. Severe punishment of those responsible for the atrocities committed against Koreans opposing the prolongation of the Korean war and against "peace-loving" Korean residents.

The first U. N. comment was made by Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, U. N. command spokesman at Munsan, Korea.

He said if the North Korean peace proposal were made across the conference table at Panmunjom "it would receive an immediate and unmistakable reply."

He did not elaborate on what the reply might be, but left no doubt he meant it would be flatly rejected. The U. N. command all along has refused to consider at this time the withdrawal of all foreign troops but deferred that question to a higher level later.

The North Korean proposal made no reference to exchange of prisoners but brought up the explosive atrocity issue and demand for war crimes punishments.

Mother Drops Phone Book, Finds Son Lost 39 Years

LONG BEACH, Calif., Nov. 19 (AP)—When you can drop a phone book and find a son lost for 39 years it really is Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Katherine Young, 59, told a reporter today that last Tuesday she was looking in the telephone book for the number of a friend. She dropped the book and it fell open to page 431.

As she picked it up a name near the bottom of the page caught her eye. The name, Jacob H. Koch, was the same as that of her long lost son.

It was her son. After a couple of telephone calls they were reunited. Unknown to each other, the son has been living in Inglewood, 15 miles from here, for the last 10 years, and the mother has been in Long Beach for nine years.

"Looks maybe like God had something to do with this," said Koch, now 40, as he told of seeing his mother in her home. He is an aviation inspector at North American Aircraft Co. and his mother is employed in a laundry at Laguna Beach, Calif.

Mrs. Young related that she grew up in Denver and when 17 married Harry Koch. They moved to La Crosse, Wis., but separated when their son was six months of age, and she took Jacob with her to Cheyenne, Wyo.

But before the boy was a year old Harry Koch obtained the child, and as far as Mrs. Young was concerned they dropped from sight.

She said the elder Koch is now living in San Francisco. Mrs. Young married G. H. Young in 1942 and he died in 1947.

Aggressive Reds Lose Strength In Key Countries

(Editor's note: What is the strength and threat now of Communist parties in the key European countries which The United States is helping to rearm? Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines sought the answer in a recent swing through Western Europe and the Mediterranean area. Here, he gives the consensus of American officials in these countries, backed by his own observations).

By RUSSELL BRINES

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Tough, aggressive Communists have lost significant strength in key European countries which the United States is hurrying to rearm.

But they are still highly dangerous in France and Italy, two cornerstones of the defense buildup.

American officials, in advancing this view, say the Communists were beaten largely by American-aided economic recovery.

They may regain some of their power if, during the next critical year, economic conditions become worse. And the strain of rearmament, these officials add, is bound to make living conditions harder, unless it is cushioned by American dollars.

The Communists' most conspicuous reversal was their failure to block the first steps toward European rearmament.

But they did succeed in spreading confusion, distrust and uncertainty among Europe's millions.

In this they were aided by some highly-vocal non-Communist politicians who claimed rearmament was either unnecessary or a form of American colonialism. The most important of these are—Gen. DeGaulle in France, Kurt Schumacher in West Germany, Aneurin Bevan in Great Britain.

The twofold battle continues—to block the Communists from gaining direct political control; to counteract the defeatism they spread, with the indirect help of other extremists.

The subject is too complex to be fully covered during a quick trip. But here is what top officials and other competent sources say about it in major countries:

France—The Communists lost 98 seats in October local elections, which was fought largely on international issues. They retain 101 seats in the dominant National Assembly, as the second largest party. But this bloc failed to keep France from accepting Marshall aid, joining in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or from pushing rearmament through larger military budgets and longer conscription. Communists were largely ejected from government offices in 1947, the year that threatening strikes failed and Communist power began a definite decline.

The Communists retain control of the largest French labor federation and other key labor organizations. They failed to sabotage NATO arms shipments from the United States. But last week Communist-dominated unions pulled 80,000 men from the coal mines, at the start of what promises to be a cold, miserable winter because of coal shortages.

Party membership is estimated at 700,000, compared to 1,100,000 in 1946. The hard-core of militant fanatics is believed to be between 10,000 and 20,000 under tough, armed leaders. Propaganda is extensive and to the point that Frenchmen generally ignore France's Korea—the bloody battle in French Indo-China.

ITALY — The Communists are credited with an average of 30 per cent of the country's 8,000,000 votes. This represents almost the entire opposition to rearmament. In municipal elections this year, the party lost control of some of the main cities in industrialized North Italy.

The government, strengthened by its 1948 election victory, has taken stronger measures to minimize Communist power.

Nevertheless, the Italian party is the largest outside of Russia. Its threat influences Italian political thought. The Communists' hold on labor is a serious problem in current plans to utilize an estimated 25 per cent of idle Italian industry for rearmament.

Italian Communists feed on three economic dangers: (1) A total of 1,700,000 unemployed out of 12,000,000 workers; (2) general Italian poverty, reflected in average earnings of $250 per year; (3) unsolved overpopulation.

GREECE—There is little prospect for resumption of the bitter guerrilla war which bled Greece until 1949. The party is outlawed. But a front organization — the United Democratic Left (EDA) — polled 180,000 votes, little over 10 per cent in October elections. All other parties strongly favor the West. Greece, too, is poor and unemployment is a serious problem.

Party membership is estimated at 700,000, compared to 1,100,000 in 1946. The hard-core of militant fanatics is believed to be between 10,000 and 20,000 under tough, armed leaders. Propaganda is extensive and to the point that Frenchmen generally ignore France's Korea—the bloody battle in French Indo-China.

ITALY — The Communists are credited with an average of 30 per cent of the country's 8,000,000 votes. This represents almost the entire opposition to rearmament. In municipal elections this year, the party lost control of some of the main cities in industrialized North Italy.

The government, strengthened by its 1948 election victory, has taken stronger measures to minimize Communist power.

Nevertheless, the Italian party is the largest outside of Russia. Its threat influences Italian political thought. The Communists' hold on labor is a serious problem in current plans to utilize an estimated 25 per cent of idle Italian industry for rearmament.

Italian Communists feed on three economic dangers: (1) A total of 1,700,000 unemployed out of 12,000,000 workers; (2) general Italian poverty, reflected in average earnings of $250 per year; (3) unsolved overpopulation.

GREECE—There is little prospect for resumption of the bitter guerrilla war which bled Greece until 1949. The party is outlawed. But a front organization — the United Democratic Left (EDA) — polled 180,000 votes, little over 10 per cent in October elections. All other parties strongly favor the West. Greece, too, is poor and unemployment is a serious problem.

Lindbergh Is Revealed As One Of Nation's Top Secret Agents

PARIS—(INS)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's prewar survey of German and other European air forces was described authoritatively today as a secret mission under direction of the U. S. War Department.

The famed flyer was said to have successfully flattered the vain Hermann Goering into opening up all the secrets of Nazi Germany's aerial war chest — facts which later proved invaluable to U. S. and Allied defense efforts.

Lindbergh, it was stated, accepted in silence the widespread criticism he suffered for taking an honorary medal — the Nazi Order of the German Eagle — during his 1938 visit, solely to cover the fact he was working on War Department orders.

Lindbergh's role as one of America's most successful secret agents before World War II is related in a forthcoming book by two British journalists, one of whom was an intelligence officer during the war.

The book about Goering, entitled, "Marshal Without Glory" is written by Ewan Butler and Gordon Young, the latter currently Paris correspondent for the London Daily Mail. Butler, a former staff correspondent for the Times of London served as a colonel in the British army during the war.

Both journalists were stationed in Berlin during the critical Hitler years from 1933 to 1939.

The information about Lindbergh, the book will say, was uncovered in searching the files for data on the Goering book.

Lindbergh's reports subsequently given in secret to War and State Departments, as well as Congress, were in extreme detail and gave a complete picture of the modernized German airfleet, including a description of the whistling Stuka divebomber that wreaked havoc with troops in Poland and in the 1940 sweep to the channel.

His survey also included Russia, but in Moscow he was able only to scratch the surface in obtaining information on Soviet air strength.

The episode in which the Nazi air reichsmarshal pompously spilled just what the visiting American was looking for, was said to have occurred in the palatial Goering estate, Carinhall, where buffalo roamed along with tropical game.

The two authors tell it this way:

"The two men understood one another well enough. Even Goering's vanity was flattered by the visit of this truly distinguished airman, who accepted a decoration from his hands and listened with gratifying attention to all that his host had to tell him, and Goering kept nothing from the quiet young American.

"Together Goering and Lindbergh discussed Germany's rearmament in the air and the evidence of progress which General Goering was able to display to his guest deeply impressed the colonel. The British air force, he knew, had aircraft of excellent quality but in depressingly small numbers. The air force of France was small, antiquated and apparently stagnant. Lindbergh observed this to Goering.

"'Oh,' said the general, magnificently, 'if the French need aircraft I can sell them 1,000 at once.'

"The American and to a lesser extent the British press bitterly attacked Colonel Lindbergh for 'trucking to the Nazis' in visiting Goering and allowing the general to patronize him. To those attacks the colonel never replied, though a single statement from him could have silenced them. For in fact the United States government had requested him to pay the visit in the service of his country.

"Showing an understanding of Goering's psychology which the governments of other nations might well have done to emulate, the War Department in Washington decided to exploit General Goering's self-esteem for its own purposes.

"The American service attaches in Berlin, able and conscientious as they were, could not furnish the full picture of the rise of the Luftwaffe which Washington urgently required. Perhaps, the War Department thought, a private visit to the creator of the German air force by America's most distinguished airman would provide the information which normal diplomatic channels seemed unable to elicit.

Guns And The Language

Common phrases and expressions in frequent use which are traced to the early use of guns are listed by W. G. Burckel, process engineer of the Remington Arms Company. Mr. Burckel writes that when the gun, powder horn and shot pouch were almost as necessary as pants—and often more necessary and also a means of providing them—a lore came into being that has affected the thought and speech of today.

"Take the expression, 'Lock, stock and barrel,'" Mr. Burckel writes. "When a person accepts a proposition 'lock, stock and barrel,' it means he accepts the matter entirely, without reservation.

"The expression stems from colonial days when a gun, once acquired, was seldom scrapped or disposed of for a new one," Mr. Burckel explains. "When a part wore out or was broken, a new part was made or procured. Completeness was indicated by "lock, stock and barrel,' or the whole gun."

"Just a flash in the pan" is another common expression traced by Mr. Burckel. It signifies a person is one who makes a big fuss, is noisily enthusiastic but whose actions are not productive and enduring. The individual does something once, and only once.

It stems from the use of the flint lock rifle, where flint struck steel, sparks from them flew to the igniting powder, in flaring, lighted the powder behind the bullet or shot in the barrel through the small priming hole.

When the flint and steel made the sparks, and ignited the powder in the pan, but the powder in the pan, although it flared brightly, failed to light the powder in the barrel, then the results were obvious. The gun did not go off, although it gave most of the indications of having done so.

It looked good, but accomplished nothing.

Mr. Burckel lists the following other common expressions which are derived from shooting:

"The plans misfired," "set your sights high," 'score a bulls-eye," "draw a bead on something," 'keep your powder dry," "don't fall short of the mark," 'straight as a ramrod," he "overshot the mark," "he is 'loaded for bear'," "sharpshooter," "a shot in the dark," "he 'goes off half cocked',"'he is all 'primed' for the occasion," "hair-trigger nerves," "hold your fire," "a straight-shooter," "hit 'dead center'," and "he has 'lined his sights on the target.'"

Guns continue to occupy a prominent place in American nomenclature, but they are not the simple weapons that are reflected so widely in expressions in everyday use.

Auto Styles, '42 And '52

Just 10 years ago the 1942 model cars were coming off the production lines. By 1941 automotive engineering and streamlining had reached a very respectable maturity even by the standards of today. There was plenty of chromium—if no cow-catchers—on front ends. But America was rearming.

Then came Pearl Harbor and off came the brightwork from 1942 models. Senator Harry S. Truman brought in a report of the Senate Defense Investigating Committee. It censored auto makers who had postponed conversion and had produced more cars in 1941 than in "any year since 1929." As chairman, Senator Truman had a lot to say about graft, inefficiency and profiteering in defense housing, cantonments and shipbuilding.

About the end of January auto production ceased and auto rationing began. There weren't any 1943 models—or 1944 or 1945 models either. Those 1942 models were the "new" cars until 1946. Thenceforth model followed annual model. Each succeeding model was a little fancier.

The 1952 automobiles are starting to appear in showrooms. A decade has passed, and what's happened? Well, there's another war in Asia and in Europe there is not much hope for lessening of the desperate tension between East and West. Those 1952 models, according to official ukase from Washington, are to stay in style indefinitely.

Isn't this where we came in?

Telephone-itis

The other day the mayor of Englewood, N. J., sat down before what looked like an ordinary telephone with dial attached. With serious mien befitting the occasion, he dialed off a string of 10 digits, waited a few seconds, and broke into a broad grin as the mayor of Alameda, Calif., said hello.

As of right now, some 10,000 telephone subscribers in Englewood can dial, if they care to, approximately 11,000,000 phones across the country, a rather frightening prospect. The New Jersey community has been selected as the guinea pig in this experiment by the Bell system. As new and complicated central phone equipment becomes available, the blessings will spread to other communities.

Ultimately, those who are up to date with the telephone company's billing department, will be able to dial themselves conversations with any geographic point in the country.

The length of this forward stride in communication is overwhelming, but it does open up rather horrifying possibilities. How about those loquacious people who get telephone-itis after a couple of snorts? And what's to protect someone sleeping soundly in, say, Portsmouth, N. H., against the eager fingers of some night wandering three-year-old in Napa, Calif.?

But a people which has lived through two decades of radio commercials and the offenses which have been perpetrated under the guise of television entertainment probably will be able to ride this one out, too.

For Good Behavior

The Economic Cooperation Administration, as the Marshall Plan is now called, has come up with a new gimmick for use in allocating money to foreign governments. Formerly the test was "performance and need." Hereafter, if the case of Austria is a criterion, the test will be "good behavior."

Under the revised arrangement Austria will receive a basic allotment—in this instance $106,000,000—and then if she behaves herself will get $25,000,000 more.

The stated reason for the change is the difficulty the ECA has experienced under the old definition of "performance and need." Whether its troubles will be less in trying to determine if "behavior" has been "good" would seem to be a question.

To qualify for the additional handout, Austria must see to it that exports are maintained with a minimum of barter deals, that internal prices are kept from rising, credit volume is restricted to prevent inflation, the budget balance is restored and productivity increased.

If all this seems complicated, think of the additional scores of ECA employes that will be required to administer the new scheme.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Ameba In Humans

It has been estimated that at least 10 per cent of the population in the United States harbors the organisms responsible for amebic dysentery. The majority of these individuals are not disabled and many are referred to as healthy carriers. They escape detection because they are not bothered sufficiently to warrant a thorough examination.

Among the many studies that have been carried on was the one involving 350 subjects in the Albany-Rensselaer area of New York state. It was found that 34, or 9.7 per cent of the group, were infested with Endameba histolytica. Of this number, five were considered healthy carriers, whereas 18, or 53 per cent, had a mild case of ameidasis. Symptoms were so indefinite that medical advice would not have been sought ordinarily. Headache, lassitude, lack of appetite, flatulence, and colicky abdominal pains were examples of their complaints. The remaining 10, or 30 per cent, had the moderately marked symptoms so typical to our concept of the disease. They suffered from recurrent attacks of diarrhea, loose bowel movements, flatulence, abdominal tenderness, or constipation alternating with diarrhea. Only one case had the severe form of the disease, with ulceration and bleeding.

If this study represents a cross-section of our population, we can conclude that one out of every 10 of us is infected. There is a better than 60 per cent chance that the victim does not know of his plight; nor has he any idea that a disturbance in the intestinal tract is responsible for his feeling below par. Many other surveys confirm these findings. Of 1,100 inmates of a New York state institution, 10.7 per cent had amebiasis and in another in which 1,917 persons wer studied the rate was 11.5 per cent. New York City fared better: only 5.6 per cent of a random sampling of 676 individuals were infected.

It has been suggested that the only way to deal with this problem is to do laboratory tests on the stools of every one who is bothered with irritability of the colon, flatulence, colonic spasms, or changes in the bowel habit. The same applies to the person with evidence of a low grade infection or symptoms resembling appendicitis, gall bladder disease, or ulcer. This means paying attention to details because 95 per cent of those harboring the parasite do not have the characteristic diarrhea or dysentery. Mass examinations of this type would be a large order but at least food handlers should go through not one but several such checkups annually. Eliminatinng carriers will reduce the reservoir of infection and decrease the possibility of spread of the disease to others.

The best remedies have a curative rate of approximately 90 per cent. The list includes compounds containing iodoquinoline, bismuth, or one of the arsenicals. The most popular are chiniofon, diodoquin, carbarsone, milibis, emetine, and chloroquine. The antibiotics — aureomycin, bacitracin, and terramycin — also are useful. Among the newcomers are the thioarsenites, which show promise but are not yet on the market. From France comes word of conessine, which does not have quite as good a record but is bidding for prominence.

TOMORROW: Are the antibiotics changing the diseases that strike us?

SWELLING FROM WORK

B. T. writes: I have a peculiar condition that might be considered an allergy to work. Whenever I do any painting or other chores around the house that require climbing a ladder, my feet swell and become sore; the same thing happens to my hands when I use tools. These symptoms last up to 24 hours. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY

This I'd like to see especially if the extremities never swell during a similar amount of exertion when you are not working. Many individuals confuse stiffness with swelling chiefly because a stiff hand or foot feels puffy.

SKULL ACCIDENT

K. A. writes: Why is it necessary to remain physically inactive after a head injury?

REPLY

Rest is a marvelous remedy and is advocated in head injuries because it helps to lower the tension in the brain and encourages bleeding to stop.

FIBROIDS

Mrs. O. writes: Do fibroid tumors shrink with the menopause?

REPLY

Yes but now and then they do not shrivel enough and must be removed surgically. Other women can't wait for the change of life; the fibroids are interfering with health and there is no way of knowing whether the menopause will come next year or five years hence.

ERYSIPELAS

Mrs. L. writes: Can a person have more than one attack of erysipelas?

REPLY

Yes; in fact, one bout seems to make the victim more susceptible to another. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on erysipelas.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

There's More Than Meets Eye Behind Ripps-Mitchell Tax Case; Lamar Caudle Pushed Ripps-Mitchell Prosecution; Great Majority Of T-Men Are Honest.

WASHINGTON — Two of the nation's top newspapers, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Providence, R. I., Bulletin last week published a story regarding the Ripps-Mitchell income-tax case in Mobile, Ala., charging Assistant Attorney General Lamar Caudle with failure to prosecute.

Both these papers have done notable jobs in exposing corruption, but since I had something to do with the conviction of these two income-tax evaders, perhaps the inside story of what happened is worth telling—for two reasons:

1. To illustrate how tax cases sometimes get stymied.

2. In fairness to Mr. Caudle, who has been kicked around a lot and who, though indiscreet in his choice of friends, in my opinion is honest.

Much of the story was told in a column dated Dec. 16, 1949, when the Washington Merry-Go-Round two years ago began calling attention to shocking and then little-noticed income-tax scandals.

Sam Ripps and Joe Mitchell had made a fortune selling millions of dollars worth of jewelry to army PX's during the war, following which treasury agents caught them keeping two sets of books, claimed they owed at least $700,000 in taxes and recommended criminal prosecution. The column of Dec. 16, '49 then proceeds:

"Ripps and Mitchell immediately began to pull every political wire south or north of the Mason-Dixon Line. First they tried to hire Joe Nunan, former commissioner of internal revenue. Then they negotiated with Martin Sweaber, a good friend of Nunan's. Then they retained William Nicholson of Charlotte, N. C., former law partner of Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney general in charge of the tax division.

"Caudle phoned his former partner, asked him to withdraw from the case. He did so.

Law Partner Got Fee

"Finally, however, Mitchell and Ripps approached Will Walter Bankhead of Alabama's politically powerful Bankhead family, and through him retained Ben Leader, former law partner of the U. S. attorney in Birmingham, John Hill. Significantly, it was Hill who was to try the case.

"That case, however, has never been tried," continued the Merry-Go-Round on Dec. 16, 1949. "It was sent by the Justice Department (Caudle) to Hill for prosecution, but that was as far as it got. U. S. Attorney Hill held a conference with Justice and Treasury men in Birmingham at which he contended he did not have sufficient evidence. In the end, and with their concurrence, the prosecution of Ripps and Mitchell was sent back to Washington as closed.

"Meanwhile, this column, probing the tax fraud, unearthed some interesting facts. Ben Leader, when questioned, admitted he was Hill's former law partner; also admitted he received a fee of $12,000."

At this point it appeared that the Ripps-Mitchell case was stopped cold. It looked to me as if it had about as much chance of reaching prosecution as a freight train of crossing the Great Divide without an engine.

The column of Dec. 16, 1949, continued with other details. But here are some background facts I did not publish. Jack Anderson, the Merry-Go-Round reporter whom I sent to Mobile and Birmingham to button up the story, brought back what looked to me like new evidence, and I arranged an appointment at the Justice Department with Lamar Caudle, Turner Smith, in charge of the Criminal Section of the Tax Division, and John Mitchell, the Justice Department attorney who had gone to Birmingham to confer with Hill and who had concurred that the case should not be prosecuted.

Phony Bookkeeping

Mr. Anderson and I made a full presentation of what we considered shocking facts. These included a bookkeeping system whereby Ripps and Mitchell let their small checks and cash accumulate. Then, when a big check came in, they deposited the accumulated small checks and cash to the same amount as the big check, in order to make it appear that the big check had been cashed. Actually the big check was converted into a cashier's check, then sent by a roundabout way through the Jefferson Investment Co. of St. Louis, controlled by Mitchell, to the Paramount Check Cashing Service in New York.

During our conference, Caudle several times remarked that there certainly ought to be enough evidence to prosecute, and immediately thereafter, he sent John Mitchell (no relation to Joe Mitchell) to Mobile to reopen the entire case. The two tax defrauders were then indicted, pleaded guilty and are now in jail.

Honest T-Men

There were some other interesting angels to the Ripps-Mitchell case. One was that at Christmas 1946 Sam Ripps sent presents to the treasury agents who had been working on the case. The packages were returned unopened. Also a defense lawyer sent to Mobile from New York hinted to T-Men that they weren't paid enough by the government and could make more money on the outside. The T-Men did not take the hint.

At a time when Internal Revenue is under heavy fire, I should like to repeat that my own investigation of this and many other cases convinces me that the great majority of T-Men are honest.

Real hero of the Ripps-Mitchell prosecution, incidentally, was Robert Cox, the Mobile T-Man who handled the case, and who kept at it despite great discouragement.

I reported in December, 1949, that Congressman Frank Boykin had gone to Joe Mitchell's defense, as he had in various other scrapes.

I also heard, but could not confirm, that Ripps and Mitchell had made a heavy contribution to the Democratic National Committee.

I suspected, but could not prove, that someone in Washington was not enthusiastic about prosecuting the Ripps-Mitchell case. But I am convinced it was not Caudle. Caudle had sent the case to Birmingham with a recommendation for criminal prosecution long before I began looking into it. And after I talked to him, he exhibited the greatest determination and enthusiasm for prying the case loose from its stymie and getting a conviction.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Maybe Democratic campaign speakers do not relish a bit of plagiarizing from Republican campaign speakers of the past, but they will be well advised to read up on a speech delivered in 1924 by Charles Evans Hughes before the Republican state convention of New York just after the Teapot Dome scandals had rocked the country and made things look bad politically for the Republicans. They may be able to use it—provided the parallel is carried out.

The quotation comes to light in a new biography of Hughes written by Merlo J. Pusey, associate editor of the Washington Post, who says that the candor and sense of proportion exhibited by Hughes in that speech "had much to do with turning the public mind away from oil toward the rising tide of national prosperity." Hughes was at the time off the Supreme Court bench, having resigned in 1916 to make an unsuccessful race for the presidency. His speech, delivered on April 15, 1924, read in part as follows:

"Let it be understood that we do not condone wrong; we extenuate no crime . . . We would bring to the Bar of Justice every dishonest official and every perverter of administration in or out of office . . .

"Neither political party has a monopoly of virtue or of rascality. There are crooks in every community and in every party. Now and then, one gets into office. Let wrongs be exposed and punished, but let not partisian pecksniffs affect a 'holier than thou' attitude. The corrupting currency may be found in Democratic satchels. One who is corrupt is as faithless to his party as to his government. Guilt is personal and corruption knows no party.

Named Two Attornies

"Today, counsel of eminent ability and unimpeachable integrity, selected from both the great parties by a Republican president, are taking appropriate legal proceedings by which all the questions which have been raised as to the leasing of the public domain will be threshed out, every public interest will be safeguarded and every guilty person punished. These cases are in the courts where they belong and the courts will decide. It would be foolish, false and unpatriotic to breed distrust either of the integrity of the government or of the soundness of American life. That would be to assail the honor of the hosts of officials devoting their lives with unselfish fidelity to the country's interests."

William Howard Taft, an ex-president at that time, thought the speech was "as exceptional as the one you delivered for me in 1908." President Calvin Coolidge, who had come in from the vice presidency in 1923 on the death of Warren Harding, was re-elected in a landslide in 1924 because, as Author Pusey says, the voters "must have concluded that the administration had successfully purged itself of the corruption it had inherited."

But the Democratic speakers of 1952 will not be able to use the above quotation unless President Truman does what Calvin Coolidge did. For the latter apointed two prominent lawyers, one a Democrat and the other a Republican, as special prosecutors reporting to him instead of to the attorney general. The result was that a Republican cabinet officer who had received a $100,000 bribe in a satchel was put in jail, as were others who had held high official positions under a Republican administration.

Taken No Such Action

Mr. Truman thus far has not taken such a dramatic or far-reaching step. The prosecuting machinery of the Truman administration has lumbered along slowly, prodded largely by disclosures made by congressional investigating committees. In 1924 the congressional investigations really first brought out the oil scandals, but Mr. Coolidge was alert enough to act with stern efficiency in prosecuting, letting the chips fall where they might.

If the Truman administration does the same thing, it can live down the scandals now being uncovered. Righteous indignation alone will not do the trick. That Hughes speech lies ready for use by the Democratic speakers—provided their president does exactly what a Republican president did in somewhat the same circumstances in 1924.

Matter Of Fact

The Eisenhower Unveiling

WASHINGTON

The wise political money is now betting that General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower will announce his availability for the Republican Presidential nomination within three months. If all goes well, the Eisenhower unveiling ought to take place by the end of January or in the first week of February at the latest.

This is, of course, precisely what most of the Republican enthusiasts for Eisenhower have always wanted. The difference today is that after the General's event-crammed visit to this country, his backers are convinced that what they want to happen will in fact happen. They showed no such happy confidence before.

Indeed, until recently there were many reasons to suspect that the General would follow the unhappy precedent of the late Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, insisting on what is called a "genuine draft," and thus imposing an impossible task on his supporters. No matter how strongly Republicans may call for Eisenhower, he cannot conceivably be nominated by acclamation. The forces of Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, vigorously supported by General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, will fight an Eisenhower nomination to the bitter end.

This means, in turn, that the General must openly put himself at the head of his own-supporters when the right time comes. And the evidence now is that he will do precisely this, under the right conditions. These conditions may be simply defined.

Will Await Call

On the one hand, Gen. Eisenhower is not an active candidate today, in the Taft manner. He merely sees his duty to lead, if his leadership is called for. The "if" is significant. The call must come first. There must first be a widespread demand for his leadership among Republicans of stature. Without that, there will be no unveiling, no declaration of candidacy. In short the Eisenhower backers have to show that the Eisenhower movement is a real thing, in order to secure the desired commitment from the General.

In a situation so conditional, betting might be unwise, if it were not for the other great advances the Eisenhower movement has simultaneously made. On the one hand, as pointed out in a previous report in this space, the General's parting statement in this country exploded the canard that his backers have been peddling a pig in a poke. He said, on the contrary, that such friends as Sen. James Duff, of Pennsylvania, know his mind perfectly, being so close to him that they could safely foretell how he would "act and react." To this he significantly added that he would say "the word" when and if the time came.

Enormous Forward Step

On the other hand, there is the enormous step forward represented by the choice of Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, to head up the Eisenhower movement's headquarters organization. Hitherto, the greatest danger has been that the Eisenhower enthusiasts would remain a loose coalition of local political grandees, divided and hamstrung by their own touchy sensibilities.

The leaders have been aware of this danger, however. While Gen. Eisenhower was in Washington, Sen. Duff was in New York, conferring on the organization problem with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. Somewhat later, Sen. Duff met in Washington with Harry Darby, of Kansas. The result of these deliberations was the unanimous choice of the Massachusetts senator, as one of the ablest political operators of our time, and as a man whom the New Yorkers, the Kansans, and Sen. Duff all equally liked and trusted.

Makes Able Organization

This means that the once loose coalition will now be transformed into a tough and tightly knit phalanx, with resources and ability to take on all comers. This step alone should greatly impress many as yet unconverted Republican delegates, who have been dubious about the Eisenhower movement because of its weak organization as much as because they doubted the General's eventual availability.

As yet of course, the forces of Sen. Robert A. Taft retain the advantage gained by being first in the field. Moreover, as President Truman's strength in the country slips, Sen. Taft's strength in his own party rises; for most Republican professionals regard Taft as an ideal President, and only fear they may be unable to elect him.

Yet it is more than ever doubtful whether Senator Taft can carry the great northern states like New York, Pennsylvania and California, which any Republican must carry to enter the White House. President Truman meanwhile retains his ugly way of coming from behind, which the Republicans have already experienced. And above all, Eisenhower is the candidate desired by the mass of voters, who generally manage to get what they want in the end.

In these circumstances, it seems highly probable that the call for Gen. Eisenhower will be duly forthcoming, and that the General will accede to it, as it is his plain duty to do.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Rights Of Frank Sinatra

Every American is entitled to the privacy of his own life, if he craves it. Frank Sinatra apparently craves it. He dislikes newspaper publicity. He resents being photographed with or without his wife. He literally hates newspaper photographers, calls them foul names, and threatens to break their cameras. He prides himself on his physical prowess.

Earl Wilson, the columnist, reports that Mrs. Sinatra, formerly known as Ava Gardner, told him:

"Frank's had this for years. He's very ingenious at lousing up newspapermen now. He has one idea. He wants to stick chewing gum in some camera. Instead of a picture, they will get a big blob of gum."

He could be arrested in some states for mayhem on cameras, but surely that does not matter to a Sinatra in search of privacy.

When a man resents having his picture taken, it should not be taken. Suppose Frank Sinatra's picture never appeared in any newspaper in the United States; suppose not one word were ever published about him or his singing or his escapades, or his divorce or marriage, would it be like an earthquake or a tidal wave or maybe an atom bomb falling upon millions? If the name, Sinatra, never appeared in a single newspaper, would the world sink back into stygian blankness?

Yet, methinks he ought to have his way. If instead of newspaper cameramen struggling through crowds to snap a picture of Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner, they avoided both of them, saved their film for some serious purpose — would the reading public really miss something?

If such a course were followed say for six months, Sinatra would have his wish. He would enjoy complete privacy. Nobody would know he exists.

Surely a man is entitled to obtain livion if he wants to live that way. Sinatra could then sing to himself, if that is what he believes he does. He could also sing to his wife, and nobody would know about it. Because this is true about him and many others: If the newspapers were to omit them, the public surely would forget them.

Sometimes, I wonder why newspaper photographers are so courteous? They are engaged in a very important reportorial function. Namely, they provide a graphic presentation of the news. Often, their photographs are a more accurate and more understandable account of an incident than other reports that are written. They have to be intelligent workers or the camera would foul them up badly.

The camera-reporters, if I may coin a phrase, the news reporters and the columnists take such a person as Frank Sinatra and give him a build-up because for some reason it is a habit in this business to assume that the public is vitally interested in what actors do even if they spit in the eye of a lady reporter.

When these theatrical folk are on the make, they curry favor and seek notices and hire publicity men to spread interesting and exciting takes about them, true or untrue. Then they often try the gag of seeking privacy, which some believe is of human interest.

I was told of an actress who was so dumb that her agent feared that if she spoke anything but lines written for her by an author, she would be a sure giveaway. So they told her to be natural and say nothing. For some reason, her refusal to speak became a newsworthy item and was so widely publicized that it became her trademark.

It seems to me sound that Frank Sinatra's trademark ought to be that he wants to avoid the public eye. If that is what he wants, he should be kept out of the public eye permanently. It would be mutually beneficial: He would have his privacy; the newspapers would save expensive newsprint; the photographers would save costly film and light bulbs and everybody would be happy.

Perhaps the day might come when Frank Sinatra would like to be remembered. He could accomplish that by beating up a reporter or he might in some manner humiliate a woman reporter. However, it is possible that by then, even such antics on his part would no longer attract attention because the practitioner of them would be so obscure.

This therapy might be tried on others who forget that no newspaperman, whether a camera reporter or a word reporter enjoys chasing after a crumb. He only does it because it seems, for some reason, to be his duty.

Guns And The Language

Common phrases and expressions in frequent use which are traced to the early use of guns are listed by W. G. Burckel, process engineer of the Remington Arms Company. Mr. Burckel writes that when the gun, powder horn and shot pouch were almost as necessary as pants—and often more necessary and also a means of providing them—a lore came into being that has affected the thought and speech of today.

"Take the expression, 'Lock, stock and barrel,'" Mr. Burckel writes. "When a person accepts a proposition 'lock, stock and barrel,' it means he accepts the matter entirely, without reservation.

"The expression stems from colonial days when a gun, once acquired, was seldom scrapped or disposed of for a new one," Mr. Burckel explains. "When a part wore out or was broken, a new part was made or procured. Completeness was indicated by "lock, stock and barrel,' or the whole gun."

"Just a flash in the pan" is another common expression traced by Mr. Burckel. It signifies a person is one who makes a big fuss, is noisily enthusiastic but whose actions are not productive and enduring. The individual does something once, and only once.

It stems from the use of the flint lock rifle, where flint struck steel, sparks from them flew to the igniting powder, in flaring, lighted the powder behind the bullet or shot in the barrel through the small priming hole.

When the flint and steel made the sparks, and ignited the powder in the pan, but the powder in the pan, although it flared brightly, failed to light the powder in the barrel, then the results were obvious. The gun did not go off, although it gave most of the indications of having done so.

It looked good, but accomplished nothing.

Mr. Burckel lists the following other common expressions which are derived from shooting:

"The plans misfired," "set your sights high," 'score a bulls-eye," "draw a bead on something," 'keep your powder dry," "don't fall short of the mark," 'straight as a ramrod," he "overshot the mark," "he is 'loaded for bear'," "sharpshooter," "a shot in the dark," "he 'goes off half cocked'," "he is all 'primed' for the occasion," "hair-trigger nerves," "hold your fire," "a straight-shooter," "hit 'dead center'," and "he has 'lined his sights on the target.'"

Guns continue to occupy a prominent place in American nomenclature, but they are not the simple weapons that are reflected so widely in expressions in everyday use.

Auto Styles, '42 And '52

Just 10 years ago the 1942 model cars were coming off the production lines. By 1941 automotive engineering and streamlining had reached a very respectable maturity even by the standards of today. There was plenty of chromium—if no cow-catchers—on front ends. But America was rearming.

Then came Pearl Harbor and off came the brightwork from 1942 models. Senator Harry S. Truman brought in a report of the Senate Defense Investigating Committee. It censored auto makers who had postponed conversion and had produced more cars in 1941 than in "any year since 1929." As chairman, Senator Truman had a lot to say about graft, inefficiency and profiteering in defense housing, cantonments and shipbuilding.

About the end of January auto production ceased and auto rationing began. There weren't any 1943 models—or 1944 or 1945 models either. Those 1942 models were the "new" cars until 1946. Thenceforth model followed annual model. Each succeeding model was a little fancier.

The 1952 automobiles are starting to appear in showrooms. A decade has passed, and what's happened? Well, there's another war in Asia and in Europe there is not much hope for lessening of the desperate tension between East and West. Those 1952 models, according to official ukase from Washington, are to stay in style indefinitely.

Isn't this where we came in?

Telephone-itis

The other day the mayor of Englewood, N. J., sat down before what looked like an ordinary telephone with dial attached. With serious mien befitting the occasion, he dialed off a string of 10 digits, waited a few seconds, and broke into a broad grin as the mayor of Alameda, Calif., said hello.

As of right now, some 10,000 telephone subscribers in Englewood can dial, if they care to, approximately 11,000,000 phones across the country, a rather frightening prospect. The New Jersey community has been selected as the guinea pig in this experiment by the Bell system. As new and complicated central phone equipment becomes available, the blessings will spread to other communities.

Ultimately, those who are up to date with the telephone company's billing department, will be able to dial themselves conversations with any geographic point in the country.

The length of this forward stride in communication is overwhelming, but it does open up rather horrifying possibilities. How about those loquacious people who get telephone-itis after a couple of snorts? And what's to protect someone sleeping soundly in, say, Portsmouth, N. H., against the eager fingers of some night wandering three-year-old in Napa, Calif.?

But a people which has lived through two decades of radio commercials and the offenses which have been perpetrated under the guise of television entertainment probably will be able to ride this one out, too.

For Good Behavior

The Economic Cooperation Administration, as the Marshall Plan is now called, has come up with a new gimmick for use in allocating money to foreign governments. Formerly the test was "performance and need." Hereafter, if the case of Austria is a criterion, the test will be "good behavior."

Under the revised arrangement Austria will receive a basic allotment—in this instance $106,000,000—and then if she behaves herself will get $25,000,000 more.

The stated reason for the change is the difficulty the ECA has experienced under the old definition of "performance and need." Whether its troubles will be less in trying to determine if "behavior" has been "good" would seem to be a question.

To qualify for the additional handout, Austria must see to it that exports are maintained with a minimum of barter deals, that internal prices are kept from rising, credit volume is restricted to prevent inflation, the budget balance is restored and productivity increased.

If all this seems complicated, think of the additional scores of ECA employes that will be required to administer the new scheme.

Ameba In Humans

It has been estimated that at least 10 per cent of the population in the United States harbors the organisms responsible for amebic dysentery. The majority of these individuals are not disabled and many are referred to as healthy carriers. They escape detection because they are not bothered sufficiently to warrant a thorough examination.

Among the many studies that have been carried on was the one involving 350 subjects in the Albany-Rensselaer area of New York state. It was found that 34, or 9.7 per cent of the group, were infested with Endameba histolytica. Of this number, five were considered healthy carriers, whereas 18, or 53 per cent, had a mild case of ameidasis. Symptoms were so indefinite that medical advice would not have been sought ordinarily. Headache, lassitude, lack of appetite, flatulence, and colicky abdominal pains were examples of their complaints. The remaining 10, or 30 per cent, had the moderately marked symptoms so typical to our concept of the disease. They suffered from recurrent attacks of diarrhea, loose bowel movements, flatulence, abdominal tenderness, or constipation alternating with diarrhea. Only one case had the severe form of the disease, with ulceration and bleeding.

If this study represents a cross-section of our population, we can conclude that one out of every 10 of us is infected. There is a better than 60 per cent chance that the victim does not know of his plight; nor has he any idea that a disturbance in the intestinal tract is responsible for his feeling below par. Many other surveys confirm these findings. Of 1,100 inmates of a New York state institution, 10.7 per cent had amebiasis and in another in which 1,917 persons wer studied the rate was 11.5 per cent. New York City fared better: only 5.6 per cent of a random sampling of 676 individuals were infected.

It has been suggested that the only way to deal with this problem is to do laboratory tests on the stools of every one who is bothered with irritability of the colon, flatulence, colonic spasms, or changes in the bowel habit. The same applies to the person with evidence of a low grade infection or symptoms resembling appendicitis, gall bladder disease, or ulcer. This means paying attention to details because 95 per cent of those harboring the parasite do not have the characteristic diarrhea or dysentery. Mass examinations of this type would be a large order but at least food handlers should go through not one but several such checkups annually. Eliminatinng carriers will reduce the reservoir of infection and decrease the possibility of spread of the disease to others.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

There's More Than Meets Eye Behind Ripps-Mitchell Tax Case; Lamar Caudle Pushed Ripps-Mitchell Prosecution; Great Majority Of T-Men Are Honest.

WASHINGTON — Two of the nation's top newspapers, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Providence, R. I., Bulletin last week published a story regarding the Ripps-Mitchell income-tax case in Mobile, Ala., charging Assistant Attorney General Lamar Caudle with failure to prosecute.

Both these papers have done notable jobs in exposing corruption, but since I had something to do with the conviction of these two income-tax evaders, perhaps the inside story of what happened is worth telling—for two reasons:

1. To illustrate how tax cases sometimes get stymied.

2. In fairness to Mr. Caudle, who has been kicked around a lot and who, though indiscreet in his choice of friends, in my opinion is honest.

Much of the story was told in a column dated Dec. 16, 1949, when the Washington Merry-Go-Round two years ago began calling attention to shocking and then little-noticed income-tax scandals.

Sam Ripps and Joe Mitchell had made a fortune selling millions of dollars worth of jewelry to army PX's during the war, following which treasury agents caught them keeping two sets of books, claimed they owed at least $700,000 in taxes and recommended criminal prosecution. The column of Dec. 16, '49 then proceeds:

"Ripps and Mitchell immediately began to pull every political wire south or north of the Mason-Dixon Line. First they tried to hire Joe Nunan, former commissioner of internal revenue. Then they negotiated with Martin Sweaber, a good friend of Nunan's. Then they retained William Nicholson of Charlotte, N. C., former law partner of Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney general in charge of the tax division.

"Caudle phoned his former partner, asked him to withdraw from the case. He did so.

Law Partner Got Fee

"Finally, however, Mitchell and Ripps approached Will Walter Bankhead of Alabama's politically powerful Bankhead family, and through him retained Ben Leader, former law partner of the U. S. attorney in Birmingham, John Hill. Significantly, it was Hill who was to try the case.

"That case, however, has never been tried," continued the Merry-Go-Round on Dec. 16, 1949. "It was sent by the Justice Department (Caudle) to Hill for prosecution, but that was as far as it got. U. S. Attorney Hill held a conference with Justice and Treasury men in Birmingham at which he contended he did not have sufficient evidence. In the end, and with their concurrence, the prosecution of Ripps and Mitchell was sent back to Washington as closed.

"Meanwhile, this column, probing the tax fraud, unearthed some interesting facts. Ben Leader, when questioned, admitted he was Hill's former law partner; also admitted he received a fee of $12,000."

At this point it appeared that the Ripps-Mitchell case was stopped cold. It looked to me as if it had about as much chance of reaching prosecution as a freight train of crossing the Great Divide without an engine.

The column of Dec. 16, 1949, continued with other details. But here are some background facts I did not publish. Jack Anderson, the Merry-Go-Round reporter whom I sent to Mobile and Birmingham to button up the story, brought back what looked to me like new evidence, and I arranged an appointment at the Justice Department with Lamar Caudle, Turner Smith, in charge of the Criminal Section of the Tax Division, and John Mitchell, the Justice Department attorney who had gone to Birmingham to confer with Hill and who had concurred that the case should not be prosecuted.

Phony Bookkeeping

Mr. Anderson and I made a full presentation of what we considered shocking facts. These included a bookkeeping system whereby Ripps and Mitchell let their small checks and cash accumulate. Then, when a big check came in, they deposited the accumulated small checks and cash to the same amount as the big check, in order to make it appear that the big check had been cashed. Actually the big check was converted into a cashier's check, then sent by a roundabout way through the Jefferson Investment Co. of St. Louis, controlled by Mitchell, to the Paramount Check Cashing Service in New York.

During our conference, Caudle several times remarked that there certainly ought to be enough evidence to prosecute, and immediately thereafter, he sent John Mitchell (no relation to Joe Mitchell) to Mobile to reopen the entire case. The two tax defrauders were then indicted, pleaded guilty and are now in jail.

Honest T-Men

There were some other interesting angels to the Ripps-Mitchell case. One was that at Christmas 1946 Sam Ripps sent presents to the treasury agents who had been working on the case. The packages were returned unopened. Also a defense lawyer sent to Mobile from New York hinted to T-Men that they weren't paid enough by the government and could make more money on the outside. The T-Men did not take the hint.

At a time when Internal Revenue is under heavy fire, I should like to repeat that my own investigation of this and many other cases convinces me that the great majority of T-Men are honest.

Real hero of the Ripps-Mitchell prosecution, incidentally, was Robert Cox, the Mobile T-Man who handled the case, and who kept at it despite great discouragement.

I reported in December, 1949, that Congressman Frank Boykin had gone to Joe Mitchell's defense, as he had in various other scrapes.

I also heard, but could not confirm, that Ripps and Mitchell had made a heavy contribution to the Democratic National Committee.

I suspected, but could not prove, that someone in Washington was not enthusiastic about prosecuting the Ripps-Mitchell case. But I am convinced it was not Caudle. Caudle had sent the case to Birmingham with a recommendation for criminal prosecution long before I began looking into it. And after I talked to him, he exhibited the greatest determination and enthusiasm for prying the case loose from its stymie and getting a conviction.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Maybe Democratic campaign speakers do not relish a bit of plagiarizing from Republican campaign speakers of the past, but they will be well advised to read up on a speech delivered in 1924 by Charles Evans Hughes before the Republican state convention of New York just after the Teapot Dome scandals had rocked the country and made things look bad politically for the Republicans. They may be able to use it—provided the parallel is carried out.

The quotation comes to light in a new biography of Hughes written by Merlo J. Pusey, associate editor of the Washington Post, who says that the candor and sense of proportion exhibited by Hughes in that speech "had much to do with turning the public mind away from oil toward the rising tide of national prosperity." Hughes was at the time off the Supreme Court bench, having resigned in 1916 to make an unsuccessful race for the presidency. His speech, delivered on April 15, 1924, read in part as follows:

"Let it be understood that we do not condone wrong; we extenuate no crime . . . We would bring to the Bar of Justice every dishonest official and every perverter of administration in or out of office . . .

"Neither political party has a monopoly of virtue or of rascality. There are crooks in every community and in every party. Now and then, one gets into office. Let wrongs be exposed and punished, but let not partisian pecksniffs affect a 'holier than thou' attitude. The corrupting currency may be found in Democratic satchels. One who is corrupt is as faithless to his party as to his government. Guilt is personal and corruption knows no party.

Named Two Attornies

"Today, counsel of eminent ability and unimpeachable integrity, selected from both the great parties by a Republican president, are taking appropriate legal proceedings by which all the questions which have been raised as to the leasing of the public domain will be threshed out, every public interest will be safeguarded and every guilty person punished. These cases are in the courts where they belong and the courts will decide. It would be foolish, false and unpatriotic to breed distrust either of the integrity of the government or of the soundness of American life. That would be to assail the honor of the hosts of officials devoting their lives with unselfish fidelity to the country's interests."

William Howard Taft, an ex-president at that time, thought the speech was "as exceptional as the one you delivered for me in 1908." President Calvin Coolidge, who had come in from the vice presidency in 1923 on the death of Warren Harding, was re-elected in a landslide in 1924 because, as Author Pusey says, the voters "must have concluded that the administration had successfully purged itself of the corruption it had inherited."

But the Democratic speakers of 1952 will not be able to use the above quotation unless President Truman does what Calvin Coolidge did. For the latter apointed two prominent lawyers, one a Democrat and the other a Republican, as special prosecutors reporting to him instead of to the attorney general. The result was that a Republican cabinet officer who had received a $100,000 bribe in a satchel was put in jail, as were others who had held high official positions under a Republican administration.

Taken No Such Action

Mr. Truman thus far has not taken such a dramatic or far-reaching step. The prosecuting machinery of the Truman administration has lumbered along slowly, prodded largely by disclosures made by congressional investigating committees. In 1924 the congressional investigations really first brought out the oil scandals, but Mr. Coolidge was alert enough to act with stern efficiency in prosecuting, letting the chips fall where they might.

If the Truman administration does the same thing, it can live down the scandals now being uncovered. Righteous indignation alone will not do the trick. That Hughes speech lies ready for use by the Democratic speakers—provided their president does exactly what a Republican president did in somewhat the same circumstances in 1924.

Matter Of Fact

The Eisenhower Unveiling

WASHINGTON

The wise political money is now betting that General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower will announce his availability for the Republican Presidential nomination within three months. If all goes well, the Eisenhower unveiling ought to take place by the end of January or in the first week of February at the latest.

This is, of course, precisely what most of the Republican enthusiasts for Eisenhower have always wanted. The difference today is that after the General's event-crammed visit to this country, his backers are convinced that what they want to happen will in fact happen. They showed no such happy confidence before.

Indeed, until recently there were many reasons to suspect that the General would follow the unhappy precedent of the late Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, insisting on what is called a "genuine draft," and thus imposing an impossible task on his supporters. No matter how strongly Republicans may call for Eisenhower, he cannot conceivably be nominated by acclamation. The forces of Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, vigorously supported by General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, will fight an Eisenhower nomination to the bitter end.

This means, in turn, that the General must openly put himself at the head of his own-supporters when the right time comes. And the evidence now is that he will do precisely this, under the right conditions. These conditions may be simply defined.

Will Await Call

On the one hand, Gen. Eisenhower is not an active candidate today, in the Taft manner. He merely sees his duty to lead, if his leadership is called for. The "if" is significant. The call must come first. There must first be a widespread demand for his leadership among Republicans of stature. Without that, there will be no unveiling, no declaration of candidacy. In short the Eisenhower backers have to show that the Eisenhower movement is a real thing, in order to secure the desired commitment from the General.

In a situation so conditional, betting might be unwise, if it were not for the other great advances the Eisenhower movement has simultaneously made. On the one hand, as pointed out in a previous report in this space, the General's parting statement in this country exploded the canard that his backers have been peddling a pig in a poke. He said, on the contrary, that such friends as Sen. James Duff, of Pennsylvania, know his mind perfectly, being so close to him that they could safely foretell how he would "act and react." To this he significantly added that he would say "the word" when and if the time came.

Enormous Forward Step

On the other hand, there is the enormous step forward represented by the choice of Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, to head up the Eisenhower movement's headquarters organization. Hitherto, the greatest danger has been that the Eisenhower enthusiasts would remain a loose coalition of local political grandees, divided and hamstrung by their own touchy sensibilities.

The leaders have been aware of this danger, however. While Gen. Eisenhower was in Washington, Sen. Duff was in New York, conferring on the organization problem with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. Somewhat later, Sen. Duff met in Washington with Harry Darby, of Kansas. The result of these deliberations was the unanimous choice of the Massachusetts senator, as one of the ablest political operators of our time, and as a man whom the New Yorkers, the Kansans, and Sen. Duff all equally liked and trusted.

Makes Able Organization

This means that the once loose coalition will now be transformed into a tough and tightly knit phalanx, with resources and ability to take on all comers. This step alone should greatly impress many as yet unconverted Republican delegates, who have been dubious about the Eisenhower movement because of its weak organization as much as because they doubted the General's eventual availability.

As yet of course, the forces of Sen. Robert A. Taft retain the advantage gained by being first in the field. Moreover, as President Truman's strength in the country slips, Sen. Taft's strength in his own party rises; for most Republican professionals regard Taft as an ideal President, and only fear they may be unable to elect him.

Yet it is more than ever doubtful whether Senator Taft can carry the great northern states like New York, Pennsylvania and California, which any Republican must carry to enter the White House. President Truman meanwhile retains his ugly way of coming from behind, which the Republicans have already experienced. And above all, Eisenhower is the candidate desired by the mass of voters, who generally manage to get what they want in the end.

In these circumstances, it seems highly probable that the call for Gen. Eisenhower will be duly forthcoming, and that the General will accede to it, as it is his plain duty to do.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Rights Of Frank Sinatra

Every American is entitled to the privacy of his own life, if he craves it. Frank Sinatra apparently craves it. He dislikes newspaper publicity. He resents being photographed with or without his wife. He literally hates newspaper photographers, calls them foul names, and threatens to break their cameras. He prides himself on his physical prowess.

Earl Wilson, the columnist, reports that Mrs. Sinatra, formerly known as Ava Gardner, told him:

"Frank's had this for years. He's very ingenious at lousing up newspapermen now. He has one idea. He wants to stick chewing gum in some camera. Instead of a picture, they will get a big blob of gum."

He could be arrested in some states for mayhem on cameras, but surely that does not matter to a Sinatra in search of privacy.

When a man resents having his picture taken, it should not be taken. Suppose Frank Sinatra's picture never appeared in any newspaper in the United States; suppose not one word were ever published about him or his singing or his escapades, or his divorce or marriage, would it be like an earthquake or a tidal wave or maybe an atom bomb falling upon millions? If the name, Sinatra, never appeared in a single newspaper, would the world sink back into stygian blankness?

Yet, methinks he ought to have his way. If instead of newspaper cameramen struggling through crowds to snap a picture of Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner, they avoided both of them, saved their film for some serious purpose — would the reading public really miss something?

If such a course were followed say for six months, Sinatra would have his wish. He would enjoy complete privacy. Nobody would know he exists.

Surely a man is entitled to obscurity if he wants to live that way. Sinatra could then sing to himself, if that is what he believes he does. He could also sing to his wife, and nobody would know about it. Because this is true about him and many others: If the newspapers were to omit them, the public surely would forget them.

Sometimes, I wonder why newspaper photographers are so courteous? They are engaged in a very important reportorial function. Namely, they provide a graphic presentation of the news. Often, their photographs are a more accurate and more understandable account of an incident than other reports that are written. They have to be intelligent workers or the camera would foul them up badly.

The camera-reporters, if I may coin a phrase, the news reporters and the columnists take such a person as Frank Sinatra and give him a build-up because for some reason it is a habit in this business to assume that the public is vitally interested in what actors do even if they spit in the eye of a lady reporter.

When these theatrical folk are on the make, they curry favor and seek notices and hire publicity men to spread interesting and exciting takes about them, true or untrue. Then they often try the gag of seeking privacy, which some believe is of human interest.

I was told of an actress who was so dumb that her agent feared that if she spoke anything but lines written for her by an author, she would be a sure giveaway. So they told her to be natural and say nothing. For some reason, her refusal to speak became a newsworthy item and was so widely publicized that it became her trademark.

It seems to me sound that Frank Sinatra's trademark ought to be that he wants to avoid the public eye. If that is what he wants, he should be kept out of the public eye permanently. It would be mutually beneficial: He would have his privacy; the newspapers would save expensive newsprint; the photographers would save costly film and light bulbs and everybody would be happy.

Perhaps the day might come when Frank Sinatra would like to be remembered. He could accomplish that by beating up a reporter or he might in some manner humiliate a woman reporter. However, it is possible that by then, even such antics on his part would no longer attract attention because the practitioner of them would be so obscure.

This therapy might be tried on others who forget that no newspaperman, whether a camera reporter or a word reporter enjoys chasing after a crumb. He only does it because it seems, for some reason, to be his duty.

Vivian Elaine Smith Is Bride Of A. W. Haycock

Rev. Crowe Officiates

Miss Vivian Elaine Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Smith, LaVale, became the bride of Arden William Haycock, seaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arden Haycock, Pinto, November 18.

The single ring ceremony was solemnized at 5:30 o'clock in Cresaptown Methodist Church with Rev. Raymond Crowe officiating. Mrs. Leroy Horton was the bride's matron of honor and only attendant. Gordon Andrews, seaman, served as best man.

The bride was attired in a teal blue silk dress, fashioned with a V neckline, short sleeves, and bodice gathered in the front. With it she wore a winter white hat with white veiling. An orchid corsage completed her costume.

Her attendant wore a rose crepe dress, made complementary to the bride's and a black hat. She had a corsage of white rosebuds.

Mrs. Smith chose a Navy blue dress with balck accessories for her daughter's wedding. She also had a corsage of pink rosebuds. Mrs. Haycock also was attired in a Navy blue dress and had dark accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds.

The bride is a graduate of Allegany High School and is employed as bookkeeper by her father at The Dingle Esso Station. The bridegroom is a graduate of Allegany High School, also and entered the Navy last October. He has completed boot training there and after a 14 day furlough will report to San Francisco to attend Seabee school. Prior to entering the service he was employed by the Cumberland Lumber Company.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip south. The bride will reside with her parents while the bridegroom is in service.

A quota of 230 members has been set for the departmental, Mrs. Jessie Smith, Membership chairman announced.

The formation of new salons was explained by Mrs. Amanda Mann, Baltimore, l'avacot, who reported two are underway, one on the Eastern Shore and one near Baltimore.

A social hour concluded the meeting with Salon 325 as hostess, and refreshments served under the chairmanship of Mrs. Raymond Graim.

Institute To Be Held

A Leadership Training Institute will be held by the Western Maryland Branch of the Baltimore Presbyterial, today in Southminster Presbyterian Church. It is to begin with a luncheon at 12 o'clock.

Mrs. Lester R. Martin, Western Maryland Branch chairman, will preside and officers from the Presbyterial from Baltimore are to be guests.

A talk on "Organization and World Service," will be given by Mrs. Raymond A Rapp, Baltimore and Mrs. Leonard R. Eisinger, is to discuss "Program Planning." A skit it might have happened," is being presented by a group from First church, and will be commented upon by Mrs. H. Wilson Wheeler, chairmans of the fellowship department.

Circle 8 WSCS of Centre Street Methodist Church will hold a rummage sale in the church basement at 1 o'clock today.

It's yours, CUMBERLAND—the most wonderful work-saver yet!

No-Rinse Surf gets clothes so clean you need never rinse again!

Half the work of washday is over—from now on! For new Surf gets your clothes so dazzling clean you don't have to rinse at all! Just wash—wring—the dirt rolls out with the wash-water!

Even without soaking or scrubbing—bleaching or bluing—you'll find your clothes look cleaner, feel cleaner, smell cleaner. Because Surf contains a miracle ingredient that floats dirt away. Down the drain it goes—leaving your clothes and your tub gleaming-free of any scum!

Buy it in the convenient thrifty giant size

Only washday product approved by U.S. Testing Company for no rinsing!

SEE HOW CLEAN! "Never did I dream a wash could look so clean—and without rinsing, too! No-Rinse Surf really works wonders—gets white clothes simply snowy!"
—says MRS. FLORA V. DAY
5606 43rd Avenue, HYATTSVILLE, MD.

FEEL HOW CLEAN! "My towels—and woolens, too—never felt so soft and fluffy till I tried Surf. And it saved me hours of work with 'no rinsing'!"
—says MRS. VIOLA GRAVES
4216 Wheeler Road, S.E., WASHINGTON

SMELL HOW CLEAN! "I fell in love with Surf the moment I first sniffed how wonderfully clean and fragrant it leaves clothes. No soap ever got my wash so sweet!"
—says MRS. BARBARA F. SMITH
12217 Selfridge Road, SILVER SPRING, MD.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

A winter wedding is a twice-joyous event, combining traditional wedding beauty with seasonal splendor.

Weave every detail—the setting, your gown, the bridesmaids' attire, and the bouquets—into a garland of traditional significance, whether your wedding is to be exceedingly simple or very formal.

Season's Successes

There are many ways to do it. below are two variations on the theme, and any bridal consultant can suggest many others. But let your own taste and originality cast the particular character of your wedding.

For the wedding that is to have "all the trimmings," picture a setting of evergreen bows, white poinsettias, and candlelight. Imagine yourself in a gown of antique ivory satin with a filigree of Chantilly outlining the bodice, the skirt drawn-up over pleats, of the lace and a cathedral train spreading magnificance in your wake. Think of your maids in robes de style of Christmas green velvet. Envision bouquets as clusters of full-blown creamy roses. You and your beholders will "dream of joy and wake to love!"

If the ceremony is informal, make it light-hearted rather than imposing. Let silvered leaves, holly berries, and candles provide the background. Sustain it by choosing wreaths and wristlets for your attendants of leaves and berries, with your lovelies dressed in twilight blue of changeable taffeta. With yourself dressed in an ankle-length white lace over a slip so delicately pale that it only suggests its blue color, you'll be a most memorable dream. The effect will be sparkling, pristine, and gay as frosty snow!

Happy Is The Bride

© 1951 by John F. Dille Co.

If a holiday wedding is on your schedule, follow these suggestions to make the ceremony memorable.

If you're on the wing, catching up with the boy in camp, be a "suit" bride who looks like the angel atop the Christmas tree. Let your suit be full-skirted, standing out over crinoline. Let it be of "bride's" pink faille, from head to foot. Carry bright red carnations with one sprig of mistletoe tucked in the center. Never will the line that forms to the left to kiss the bride be more admiring!

Lucky, lucky is the bride the winter sun shines on!

Health Of Entire City Is Studied In Survey Aimed At Aiding Doctors

NEW YORK, (AP)—The health—mental and physical—of the entire adult population of Oneonta, N. Y., is being studied in a survey intended to help doctors give better service to the people.

Details of the investigation were disclosed by Columbia University, which is making it for the U. S. Public Health Service.

Prof. Irving Lorge, survey director, said the purpose of the study, believed the first of its kind, is to measure the health status of adults in a representative American community.

From the results, he said, the Public Health Service will be able to determine the approximate effect on a community in such emergencies as epidemics, floods and bombings.

The investigation started as a random sampling of 600 families in Oneonta and 200 in adjacent Ostego and Delaware Counties. The response to these questionnaires was so overwhelming that it was decided to distribute them to every house in Oneonta.

Fox Hospital in Oneonta is encouraging citizens to cooperate in the survey and high school and college students are helping with the work.

Lorge said the questionnaire is self administered, with 195 items relating to physical and mental illness. A blue form is provided for men, a pink for women. The information they provide is confidential.

He explained the work will provide evidence of the "frequency of physical and emotional disability symptoms in a representative population."

"Since this is primarily a method study," he said, "it is expected that it will become another device for health screening. The data would lead to inferences about the requirements for medical care for the normal population."

The questionnaires will be processed at teachers college of Columbia, a job expected to take a year. A preliminary report will be made early in 1952.

Long, Flynn Will Attend FBI Meet

Police Commissioner John J. Long and Chief R. Emmett Flynn are planning to attend the annual Law Enforcement Conference for Maryland December 12 in the McCormick building, Baltimore.

Subjects to be discussed include law enforcement and civil defense, technical aspects of sabotage and security jurisdiction of the FBI.

S. S. Alden, special agent in charge, will conduct the sessions sponsored by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Fox Hospital in Oneonta is encouraging citizens to cooperate in the survey and high school and college students are helping with the work.

Lorge said the questionnaire is self administered, with 195 items relating to physical and mental illness. A blue form is provided for men, a pink for women. The information they provide is confidential.

He explained the work will provide evidence of the "frequency of physical and emotional disability symptoms in a representative population."

"Since this is primarily a method study," he said, "it is expected that it will become another device for health screening. The data would lead to inferences about the requirements for medical care for the normal population."

The questionnaires will be processed at teachers college of Columbia, a job expected to take a year. A preliminary report will be made early in 1952.

Long, Flynn Will Attend FBI Meet

Police Commissioner John J. Long and Chief R. Emmett Flynn are planning to attend the annual Law Enforcement Conference for Maryland December 12 in the McCormick building, Baltimore.

Subjects to be discussed include law enforcement and civil defense, technical aspects of sabotage and security jurisdiction of the FBI.

S. S. Alden, special agent in charge, will conduct the sessions sponsored by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Mahoney Brings "Harmony" Drive To 6th District

Meeting Held In Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Nov. 19 (AP)—Democratic National Committeeman George P. Mahoney brings his "harmony" campaign to Maryland's Sixth Congressional District tonight.

Mahoney has invited Democratic State Central Committeemen from Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick and Mongomery Counties to talk about agreeing on a party candidate for Congress (8 p. m. in Hotel Alexander).

Mahoney's announced campaign to harmonize the party so far has produced two discordant notes.

After a meeting of Eastern Shore party leaders last Wednesday, Mayor Julius L. Tubman of Cambridge announced flatly he was going to be a candidate for Congress from the First District. This was after other area leaders failed to agree on a candidate to oppose Republican Rep. Edward T. Miller.

H. Streett Baldwin, the Baltimore County Democratic leader, let out a yell when he heard Mahoney planned a similar meeting in the Second District composed of Baltimore, Carroll and Harford Counties.

This district also is represented by a Republican, James T. Devereux up for reelection.

Baldwin complained he had not been consulted by Mahoney and questioned "how constructive" any meeting will be.

The Democrats also are faced with unusually heavy GOP strength in the Sixth District. It's now represented by Republican J. Glenn Beall of Frostburg. He does not plan to run for reelection to the House, aiming instead for his party's nomination to the Senate.

Mahoney said his purpose of the meetings is to convince the Democrats they will have better chances of beating the Republicans in the three districts if they agree beforehand on one candidate.

GROUND OBSERVER CORPS ORIENTATION—Representatives from six Ground Observer Corps stations in Allegany County attended an orientation program recently in the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company's conference room. A two-man Air Force team from the Pittsburgh, Pa., Filter Center conducted the program, using a plotting board on which they showed how many planes are plotted in the four state area. Attending the meeting left to right above were James Carder, William E. Toms, Noah Carder, Howard R. Zarger, Charles G. Smith, Sgt. Richard Backes, Bernard L. Blough, John Nixon, J. E. Mullenax, Mrs. Paul Arrington, A. E. Walter, Vincent C. Bollino, E. M. McKenzie, Adam Kalbaugh, Lt. Charles Nelson, Harry Bender, J. Stanley Espy and Palmer Howsare.

Prize Winner Will Attend 4-H Congress

Grover William Lang, 18-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Lang, who live between Danville and McCoole along McMullen Highway, will leave Wednesday night for Chicago, where he will attend the National 4-H Congress, running from November 25 through 29.

Lang, now a freshman at Potomac State School, Keyser, W. V., recently was adjudged the state winner in the 4-H Home Grounds Beautification Contest. Eight National winners among the 48 state winners in the contest will receive free trips to the 4-H Congress. Lang is one of them.

A doctor says it's healthier to kiss a girl on her photograph. Some folks go around just spoiling our fun.

Aurora last night after a brief lunch here.

Each man in the team is a survival or medical technician and has had training both at land survival schools and "on the job" training at numerous crashes and on training in swamps in the South, Death Valley in the West and on Labrador for Arctic conditions.

Plane Lands Here

The C-82 arrived in Cumberland shortly before 6 p. m. in the midst of a heavy snowstorm and had to circle for about 20 minutes.

Officials said they were planning to abandon plans for landing in Cumberland and to go to Martinsburg, W. Va., when the storm abated and gave them a glimpse of the Queen City.

The plane was slated to go back to Fifth Rescue Flight Squadron at Westover Field as soon as the weather cleared.

The rescue squadron at Westover Field is part of two AAF Rescue Flights based in the United States.

Weather Hampers Search

The twin-engine plane apparently exploded in midair while enroute from Pittsburgh to its Langley base. Snow and sub-freezing temperatures have hampered rescue efforts.

Bodies found were those of First Lt. Jerome J. Walsh, pilot, son of Mrs. Frieda J. Walsh, Milwaukee, and First Lt. William L. Langdon, navigator, son of Mrs. Rose Munsen Langdon, Morrestown, N. J.

Plane Lands Here

The C-82 arrived in Cumberland shortly before 6 p. m. in the midst of a heavy snowstorm and had to circle for about 20 minutes.

Officials said they were planning to abandon plans for landing in Cumberland and to go to Martinsburg, W. Va., when the storm abated and gave them a glimpse of the Queen City.

The plane was slated to go back to Fifth Rescue Flight Squadron at Westover Field as soon as the weather cleared.

The rescue squadron at Westover Field is part of two AAF Rescue Flights based in the United States.

Weather Hampers Search

The twin-engine plane apparently exploded in midair while enroute from Pittsburgh to its Langley base. Snow and sub-freezing temperatures have hampered rescue efforts.

Bodies found were those of First Lt. Jerome J. Walsh, pilot, son of Mrs. Frieda J. Walsh, Milwaukee, and First Lt. William L. Langdon, navigator, son of Mrs. Rose Mugsen Langdon, Morrestown, N. J.

3 Of 5 Who Fled Meade Retaken

FORT MEADE, Md., Nov. 19 (AP)—Three of five Army privates who broke away from work details this afternoon were captured early tonight, a Second Army spokesman reported.

He said the trio who overpowered a guard and broke his nose, were picked up by military police 2½ miles south of Glen Burnie. The MPs arrested them at the Severn Farms Drive-In on U. S. Route 301.

Meanwhile, two other prisoners who sneaked away from a lone guard were still at large. An Army officer said they escaped while cleaning up at a rifle range in the southern part of the reservation.

Those recaptured—all privates—were identified as William R. Betts, 18, Georgetown, Del.; Robert T. Jones, 24, Whiteford, Md., and Kenneth E. Powers, 22, New Boston, Mich.

WANTED TO BE COWBOYS—These two "cowboys," Herbert Hall (left), 22, and R. N. Morin, 18, both of Waltham, Mass., were charged at Houston, Tex., yesterday with burglary and theft. They told police they wanted "enough money for a ranch and to settle down to become cowboys."

Truce Declared In Egyptian City

CAIRO, Nov. 19 (AP) —The British command and Egyptian government in the Suez Canal zone declared a truce in Ismailia today after a weekend battle there killed 17 British troops, Egyptian policemen and civilians. More than 30 persons were wounded.

The provincial government agreed to disarm its police and the British promised to remove its remaining military families as fast as possible from the bloody midway city on the canal.

Ismailia was the scene of the first outbreak of violence in mid-Ocober when Egypt told the British they must get out of the canal zone. Now it is reduced from its normal 100,000 population to about 40,000 as a result of Egyptian families fleeing.

The truce was arranged at a canal station between Ismailia and Port Said "in the interests of public security," British Lt. Gen. Sir George Erskine told reporters at Ismailia.

The Egyptian Ministry of the Interior in Cairo in a communique tonight said Ismailia was "perfectly calm" throughout the day.

Huggins Appointed To Air Force Post

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 19 (AP)—President Truman today named Edwin V. Huggins, 44-year-old Maplewood, N. J., businessman, as assistant secretary of the Air Force.

Huggins succeeds Roswell L. Gilpatric who recently was promoted to undersecretary of the Air Force.

Huggins is executive vice president of the Westinghouse Electric International Company. He is expected to assume his Air Force post Nov. 27 under a recess appointment which is subject to confirmation later.

German DP Family Found By Sponsors

SHOALS, Ind., Nov. 9 (AP)—A German DP family stranded in Shoals today "found" their sponsors—nearly 200 miles away.

The DPs, Mr. and Mrs. Franz Lysk, Barnstedt, Germany both 25, and their three small children, arrived by train yesterday. They couldn't speak English and didn't know their sponsors.

Today, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley S. Boggs, of Route I, Mentone, Kosciusko County, read the story of the family's plight. They had been expecting the Lysk family.

So the Boggs family telephoned Ernest Asbel, Shoals school superintendent, and made arrangements to pick up the German family tomorrow.

48 Baltimoreans Sign Petition Backing 'Ike'

BALTIMORE, Nov. 19 (AP)—Baltimoreans were asked to sign a petition backing Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for president during a half-hour period today on a chilly downtown corner. Forty-eight persons stopped to sign.

A group who are backing the general said they conducted the petition-signing as a test of sentiment.

Flooding Italian Rivers Rising

ROVIGO, Italy, Nov. 19 (AP) —Heavy rains pushed crests of the Po River and its tributaries higher today, posing new threats for refugee-jammed towns on the rim of the worst Italian flood in this century. The death toll has climbed to more than 100, with most of the figures two days old.

Calls went out for the emergency evacuation of Villadose, midway between this almost deserted city and flooded Adria. The town's normal population of 5,000 is swollen by hundreds of refugees.

Two U. S. Army Flying Boxcars and other aircraft dropped food and supplies into Adria while a huge fleet of small boats battled swirling currents and rescued thousands of beleaguered there.

An Italian news agency photographer telephoned over the city's only remaining line that two "daredevil" American officers landed their helicopter in the city time after time to ferry in supplies and take out refugees.

An amphibian also flew in from the American rescue center at Wiesbaden, Germany, and dropped 48 sacks of rations by parachute.

The Flying Boxcars, a four-engined British Lancaster and Italian army planes also kept up a day-long drop to other isolated communities.

Most of Adria's 35,000 population did not heed warnings to flee Saturday night when the flood spread over a vast Po delta triangle 25 miles wide and 40 miles deep.

Czechs Who Stole Train Reach U. S.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—Two Czech railroad men who commandeered their own "Freedom Train" to get out of Red-ruled Czechoslovakia arrived today at their destination—America.

Jaroslav Konvalinka, Czech engineer, and Karel Truksa, train dispatcher, who last Sept. 11 steamed a stolen train loaded with 108 passengers into free Western Germany, came by plane from Frankfort.

Accompanied by their families, they were jubilant about their successful escape to a "place where we can enjoy peace and freedom."

"I would like everyone in Czechoslovakia," Truksa said through an interpreter, "to see how incorrect is the Communit propaganda against Western powers."

Truman To Interrupt Vacation For Speech

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 19 (AP)—President Truman worked late tonight putting into final shape for delivery in Washington a full-dress political speech for which he is interrupting his Florida vacation.

The President speaks around 10 p. m. (EST) tomorrow before the Women's National Democratic Club at a banquet in Washington's Hotel Mayflower.

He will take off from the Boca Chica air station at 8 a. m. (EST) on a flight expected to require a little under four hours.

Fired Officers Still Buy For Nationalists

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Chinese Nationalist government said today it has continued to buy air force supplies in the United States through the two procurement officers it fired months ago.

An explanation given by Vice Minister of Justice Liang-Chen Cha was that most of $49,000,000 in government funds sent here for the purpose was banked in private accounts and this was the only practical way to obtain needed planes and equipment.

The Nationalist government filed suit in Federal Court last week for an accounting from Lt. Gen. P. T. Mow, former director of the Chinese air force procurement office in the U. S., and Col. V. S. Hsiang, his executive officer. It sought recovery also of more than $7,000,000 estimated to be unexpended.

Cha, sent here from Formosa to try to wind up the bizarre case, said also the Nationalist government now has formally withdrawn credentials from the accused officers.

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 19 (AP)—President Truman today named Edwin V. Huggins, 44-year-old Maplewood, N. J., businessman, as assistant secretary of the Air Force.

Huggins succeeds Roswell L. Gilpatric who recently was promoted to undersecretary of the Air Force.

Huggins is executive vice president of the Westinghouse Electric International Company. He is expected to assume his Air Force post Nov. 27 under a recess appointment which is subject to confirmation later.

German DP Family Found By Sponsors

SHOALS, Ind., Nov. 9 (AP)—A German DP family stranded in Shoals today "found" their sponsors—nearly 200 miles away.

The DPs, Mr. and Mrs. Franz Lysk, Barnstedt, Germany both 25, and their three small children, arrived by train yesterday. They couldn't speak English and didn't know their sponsors.

Today, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley S. Boggs, of Route I, Mentone, Kosciusko County, read the story of the family's plight. They had been expecting the Lysk family.

So the Boggs family telephoned Ernest Asbel, Shoals school superintendent, and made arrangements to pick up the German family tomorrow.

48 Baltimoreans Sign Petition Backing 'Ike'

BALTIMORE, Nov. 19 (AP)—Baltimoreans were asked to sign a petition backing Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for president during a half-hour period today on a chilly downtown corner. Forty-eight persons stopped to sign.

A group who are backing the general said they conducted the petition-signing as a test of sentiment.

Czechs Who Stole Train Reach U. S.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—Two Czech railroad men who commandeered their own "Freedom Train" to get out of Red-ruled Czechoslovakia arrived today at their destination—America.

Jaroslav Konvalinka, Czech engineer, and Karel Truksa, train dispatcher, who last Sept. 11 steamed a stolen train loaded with 108 passengers into free Western Germany, came by plane from Frankfort.

Accompanied by their families, they were jubilant about their successful escape to a "place where we can enjoy peace and freedom."

"I would like everyone in Czechoslovakia," Truksa said through an interpreter, "to see how incorrect is the Communit propaganda against Western powers."

Truman To Interrupt Vacation For Speech

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 19 (AP)—President Truman worked late tonight putting into final shape for delivery in Washington a full-dress political speech for which he is interrupting his Florida vacation.

The President speaks around 10 p. m. (EST) tomorrow before the Women's National Democratic Club at a banquet in Washington's Hotel Mayflower.

He will take off from the Boca Chica air station at 8 a. m. (EST) on a flight expected to require a little under four hours.

State Group Adopts Plans Recommended By Whitworth

The first interim report of the Maryland budget system released in Baltimore by the Commission on Administrative Organization of the State for study by the Legislature and possible action at the February 1952 session of the General Assembly includes the adoption of four recommendations made by Delegate Horace P. Whitworth of Allegany county.

The report adopted Whitworth's suggestions for Maryland budget improvement as outlined in a speech he gave before the commission at Hagerstown last July.

Whitworth's recommendations had been previously made on the House floor and in committee without success.

Appointed By Governor

The commission was appointed by the Governor last March with Simon E. Sobeloff, Baltimore, as chairman, and consists of 11 business and professional men of the state. None of the men holds political office.

A summary of Whitworth's recommendations made in July follows:

1. Present a factual budget to the people of Maryland and the General Assembly by the consolidation of the proposed budget and supplemental appropriations into one statement that would disclose the total spending proposal for each department and the purpose as a program budget.

2. Make each department live within its appropriations by fixing a ceiling on their expenditures and reduce and eliminate, if possible, budget amendments to prevent shifting and transferring of funds from one department to another.

3. Reduce the number of special funds and eliminate the special fund clause in the budget bill itself.

4. Stop surplus financing by a closer and more realistic estimate of revenue.

Summary of Recommendations

A summary of the recommendations of the commission released follows:

1. The governor should submit one comprehensive budget document to the General Assembly annually presenting his complete fiscal program consisting of (a) all estimated income and expenditures covering the general operations of the State, regardless of the source of funds, that is, whether the expenditures are to be paid for out of general funds, special funds, or federal allotments; (b) a capital budget; and (c) a budget message.

The budget bills covering general operations and capital improvements should be submitted along with the comprehensive budget document, and should be accompanied by such revenue bills or bond bills as the governor may propose to carry out his program.

2. So-called special funds (that is, revenues of the state or any of its agencies which are restricted to specific uses, including the University of Maryland special funds,) should be discontinued, with the exception of the following:

A. The category of revenues known as "Road Funds."

B. Game and Inland Fish Commission funds.

3. The present line item budget should be discontinued and the so-called "Program Budget" should be adopted as the basis for making appropriations.

4. The use of the so-called supplemental budget, should be rigidly restricted to the correction of mechanical errors in the initial budget and the provision for expenditures required by legislation enacted in the current session.

B & O Corrects Hotel Boiler Causing Cinder Condition

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is taking steps to correct a cinder condition caused by a boiler at the Queen City Hotel.

George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, told the Mayor and Council yesterday that complaints against the hotel boiler had been discussed at last week's Terminal meeting.

The B. and O., he said, is cleaning and placing a new smoke ring at the top of the boiler as well as installing overfire jets.

He said the railroad is attempting to keep the present boiler in operation and the work should be done within the next month.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, who last week brought the complaints to Hitchcock's attention and asked for a report, questioned Hitchcock on his authority if present work does not correct the condition. She referred specifically to a request for corrective measures.

Hitchcock said he had the authority and might have a complete report next Monday.

Saeli, O'Rourke Appointed

Anthony Saeli, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, was officially appointed to the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission replacing Harold W. Smith, resigned. Saeli's appointment ends June 1, 1953. Also named to the group was Benjamin W. O'Rourke until June 1, 1956.

Saeli and George Millenson in letters accepted appointment to the committee appointed by Mayor Thomas S. Post last week to study funds for a proposed overhead bridge.

Commissioner of Police and Fire John J. Long said he had talked to several members of the six-man group and they want to get together for a meeting soon.

The council voted to buy a $100 bond in the annual seal sale of the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association.

Plans of the Optimist Club to sponsor an indoor circus at the State Armory, February 9, received council approval under jurisdiction of the Police Department. The club said proceeds would be used for charitable and boys' work.

Regester Paid

A check for $5,390 was authorized paid to Robert T. Regester, Baltimore consulting engineer, for preparation of plans and specifications for improvement to the filter plant at Lake Gordon. Water Commissioner George H. Tederick said specifications are in the hands of contractors and bids will be submitted next Monday.

Four bids were received on 3,500 feet of pipe and fittings for use of the B. and O. Railroad at the Thomas Street relocation project. They included: Tri-State Mine and Mill Supply Company, this city, $13,405; McKaig's Machinery and Supplies, this city, $14,140; R. D. Wood Company, Philadelphia, $4.25 per foot of 16½ foot length pipe; and U. S. Pipe and Foundry Company, $3.82 per foot for 18 foot length pipe and $247 a net ton for fittings.

Water consumption for the week ending Sunday was 86,640,000 gallons as compared to 84,690,000 a year ago. The daily average was 12,377,000. The water level at Lake Gordon is one foot below the crest of the spillway and at Lake Koon 19 feet, 10 inches below.

Burkett Faces New Charges In Fatal Shooting

A 31-year-old Kelly-Springfield Tire Company worker has been ordered held on two additional charges resulting from the fatal shooting of his estranged wife and the wounding of her mother September 12.

The defendant, Clarence Burkett, of Ellerslie, was given a preliminary hearing last week in Bedford, Pa., on counts of assault with intent to kill and violation of the Uniform Firearms Act. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Wilbert J. Shaffer, near Hyndman, Pa., was the complainant.

Burkett previously had been ordered to stand trial on a general charge of murdering his wife, Mrs. Myra Grace Burkett, 23.

Bond was set at $2,000 on the assault charge and $1,000 on the second count. However, he will be unable to leave Bedford county jail because the murder charge has no bail privilege.

Burkett surrendered to Maryland State Police Sgt. Harry Holsinger after the shooting at the Shaffer truck farm about one mile south of Hyndman. Three bullets from a .38 caliber pistol hit his wife and she died later in Memorial Hospital.

One bullet struck his mother-in-law's right arm while she grappled with him.

Mrs. Burkett was standing on a pickup truck, unloading wood, when her husband appeared and started shooting. They had been separated for some time.

Among those present at last week's hearing were Mrs. Shaffer, who was treated at Memorial Hospital after the shootings; Charles M. Koontz, district attorney of Bedford county, and Edward J. Ryan, defense counsel for Burkett.

Pennsylvania Trio Held In Theft

Three Pennsylvania youths are being held in Somerset county jail for allegedly stealing two tires and wheels valued at $40 from the farm of Elmer Schrock, Grantsville.

Authorities said the trio faces charges of transporting stolen articles into the state and selling them at Meyersdale. Following a preliminary hearing in Salisbury, each was held under $500 bond.

The trio includes Mahlon Thomas, 19, of Salisbury, and two 16-year-old boys. Thomas also is charged with violating two motor vehicle laws.

Maryland police lodged detainers against the youths after learning they reportedly have been hauling stolen merchandise from Garrett county to Somerset county for sale.

Johnson Heights PTA Plans Christmas Party

The Johnson Heights Parent-Teacher Association will hold a Christmas party at the school December 21.

At a recent meeting, the group approved a budget for the current year. The subject "Should Parents Help With Homework" was discussed.

Under the direction of Mrs. Robert Wilson, Fifth Grade mothers served the annual membership dinner to approximately 200.

Frederick Street Crossing May Open In Ten Days

The B. and O. crossing at Frederick Street should be open in the next ten days.

John Coleman, liaison engineer for the city on the flood control project, made the estimate in replying to a query from Commissioner of Police and Fire John J. Long at the council meeting yesterday morning.

Coleman said the work is involving replacing some trestles under the tracks.

County School Buses Found In Good Shape

The second inspection of school buses and cars in Allegany county this fall has been completed with the results showing no major defects, according to Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of bus transportation for the Allegany County Board of Education.

Ramey said there were no defects on any of the braking mechanisms of the 85 vehicles, and on 55 of the buses and cars there were no defects whatsoever.

The buses were checked by Ramey, David Davis, mechanic; and Marion J. Abbott, of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Defects discovered during the three-day inspection last week included one bus with a broken glass in a door, five buses with inadequate electrical connections, six buses without a full complement of accessories such as fire extinguishers, flares, first aid kits and other items; 11 with loose rods or king pins in the steering mechanism, six with defects in the exhaust pipe system, and one bus with a worn bearing on a rear axle which allowed grease to flow on the braking mechanism.

Ramey said the school operators have 10 days in which to correct defects discovered and that this work is underway now.

All buses which had defects will be re-inspected the first part of December.

Over 6,000 students are transported by school buses and cars in Allegany county. The regular inspection of vehicles is required by law, and the School Board keeps a close check on the vehicles and operators to determine that the utmost in safety is taken, Ramey declared.

One of the newest devices used in inspection of buses is a hydraulic jack which lifts the front end of the vehicle so the steering mechanism can be scrutinized carefully.

Burkett Faces New Charges In Fatal Shooting

A 31-year-old Kelly-Springfield Tire Company worker has been ordered held on two additional charges resulting from the fatal shooting of his estranged wife and the wounding of her mother September 12.

The defendant, Clarence Burkett, of Ellerslie, was given a preliminary hearing last week in Bedford, Pa., on counts of assault with intent to kill and violation of the Uniform Firearms Act. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Wilbert J. Shaffer, near Hyndman, Pa., was the complainant.

Burkett previously had been ordered to stand trial on a general charge of murdering his wife, Mrs. Myra Grace Burkett, 23.

Bond was set at $2,000 on the assault charge and $1,000 on the second count. However, he will be unable to leave Bedford county jail because the murder charge has no bail privilege.

Burkett surrendered to Maryland State Police Sgt. Harry Holsinger after the shooting at the Shaffer truck farm about one mile south of Hyndman. Three bullets from a .38 caliber pistol hit his wife and she died later in Memorial Hospital.

One bullet struck his mother-in-law's right arm while she grappled with him.

Mrs. Burkett was standing on a pickup truck, unloading wood, when her husband appeared and started shooting. They had been separated for some time.

Among those present at last week's hearing were Mrs. Shaffer, who was treated at Memorial Hospital after the shootings; Charles M. Koontz, district attorney of Bedford county, and Edward J. Ryan, defense counsel for Burkett.

Pennsylvania Trio Held In Theft

Three Pennsylvania youths are being held in Somerset county jail for allegedly stealing two tires and wheels valued at $40 from the farm of Elmer Schrock, Grantsville.

Authorities said the trio faces charges of transporting stolen articles into the state and selling them at Meyersdale. Following a preliminary hearing in Salisbury, each was held under $500 bond.

The trio includes Mahlon Thomas, 19, of Salisbury, and two 16-year-old boys. Thomas also is charged with violating two motor vehicle laws.

Maryland police lodged detainers against the youths after learning they reportedly have been hauling stolen merchandise from Garrett county to Somerset county for sale.

Majors Draft 17 Minor League Players

Eleven Clubs Pay $159,000 For Draftees

Cincinnati Selects Bill Bevens; Cubs, Browns Choose Three

BY JOE REICHLER

CINCINNATI, Nov. 19—(AP)—Eleven major league teams, seeking to strengthen their 1952 pennant chances, elected to gamble in the annual draft today by picking up 17 minor loop players at a cost of $159,000.

The selective player group, smallest in years, was headed by such 1951 standout performers as Outfielder George Schmees, No. 1 draft choice; Floyd (Bill) Bevens, former star pitcher of the New York Yankees, and Outfielder George Wilson, one time property of the Boston Red Sox.

Reds Get Bill Bevens

The best bargain of the entire lot may turn out to be Bevens, the 34-year-old righthander, drafted by the Cincinnati Reds. Bevens came within one out of pitching the only no-hitter in a world series. The six foot-two inch, 215 pound righthander never won another game in the big leagues after pinch hitter Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto slammed a double which not only ruined his bid for pitching fame but gave Brooklyn a 3-2 decision over him and the Yankees in the 1947 world series.

The 16 big league clubs may yet add to the list, since they have until midnight tomorrow (Tuesday) to post more claims. But even if they do add more names, it is unlikely that they will approach last year's figure of 28 draftees, which cost then $269,500. The record for expenditure was set in 1947, when 29 drawn represented an investment of $272,500.

The St. Louis Browns, awarded the first pick because of their last place American League finish, chose Schmees, a Brooklyn-owned flychaser from Montreal, who played for Hollywood last season and batted a robust .328, slammed 26 homers and drove in 126 runs.

Browns Pick Harrist

The Browns also plucked Earl Harrist, a veteran righthanded pitcher, with a 16-16 record at Oakland. Harrist previously had seen service with Chicago White Sox.

The Chicago Cubs, basement occupants of the National League, and the Cincinnati Reds, were the most active bargain basement shoppers. Each grabbed three prospects. The Cubs lifted Bill Hardin, a .260 hitting infielder from Rochester; Harvey Gentry, a .258 hitting outfielder from Ottawa, and righthander Tom Simpson, whose 8-6 won and lost record included a seven-inning no-hitter. The Reds, in addition to Bevens, also selected a couple of catchers, Joe Rossi (.304) from Portland and Henry Foiles from Kansas City. The latter spent the '51 season with Syracuse where he batted only .214.

Philadelphia's Phillies, only other club to draft more than one player chose Con Dempsey, former Pittsburgh righthander, from San Francisco, and Vernal (Nippy) Jones, veteran first baseman, from Houston. Dempsey, turned back by the Pirates last summer as unworthy of the $75,000 price tag placed on him, split 14 decisions with the Seals. Jones, recuperating from a spinal operation, had been released by the St. Louis Cardinals, with whom he batted .267 in 80 games.

Five Clubs Fail To Pick

Five clubs—Brooklyn, New York, Boston, St. Louis in the National League, and Cleveland in the American, did not make any draft selections. Cost of a Triple A draftee is $10,000, a Double A draftee $7,500, a Class A $6,000, Class B $4,000, Class C $2,500 and Class D $2,000.

The White Sox came up with the hard-hitting Wilson, a .325 hitter with Birmingham, for only $7,500. They tried to get him last season but considered the asking price of $40,000 too high.

Wilson, former Red Sox property, slugged 29 home runs and drove in 112 runs. Detroit's Tigers picked young Alex Garbowski, a good-field, no-hit shortstop from Seattle where he hit only .222. Washington added a pitcher, bespectacled southpaw Glenn Elliott, formerly with the Braves. Elliott has a 15-14 record at Sacramento.

The Athletics liked Kieth Thomas, a Syracuse outfielder who played at Kansas City last season, hitting .282 and driving in 81 runs. The Red Sox took Joe Bevan, a Hollywood infielder who did his playing for New Orleans where he compiled a .286 mark and drove in 68 tallies. The world champion Yankees added some infield insurance, acquiring Gene Mauch, a .304 utility infielder, from Milwaukee. The Pirates plucked Clement Koshorek, a pint-sized shortstop from Toledo. The 5 foot 6 Koshorek had a .261 mark at Little Rock.

LaSalle, Beall Elect Turkey Day Co-Captains

Co-Captains for LaSalle and Beall High School football teams have been selected to represent their squads in the annual Thanksgiving Day gridiron clash between the two elevens at Frostburg, Thursday.

Bobby Arnone, halfback and Marty Mullaney, quarterback, have been chosen to lead the Explorers as Coach Norman Geatz's stalwarts seek their third win in a row.

Harry Lennox, tackle and Paul Thompson, end, are Beall's selections for the Nov. 22 classic. Mullaney and Thompson are juniors.

Beagle Club Trial Sunday

35 Hounds Entered In Winners Stake

The Allegany Beagle Club will hold its annual Winners Stake Sunday, November 25, at the club grounds near Barton's Dairy, McMullen Highway, John R. Armstrong, secretary, announced last night.

Thirty-five hounds owned by 19 beaglers are eligible to compete in the event with winners in each class to receive trophies.

Hounds must have placed in one or more of the five Plan B trials held by the local club this year to be eligible for the stake event, Armstrong pointed out. All trials are American Kennell Club sanctioned trials.

Judges for the event Sunday will be Harry Poling, Hooversville, Pa., and Cope Betz, Sidman, Pa.

The 13-inch class will be drawn at 8 a. m. and the 15-inch class at 1 p. m., Armstrong said.

Eddie Arcaro Denies Giving Racing Tips

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (INS) — Jockey Eddie Arcaro today denied that he had supplied race tips which allegedly won $59,924 for a Vancouver, B. C., persian art dealer.

The dealer, Vahan Tashdjian, said Arcaro gave him tips in 1945, 1946 and 1947 which led to the earnings. The Canadian income tax board at Ottawa ruled Tashdpian owes back taxes because he is unable to prove he got the money from horse races.

Maryland Gets Two Berths On All-South Team

Modzelewski, Ward Make INS Eleven

By PAT J. McDONNELL

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 19. (INS)—A sparkling passer and three of the nation's outstanding runners combine with a bruising, aggressive forward wall today to compose the International News Service 1951 All-South football team.

Seven Dixie colleges are represented on the INS All-South first team, with six other schools contributing to the reserve squad.

Mighty, unbeaten Tennessee grabbed three spots while undefeated Maryland placed two men on the mythical team. Two positions went to Kentucky, one to South Carolina, Georgia, Georgia Tech, and Vanderbilt.

No coach could ever hope to play a team combing such talents. At quarterback is Vito "Babe" Parilli, master passer, holder of the new collegiate mark of 50 td heaves. Parilli made the first string INS All-Sec team in his sophomore year and repeated last year.

Sensational Hank Lauricella of Tennessee, one of football's few great triple-threat men in this day of specialization, holds down one halfback slot, while the other went to bulldozing Steve Wadiak, of South Carolina.

Completing the backfield is powerful Ed "Mighty Mo" Modzelewski, of Maryland, who has outgained combined opposing backs in five games this year.

The 1951 INS All-South team:

First Team	Pos
Harry Babcock, Georgia	End
Ben Roderick, Vanderbilt	End
Lamar Wheat, Georgia Tech	Tackle
Bill Pearman, Tennessee	Tackle

St. John's Floormen Rated Tops In East

NEW YORK, November 19—St. John's basketball team, led by Bob Zawoluk, will be the best team in the East this season, and should finish fifth in the national ratings, according to the "1951-52 Basketball Forecast" published in the issue of Look magazine just out.

In the Ivy League, Penn is rated tops, with Columbia's Lions rushing in as runners-up. Others, in order: Cornell, Yale, Princeton, Harvard and Dartmouth.

Tabbed the Big Five among Eastern Independents are St. John's, Holy Cross, Seton Hall, LaSalle and Villanova.

Here's how Look sees the top ten in the nation:

1—Kentucky
2—Illinois
3—Oklahoma A & M
4—Washington
5—St. John's
6—Kansas
7—St. Louis
8—North Carolina State
9—Wyoming
10—Holy Cross

Commenting on the basketball scandals, Look says: "Too many coaches of corrupt teams helped precipitate the mess by recruiting willy-nilly. They regarded only a boy's basketball ability . . . Whether the coaches have learned anything from the scandals remains to be seen."

But despite these exposures, Look reports "the big indoor sport appears headed for an enthusiastic season."

Penn Seeks End To Controlled TV

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19 (INS) — The University of Pennsylvania today requested the Eastern College Athletic Conference to end its "controlled television" program after the present season.

Francis T. Murray, Penn's director of athletics, said the one-year experiment of restricted television of football games has brought "widespread adverse public reaction."

Five Moorefield Gridders Selected On All-PVC Team

Ties Result In 18 Players Named

Eighteen players were selected to the Potomac Valley Conference all-star football team at the semi-annual meeting of the PVC at Old Homestead Hotel, Burlington, W. Va., last night.

The large number of selectees came as the result of ties in several positions with the coaches and selection committee waiving honorable mentions.

18 Players Named

Moorefield High's Yellowjackets, 1951 football champions, landed five gridders on the mythical eleven, while Romney High, West Virginia School for Deaf and Keyser each had three selections. Four other schools landed one player apiece.

All-star selections include:

Ends—Hugh Boyd, West Virginia School for Deaf; Gary Kerns, Berkeley Springs; James Hardy, Moorefield, Gerald Parker, Romney.

Tackles—Sam Brown, West Va. School for Deaf; Frank Sherman, Moorefield; Reeves Taylor, Keyser.

Guards — William Michaels, Keyser; John Crites, Franklin; John Waddy, Petersburg.

Center — Bernard Landis, Romney.

Backfield — Orville Payne, Romney; Merle Barr, Moorefield; Robert Myers, Moorefield; Tom Riggleman, Ridgeley; Bob Wilson, Moorefield Charles Tackett, West Va. School For Deaf; Joe Swisher, Keyser.

The league voted to award Moorefield a $20 trophy for the 1951 gridiron title and named Romney High's Pioneers as the 1951 baseball champs in the conference. The Pioneers were voted a $15 trophy.

Stanley Harris, principal of the West Virginia School for Deaf, made a plea for other conference members to give his school more league games on its football and basketball schedules.

Harris Seeks Games

Harris pointed out that previously the school had used older players but that it now was conforming with league eligibility rules. He cited the need for two additional games on next year's football slate and said he sought conference opponents.

Coach John Shelton, Keyser, made a motion to limit conference basketball games to 14 for each league team but the vote on the measure ended in a 7-7 stalemate among the 14 schools present. The conference then decided to study the proposal further and submit a report at the next meeting of the loop.

The league also voted to have two officials for all conference basketball games this season.

A Gordon Slonaker, principal of Romney High School, presided at the meeting which was attended by 27 persons. Fourteen of the 16 member schools were represented. Davis High and Berkeley Springs were the only absentees.

27 Attend Banquet

Attending the affair were Coaches Fred Clark, Keyser; William Miers, Piedmont; Earl Hess, Fort Ashby; John Shelton, Keyser; Allan Swick, Romney; Dick McElwee, Romney; Jesse Riggleman, Petersburg; Guy Propst, Circleville, Ralph Poling, Ridgeley; Bob Hartman, Franklin; Glenn H. Hawkins, West Va., School for Deaf; Wendel Mathias, Mathias; Ed Strauss, Capon Bridge; Charles Vance, Wardensville; Jonathan Paugh, Moorefield; Paul Kalbaugh, Elk Garden. Hess, Swick and Strauss are new coaches.

School principals were John Dice, Franklin; Slonaker; Thomas Sites, Petersburg; Harold Henderson, Capon Bridge; P. C. Black, Keyser; Harris; James Goldsworthy, Keyser assistant; John Mathias, Moorefield; and Frank Burgess, Elk Garden.

C. V. Burns, Cumberland NEWS and Clem Clower, Grant County Press, Petersburg, represented the press.

An invitation to the conference by John Mathias, Moorefield principal, to hold the next meeting at Moorefield was accepted by the league. Harris also extended an invitation for a future meeting to be held at the West Virginia School for Deaf.

CAPTAINS TURNED PRO

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—The last three captains of Duke University football teams—Billy Cox, Lou Allen and Al DeRogatis—are playing professional football. Cox plays with the Washington Redskins, Allen for the Piitsburgh Steelers and DeRogatis for the New York Giants.

Holman Denies Scholastic Charge

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (INS) — CCNY basketball coach Nat Holman branded as "absolutely untrue" tonight charges by Judge Saul Streit that scholastically deficient hoop stars gained eligibility at the New York School.

"The charges are shocking and completely unfounded," the coach declared. "I have been at City College 34 years and I can honestly say our intercollegiate athletic program never led us into lowering our scholastic standards."

Mountain Top, Cumberland Win Rifle Matches

No. 1 Team Edges Frostburg By Point

Standing Of The Teams

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cumberland	2	0	1.000
Mountain Top No. 1	2	0	1.000
Mountain Top No. 2	1	0	1.000
Fort Hill	1	0	1.000
LaVale	0	2	.000
Frostburg	0	2	.000
Avilton	0	2	.000

Cumberland's riflemen defeated LaVale Sunday at Bowman's Addition for their second victory in the Western Maryland Rifle League's second indoor rifle match. The Queen City crew trounced the LaVale gunners, 1117 to 1094.

Also victorious Sunday were Mountain Top No. 1 and No. 2 teams. The No. 1 group edged Frostburg by a single point, 1112 to 1111 in the closest match of the day on the Avilton club's range in Grantsville. Also shooting on the Avilton range, the No. 2 club downed Avilton 1040 to 1012 for its first victory.

Paul Nycum's 285 led the way for the Cumberland gunners while Bill Whitson paced the opposition with 286 for LaVale. Ed Michael was high for No. 1 Mountain Top team, scoring 285. Frostburg's Arthur S. Hoffa garnered the best for the losers with 282. The Mountain Top No. 2 team had Art Calhoun as high man with 267 points. Avilton's Guy Hardesty rated best for his team with 264.

Fort Hill's gunners were idle. The scores:

NEW YORK (AP) — Except for Brooklyn Clem Labine's shutout over the Giants in the second playoff game the last pitcher to beat the Giants during the National League season was Cincinnati's Ken Raffensberger.

Kentucky Gets Invitation To Cotton Bowl

Wildcats Accept; To Play Southwest Conference Champs

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Nov. 19 (AP)—Colorful Kentucky today accepted an invitation to play whatever team the Southwest Conference puts in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1.

Kenucky, famed for winning the Sugar Bowl last Jan. 1 when it stopped Oklahoma's mightiest winning streak in college football and boasting one of the greatest passers to come along in Babe Parilli, got the invitation with still a game to play on the schedule—with mighty Tennessee next Saturday.

Just who Kentucky will meet in the $120,000 (per team) gridiron extravanga in Dallas won't be known for two weeks. The Southwest Conference, whose champion is host team, has five teams still in the running for the title or a share of it. Texas Christian, Rice, Baylor and Texas still can win it and Southern Methodist can tie for it.

Kentucky already has played one of those teams—Texas—and lost 7-6.

The Wildcats' record for the season is seven victories in 10 starts but all the defeats were by close scores—6 to 7 to Texas, 17 to 21 to Mississippi and 7 to 13 to Georgia Tech. Kentucky has beaten Tennessee Tech, Mississippi State, Villanova, Florida, Miami, Tulane and George Washington.

The Wildcats were brought to the Cotton Bowl under much the same circumstances as Tennessee last Jan. 1. At the time Tennessee was picked, it had a game with Kentucky to play. It won that one and made the Cotton Bowl look good.

Now, the Cotton Bowl undoubtedly would welcome with great joy a victory by Kentucky over Tennessee Saturday. Tennessee already is in the Sugar Bowl.

The selection of Kentucky today was something of a surprise. It had been indicated there would be at least a week's lapse before any team was picked when the Cotton Bowl selection committee met yesterday.

Western Maryland Refuses Bowl Bids

WESTMINSTER, Md., Nov. 19 (AP) —Western Maryland College's athletic council decided today that for the good of the players it will not consider any post-season games for its undefeated football team.

Western Maryland won eight games, outscoring the opposition 184 to 65, for its first unbeaten, untied season since 1929. Coach Charley Havens was captain of the '29 team.

The athletic council said it had feelers from a couple of small bowls but decided not to accept any "this year in consideration of the members of the team."

Stagg To Be Feted

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP) — Venerable Amos Alonzo Stagg, Sr., one of the all-time greats of football coaching, will be honored twice here tomorrow.

Stagg and his wife will be guests of the Washington Touchdown Club at a noon luncheon and of the University of Chicago Alumni Association tomorrow evening.

Fort Hill Holds Statistics Edge For Annual Clash With Allegany

Sentinels Are Favored By Touchdown Margin

BY JOHN W. KNOWLTON

Statistic-wise, the Fort Hill Sentinels will enter the annual Turkey Day classic with Allegany Thursday at least a one-touchdown favorite, and record-wise appear to be headed for their sixth straight city championship under the guidance of Coach Bill Hahn. The Sentinels shared the title in 1948 with the Campers.

Comparative scores give Fort Hill all the best of the odds as the two teams prepare to meet for the 16th time on the Thanksgiving Day battlefield. The Hahnmen, with a record of seven victories in eight starts defeated Hagerstown 20-7, LaSalle 40-0, Ridgeley 41-0, and Martinsburg 28-0.

Alco Holds Passing Edge

Against those same four teams Allegany didn't fare quite so well. The Campers walloped Ridgeley 52-0 and LaSalle 32-2, but tied Martinsburg 12-12 and lost to Hagerstown 19-0. Coach Bob Pence's Alco eleven has won five, lost three and tied one.

STATISTICS AT A GLANCE

Fort Hill		Allegany
2,175	Yds. Gained Rushing	1,576
109	First Downs	100
48	Passes Attempted	90
18	Passes Completed	34
419	Yds. Gained Passes	536
2,175	Yds. Gained Rushing	1,576
90	Yds. Lost Rushing	150
2,085	Total Net Yds. Rushing	1,426
2,494	Total Net Yds. Gained	1,964
8	Number Of Games	9
229	Total Points Scored	197
27	Av. Points Per Game	21

In eight games this season Fort Hill has rolled up 109 first downs, attempted 48 passes, completing 18 for 419 yards and gained 2,085 yards rushing for an average total net gain of 312 yards per game. Fort Hill actually picked up 2,175 yards rushing, an average of 272 per contest, but lost 90 yards from scrimmage The Hahnmen's pass completion average was .375 for an average gain of 52 yards per game.

Allegany, on the other hand, has picked up 100 first downs in nine contests, attempted 90 passes, completing 34 for 536 yards while gaining 1,426 yards rushing, an average total net gain of 218 per game. The Campers grossed 1,576 yards from scrimmage on the ground, an average gain of 175 yards per tilt, but lost 150. Allegany's passing average is .377, two points higher than Fort Hill's, for an average gain through the air of 59 yards per game.

The Sentinels have scored in 48 straight ball games and only once this season were held to less than three touchdowns in a single game, that in their 14-13 loss to Linsly Institute of Wheeling, W. Va.

Blanked Three Times

Noteworthy, also, is the fact that only once in eight games did the Hahnmen fail to garner at least 200 yards rushing, twice going over the 300 yard mark. Allegany, on the other hand, went over the 200 yards gained figure twice and was held to less than 100 yards gained in another contest. However, Allegany's passing edge makes up partially for its rushing deficiency, cutting the Sentinels' margin in yards gained rushing and passing to 94 per game.

Although blanked three times this year, Allegany garnered 197 points in nine contests for an average of 21 per game, enough to show that the Blue and White has a potential scoring threat which could cause Fort Hill a good bit of trouble. Fort Hill has tallied 220 points in eight games, averaging 27 per tilt.

Judge Attacks College Sports

Committee Meets To Study Problem

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP) — Seven college presidents agreed today that "something has to be done" to remove whatever evils there are in the intercollegiate athletic program.

The college presidents are members of a special committee set up by the American Council on Education—the first time in history such a high ranking group ever was named to look into sports.

Ironically, their meeting began here almost at the very moment that five former college basketball players were being sentenced to jail in New York on bribery charges.

And the presiding Judge, Samuel S. Streit, in a blast at "trickery, devices, frauds and forgery" used to bring in—and keep—star athletes, said:

"The responsibility for the sports scandal must be shared not only by the crooked fixers and the corrupt players, but also by the college administrations . . ."

The college presidents met behind closed doors with sports writers and athletic commissioners. Their views were given in new conferences held by the committee chairman, Dr. John A. Hannah of Michigan State College.

There was no direct comment on the judge's statement.

But even before he had heard of Streit's blast, Hannah told reporters:

"We realize we must be responsible for the total operation of the university. We have a real concern in the protection of the integrity in higher education."

Kazmaier Named Best

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19 (INS)—The Maxwell Club today named Dick Kazmaier, Princeton tailback, as the college football player of the year. The award will be made Jan. 7 at the club's 14th annual dinner.

Beightol Case Cited In Blast At Terp Football

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—Judge Samuel S. Streit, in criticizing college football as a sordid big business, said this in reference to the University of Maryland:

"At Maryland, we find Lynn Beightol, the most publicized player in the history of Cumberland. Famous coaches visited Beightol, the Governor of Kentucky wrote to him but Maryland got its football man. On the present squad of 97, 42 are from Pennsylvania, 10 from New York, five from New Jersey and three from Rhode Island."

Asked to comment on the statement, Geary Eppley, dean of men and chairman of the athletic council, said:

"I haven't checked it but that probably is a fact. It is generally true that schools everywhere draw football players from Pennsylvania and elsewhere.

"We have always had quite a few from out of the state. Probably not so many as we now have but the bulk of our students from outside of Maryland and the District of Columbia come from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

Majors Draft 17 Minor League Players

Eleven Clubs Pay $159,000 For Draftees

BY JOE REICHLER

CINCINNATI, Nov. 19—(AP)—Eleven major league teams, seeking to strengthen their 1952 pennant chances, elected to gamble in the annual draft today by picking up 17 minor loop players at a cost of $159,000.

The selective player group, smallest in years, was headed by such 1951 standout performers as Outfielder George Schmees, No. 1 draft choice; Floyd (Bill) Bevens, former star pitcher of the New York Yankees, and Outfielder George Wilson, one time property of the Boston Red Sox.

Reds Get Bill Bevens

The best bargain of the entire lot may turn out to be Bevens, the 34-year-old righthander, drafted by the Cincinnati Reds. Bevens came within one out of pitching the only no-hitter in a world series. The six foot-two inch, 215 pound righthander never won another game in the big leagues after pinch hitter Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto slammed a double which not only ruined his bid for pitching fame but gave Brooklyn a 3-2 decision over him and the Yankees in the 1947 world series.

The 16 big league clubs may yet add to the list, since they have until midnight tomorrow (Tuesday) to post more claims. But even if they do add more names, it is unlikely that they will approach last year's figure of 28 draftees, which cost then $269,500. The record for expenditure was set in 1947, when 29 drawn represented an investment of $272,500.

The St. Louis Browns, awarded the first pick because of their last place American League finish, chose Schmees, a Brooklyn-owned flychaser from Montreal, who played for Hollywood last season and batted a robust .328, slammed 26 homers and drove in 126 runs.

Browns Pick Harrist

The Browns also plucked Earl Harrist, a veteran righthanded pitcher, with a 16-16 record at Oakland. Harrist previously had seen service with Chicago White Sox.

The Chicago Cubs, basement occupants of the National League, and the Cincinnati Reds, were the most active bargain basement shoppers. Each grabbed three prospects. The Cubs lifted Bill Hardin, a .260 hitting infielder from Rochester; Harvey Gentry, a .258 hitting outfielder from Ottawa, and righthander Tom Simpson, whose 8-6 won and lost record included a seven-inning no-hitter. The Reds, in addition to Bevens, also selected a couple of catchers, Joe Rossi (.304) from Portland and Henry Foiles from Kansas City. The latter spent the '51 season with Syracuse where he batted only .214.

Philadelphia's Phillies, only other club to draft more than one player chose Con Dempsey, former Pittsburgh righthander, from San Francisco, and Vernal (Nippy) Jones, veteran first baseman, from Houston. Dempsey, turned back by the Pirates last summer as unworthy of the $75,000 price tag placed on him, split 14 decisions with the Seals. Jones, recuperating from a spinal operation, had been released by the St. Louis Cardinals, with whom he batted .267 in 80 games.

Five Clubs Fail To Pick

Five clubs—Brooklyn, New York, Boston, St. Louis in the National League, and Cleveland in the American, did not make any draft selections. Cost of a Triple A draftee is $10,000, a Double A draftee $7,500, a Class A $6,000, Class B $4,000, Class C $2,500 and Class D $2,000.

The White Sox came up with the hard-hitting Wilson, a .325 hitter with Birmingham, for only $7,500. They tried to get him last season but considered the asking price of $40,000 too high.

Wilson, former Red Sox property, slugged 29 home runs and drove in 112 runs. Detroit's Tigers picked young Alex Garbowski, a good-field, no-hit shortstop from Seattle where he hit only .222. Washington added a pitcher, bespectacled southpaw Glenn Elliott, formerly with the Braves. Elliott has a 15-14 record at Sacramento.

The Athletics liked Kieth Thomas, a Syracuse outfielder who played at Kansas City last season, hitting .282 and driving in 81 runs. The Red Sox took Joe Bevan, a Hollywood infielder who did his playing for New Orleans where he compiled a .286 mark and drove in 68 tallies. The world champion Yankees added some infield insurance, acquiring Gene Mauch, a .304 utility infielder, from Milwaukee. The Pirates plucked Clement Koshorek, a pint-sized shortstop from Toledo. The 5 foot 6 Koshorek had a .261 mark at Little Rock.

LaSalle, Beall Elect Turkey Day Co-Captains

Co-Captains for LaSalle and Beall High School football teams have been selected to represent their squads in the annual Thanksgiving Day gridiron clash between the two elevens at Frostburg, Thursday.

Bobby Arnone, halfback and Marty Mullaney, quarterback, have been chosen to lead the Explorers as Coach Norman Geatz's stalwarts seek their third win in a row.

Harry Lennox, tackle and Paul Thompson, end, are Beall's selections for the Nov. 22 classic. Mullaney and Thompson are juniors.

Beagle Club Trial Sunday

35 Hounds Entered In Winners Stake

The Allegany Beagle Club will hold its annual Winners Stake Sunday, November 25, at the club grounds near Barton's Dairy, McMullen Highway, John R. Armstrong, secretary, announced last night.

Thirty-five hounds owned by 19 beaglers are eligible to compete in the event with winners in each class to receive trophies.

Hounds must have placed in one or more of the five Plan B trials held by the local club this year to be eligible for the stake event, Armstrong pointed out. All trials are American Kennell Club sanctioned trials.

Judges for the event Sunday will be Harry Poling, Hooversville, Pa., and Cope Betz, Sidman, Pa.

The 13-inch class will be drawn at 8 a. m. and the 15-inch class at 1 p. m., Armstrong said.

Eddie Arcaro Denies Giving Racing Tips

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (INS) — Jockey Eddie Arcaro today denied that he had supplied race tips which allegedly won $59,924 for a Vancouver, B. C., persian art dealer.

The dealer, Vahan Tashdjian, said Arcaro gave him tips in 1945, 1946 and 1947 which led to the earnings. The Canadian income tax board at Ottawa ruled Tashdpian owes back taxes because he is unable to prove he got the money from horse races.

Maryland Gets Two Berths On All-South Team

By PAT J. McDONNELL

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 19. (INS)—A sparkling passer and three of the nation's outstanding runners combine with a bruising, aggressive forward wall today to compose the International News Service 1951 All-South football team.

Seven Dixie colleges are represented on the INS All-South first team, with six other schools contributing to the reserve squad.

Mighty, unbeaten Tennessee grabbed three spots while undefeated Maryland placed two men on the mythical team, Two positions went to Kentucky, one to South Carolina, Georgia, Georgia Tech, and Vanderbilt.

No coach could ever hope to play a team combing such talents. At quarterback is Vito "Babe" Parilli, master passer, holder of the new collegiate mark of 50 td heaves. Parilli made the first string INS All-Sec team in his sophomore year and repeated last year.

Sensational Hank Lauricella of Tennessee, one of football's few great triple-threat men in this day of specialization, holds down one halfback slot, while the other went to bulldozing Steve Wadiak, of South Carolina.

Completing the backfield is powerful Ed "Mighty Mo" Modzelewski, of Maryland, who has outgained combined opposing backs in five games this year.

The 1951 INS All-South team:

First Team	Pos
Harry Babcock, Georgia	End
Ben Roderick, Vanderbilt	End
Lamar Wheat, Georgia Tech	Tackle
Bill Pearman, Tennessee	Tackle
Bob Ward, Maryland	Guard
Ted Daffer, Tennessee	Guard
Doug Mosley, Kentucky	Center
Vito Parilli, Kentucky	QB
Steve Wadiak, South Carolina	HB
Hank Lauricella, Tennessee	HB
Ed Hodzelewski, Maryland	FB

Second Team	Pos.
Ed Lutz, Alabama	End
Ed Bullard, LSU	End
Marion Campbell, Georgia	Tackle
Charlie La Pradd, Florida	Tackle
Ray Beck, Ga. Tech	Guard
Ray Arcangeletti, Miami	Guard

St. John's Floormen Rated Tops In East

NEW YORK, November 19—St. John's basketball team, led by Bob Zawoluk, will be the best team in the East this season, and should finish fifth in the national ratings, according to the "1951-52 Basketball Forecast" published in the issue of Look magazine just out.

In the Ivy League, Penn is rated tops, with Columbia's Lions rushing in as runners-up. Others, in order: Cornell, Yale, Princeton, Harvard and Dartmouth.

Tabbed the Big Five among Eastern Independents are St. John's, Holy Cross, Seton Hall, LaSalle and Villanova.

Here's how Look sees the top ten in the nation:

1—Kentucky
2—Illinois
3—Oklahoma A & M
4—Washington
5—St. John's
6—Kansas
7—St. Louis
8—North Carolina State
9—Wyoming
10—Holy Cross

Commenting on the basketball scandals, Look says: "Too many coaches of corrupt teams helped precipitate the mess by recruiting willy-nilly. They regarded only a boy's basketball ability . . . Whether the coaches have learned anything from the scandals remains to be seen."

But despite these exposures, Look reports "the big indoor sport appears headed for an enthusiastic season."

Penn Seeks End To Controlled TV

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19 (INS) — The University of Pennsylvania today requested the Eastern College Athletic Conference to end its "controlled television" program after the present season.

Francis T. Murray, Penn's director of athletics, said the one-year experiment of restricted television of football games has brought "widespread adverse public reaction."

Five Moorefield Gridders Selected On All-PVC Team

Ties Result In 18 Players Named

Eighteen players were selected to the Potomac Valley Conference all-star football team at the semi-annual meeting of the PVC at Old Homestead Hotel, Burlington, W. Va., last night.

The large number of selectees came as the result of ties in several positions with the coaches and selection committee waiving honorable mentions.

18 Players Named

Moorefield High's Yellowjackets, 1951 football champions, landed five gridders on the mythical eleven, while Romney High, West Virginia School for Deaf and Keyser each had three selections. Four other schools landed one player apiece.

All-star selections include:

Ends—Hugh Boyd, West Virginia School for Deaf; Gary Kerns, Berkeley Springs; James Hardy, Moorefield, Gerald Parker, Romney.

Tackles—Sam Brown, West Va. School for Deaf; Frank Sherman, Moorefield; Reeves Taylor, Keyser.

Guards — William Michaels, Keyser; John Crites, Franklin; John Waddy, Petersburg.

Center — Bernard Landis, Romney.

Backfield — Orville Payne, Romney; Merle Barr, Moorefield; Robert Myers, Moorefield; Tom Riggleman, Ridgeley; Bob Wilson, Moorefield Charles Tackett, West Va. School For Deaf; Joe Swisher, Keyser.

The league voted to award Moorefield a $20 trophy for the 1951 gridiron title and named Romney High's Pioneers as the 1951 baseball champs in the conference. The Pioneers were voted a $15 trophy.

Stanley Harris, principal of the West Virginia School for Deaf, made a plea for other conference members to give his school more league games on its football and basketball schedules.

Harris Seeks Games

Harris pointed out that previously the school had used older players but that it now was conforming with league eligibility rules. He cited the need for two additional games on next year's football slate and said he sought conference opponents.

Coach John Shelton, Keyser, made a motion to limit conference basketball games to 14 for each league team but the vote on the measure ended in a 7-7 stalemate among the 14 schools present. The conference then decided to study the proposal further and submit a report at the next meeting of the loop.

The league also voted to have two officials for all conference basketball games this season.

A Gordon Slonaker, principal of Romney High School, presided at the meeting which was attended by 27 persons. Fourteen of the 16 member schools were represented. Davis High and Berkeley Springs were the only absentees.

27 Attend Banquet

Attending the affair were Coaches Fred Clark, Keyser; William Miers, Piedmont; Earl Hess, Fort Ashby; John Shelton, Keyser; Allan Swick, Romney; Dick McElwee, Romney; Jesse Riggleman, Petersburg; Guy Propst, Circleville, Ralph Poling, Ridgeley; Bob Hartman, Franklin; Glenn H. Hawkins, West Va., School for Deaf; Wendel Mathias, Mathias; Ed Strauss, Capon Bridge; Charles Vance, Wardensville; Jonathan Paugh, Moorefield; Paul Kalbaugh, Elk Garden. Hess, Swick and Strauss are new coaches.

School principals were John Dice, Franklin; Slonaker; Thomas Sites, Petersburg; Harold Henderson, Capon Bridge; P. C. Black, Keyser; Harris; James Goldsworthy, Keyser assistant; John Mathias, Moorefield; and Frank Burgess, Elk Garden.

C. V. Burns, Cumberland NEWS and Clem Clower, Grant County Press, Petersburg, represented the press.

An invitation to the conference by John Mathias, Moorefield principal, to hold the next meeting at Moorefield was accepted by the league. Harris also extended an invitation for a future meeting to be held at the West Virginia School for Deaf.

CAPTAINS TURNED PRO

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—The last three captains of Duke University football teams—Billy Cox, Lou Allen and Al DeRogatis—are playing professional football. Cox plays with the Washington Redskins, Allen for the Piitsburgh Steelers and DeRogatis for the New York Giants.

Holman Denies Scholastic Charge

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (INS) — CCNY basketball coach Nat Holman branded as "absolutely untrue" tonight charges by Judge Saul Streit that scholastically deficient hoop stars gained eligibility at the New York School.

"The charges are shocking and completely unfounded," the coach declared. "I have been at City College 34 years and I can honestly say our intercollegiate athletic program never led us into lowering our scholastic standards."

Mountain Top, Cumberland Win Rifle Matches

No. 1 Team Edges Frostburg By Point

Standing Of The Teams

Fort Hill	1	0	1.000
LaVale	0	2	.000
Frostburg	0	2	.000
Avilton	0	2	.000

Cumberland's riflemen defeated LaVale Sunday at Bowman's Addition for their second victory in the Western Maryland Rifle League's second indoor rifle match. The Queen City crew trounced the LaVale gunners, 1117 to 1094.

Also victorious Sunday were Mountain Top No. 1 and No. 2 teams. The No. 1 group edged Frostburg by a single point, 1112 to 1111 in the closest match of the day on the Avilton club's range in Grantsville. Also shooting on the Avilton range, the No. 2 club downed Avilton 1040 to 1012 for its first victory.

Paul Nycum's 285 led the way for the Cumberland gunners while Bill Whitson paced the opposition with 286 for LaVale. Ed Michael was high for No. 1 Mountain Top team, scoring 285. Frostburg's Arthur S. Hoffa garnered the best for the losers with 282. The Mountain Top No. 2 team had Art Calhoun as high man with 267 points. Avilton's Guy Hardesty rated best for his team with 264.

Fort Hill's gunners were idle. The scores:

RAFFY BEAT GIANTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Except for Brooklyn Clem Labine's shutout over the Giants in the second playoff game the last pitcher to beat the Giants during the National League season was Cincinnati's Ken Raffensberger.

Kentucky Gets Invitation To Cotton Bowl

Wildcats Accept; To Play Southwest Conference Champs

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Nov. 19 (AP)—Colorful Kentucky today accepted an invitation to play whatever team the Southwest Conference puts in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1.

Kenucky, famed for winning the Sugar Bowl last Jan. 1 when it stopped Oklahoma's mightiest winning streak in college football and boasting one of the greatest passers to come along in Babe Parilli, got the invitation with still a game to play on the schedule—with mighty Tennessee next Saturday.

Just who Kentucky will meet in the $120,000 (per team) gridiron extravanga in Dallas won't be known for two weeks. The Southwest Conference, whose champion is host team, has five teams still in the running for the title or a share of it. Texas Christian, Rice, Baylor and Texas still can win it and Southern Methodist can tie for it.

Kentucky already has played one of those teams—Texas—and lost 7-6.

The Wildcats' record for the season is seven victories in 10 starts but all the defeats were by close scores—6 to 7 to Texas, 17 to 21 to Mississippi and 7 to 13 to Georgia Tech. Kentucky has beaten Tennessee Tech, Mississippi State, Villanova, Florida, Miami, Tulane and George Washington.

The Wildcats were brought to the Cotton Bowl under much the same circumstances as Tennessee last Jan. 1. At the time Tennessee was picked, it had a game with Kentucky to play. It won that one and made the Cotton Bowl look good.

Now, the Cotton Bowl undoubtedly would welcome with great joy a victory by Kentucky over Tennessee Saturday. Tennessee already is in the Sugar Bowl.

The selection of Kentucky today was something of a surprise. It had been indicated there would be at least a week's lapse before any team was picked when the Cotton Bowl selection committee met yesterday.

Western Maryland Refuses Bowl Bids

WESTMINSTER, Md., Nov. 19 (AP) —Western Maryland College's athletic council decided today that for the good of the players it will not consider any post-season games for its undefeated football team.

Western Maryland won eight games, outscoring the opposition 184 to 65, for its first unbeaten, untied season since 1929. Coach Charley Havens was captain of the '29 team.

The athletic council said it had feelers from a couple of small bowls but decided not to accept any "this year in consideration of the members of the team."

Stagg To Be Feted

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP) — Venerable Amos Alonzo Stagg, Sr., one of the all-time greats of football coaching, will be honored twice here tomorrow.

Stagg and his wife will be guests of the Washington Touchdown Club at a noon luncheon and of the University of Chicago Alumni Association tomorrow evening.

Fort Hill Holds Statistics Edge For Annual Clash With Allegany

Beightol Case Cited In Blast At Terp Football

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—Judge Samuel S. Streit, in criticizing college football as a sordid big business, said this in reference to the University of Maryland:

"At Maryland, we find Lynn Beightol, the most publicized player in the history of Cumberland. Famous coaches visited Beightol, the Governor of Kentucky wrote to him but Maryland got its football man. On the present squad of 97, 42 are from Pennsylvania, 10 from New York, five from New Jersey and three from Rhode Island."

Asked to comment on the statement, Geary Eppley, dean of men and chairman of the athletic council, said:

"I haven't checked it but that probably is a fact. It is generally true that schools everywhere draw football players from Pennsylvania and elsewhere.

"We have always had quite a few from out of the state. Probably not so many as we now have but the bulk of our students from outside of Maryland and the District of Columbia come from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

Judge Attacks College Sports

Committee Meets To Study Problem

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP) — Seven college presidents agreed today that "something has to be done" to remove whatever evils there are in the intercollegiate athletic program.

The college presidents are members of a special committee set up by the American Council on Education—the first time in history such a high ranking group ever was named to look into sports.

Ironically, their meeting began here almost at the very moment that five former college basketball players were being sentenced to jail in New York on bribery charges.

And the presiding Judge, Samuel S. Streit, in a blast at "trickery, devices, frauds and forgery" used to bring in—and keep—star athletes, said:

"The responsibility for the sports scandal must be shared not only by the crooked fixers and the corrupt players, but also by the college administrations . . ."

The college presidents met behind closed doors with sports writers and athletic commissioners. Their views were given in new conferences held by the committee chairman, Dr. John A. Hannah of Michigan State College.

There was no direct comment on the judge's statement.

But even before he had heard of Streit's blast, Hannah told reporters:

"We realize we must be responsible for the total operation of the university. We have a real concern in the protection of the integrity in higher education."

Kazmaier Named Best

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19 (INS)—The Maxwell Club today named Dick Kazmaier, Princeton tailback, as the college football player of the year. The award will be made Jan. 7 at the club's 14th annual dinner.

Sentinels Are Favored By Touchdown Margin

BY JOHN W. KNOWLTON

Statistic-wise, the Fort Hill Sentinels will enter the annual Turkey Day classic with Allegany Thursday at least a one-touchdown favorite, and record-wise appear to be headed for their sixth straight city championship under the guidance of Coach Bill Hahn. The Sentinels shared the title in 1948 with the Campers.

Comparative scores give Fort Hill all the best of the odds as the two teams prepare to meet for the 16th time on the Thanksgiving Day battlefield. The Hahnmen, with a record of seven victories in eight starts defeated Hagerstown 20-7, LaSalle 40-0, Ridgeley 41-0, and Martinsburg 28-0.

Alco Holds Passing Edge

Against those same four teams Allegany didn't fare quite so well. The Campers walloped Ridgeley 52-0 and LaSalle 32-2, but tied Martinsburg 12-12 and lost to Hagerstown 19-0. Coach Bob Pence's Alco eleven has won five, lost three and tied one.

STATISTICS AT A GLANCE

Fort Hill		Allegany
2,175	Yds. Gained Rushing	1,576
109	First Downs	100
48	Passes Attempted	90
18	Passes Completed	34
419	Yds. Gained Passes	536
2,175	Yds. Gained Rushing	1,576
90	Yds. Lost Rushing	150
2,085	Total Net Yds. Rushing	1,426
2,494	Total Net Yds. Gained	1,964
8	Number Of Games	9
220	Total Points Scored	197
27	Av. Points Per Game	21

In eight games this season Fort Hill has rolled up 109 first downs, attempted 48 passes, completing 18 for 419 yards and gained 2,085 yards rushing for an average total net gain of 312 yards per game. Fort Hill actually picked up 2,175 yards rushing, an average of 272 per contest, but lost 90 yards from scrimmage The Hahnmen's pass completion average was .375 for an average gain of 52 yards per game.

Allegany, on the other hand, has picked up 100 first downs in nine contests, attempted 90 passes, completing 34 for 536 yards while gaining 1,426 yards rushing, an average total net gain of 218 per game. The Campers grossed 1,576 yards from scrimmage on the ground, an average gain of 175 yards per tilt, but lost 150. Allegany's passing average is .377, two points higher than Fort Hill's, for an average gain through the air of 59 yards per game.

The Sentinels have scored in 48 straight ball games and only once this season were held to less than three touchdowns in a single game, that in their 14-13 loss to Linsly Institute of Wheeling, W. Va.

Blanked Three Times

Noteworthy, also, is the fact that only once in eight games did the Hahnmen fail to garner at least 200 yards rushing, twice going over the 300 yard mark. Allegany, on the other hand, went over the 200 yards gained figure twice and was held to less than 100 yards gained in another contest. However, Allegany's passing edge makes up partially for its rushing deficiency, cutting the Sentinels' margin in yards gained rushing and passing to 94 per game.

Although blanked three times this year, Allegany garnered 197 points in nine contests for an average of 21 per game, enough to show that the Blue and White has a potential scoring threat which could cause Fort Hill a good bit of trouble. Fort Hill has tallied 220 points in eight games, averaging 27 per tilt.

6,321 Fans Brave Cold Wind At Track

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 19—Surviving a bitter-cold wind, a crowd of 6,321 fans was on hand here today as J. J. McCarthy's Ginger Boots gained an easy 2¼ length decision over Oriole in the Stymie Purse.

The winner, ridden by Bobby Permane, returned $10.20 straight while turning the mile and a sixteenth in 1.48 2/5.

Oriole, 5-to-2 favorite, rallied well from last place in the final quarter-mile but was no threat to the winner, although outfinishing King Mowlee for second money.

Seven League set the early pace, leading to the final turn where he was displaced by the rail-running Ginger Boots. The latter moved to the front in effortless fashion and was never in further trouble.

King Mowlee went through the same opening to gain second place in early stretch, but he was not able to turn back the rally of the fast-closing Oriole.

Biggest price winner on the program was J. B. Rosen's Let's Buz who led all the way in the six-furlong sixth race, returning $63.20 straight. The 3-year-old gelding, ridden by Jerry Parenti, was six lengths to the good of Pal's Dream at the finish, while King Bud was a length and a half farther back in third position.

SAY, MISTER— Reasons don't interest me--My taste knows this is ONE SWELL BEER

but if YOU want the reason for OLD EXPORT'S popularity--here it is--

MOUNTAIN WATER MAKES THE DIFFERENCE

Of course, there's a reason for everything. All right then—Why is Cumberland's OLD EXPORT so popular, why do people swear by its flavor? Of course, OLD EXPORT uses the best malt, hops, yeast that money can buy—but so do many beers. Of course, OLD EXPORT is slowly, carefully, expertly brewed and aged—but so are other beers—

But did you know this? Beer is 87% water, yes—all beer is! It's mountain water that makes OLD EXPORT a flavor stand-out. It's mountain water that has made OLD EXPORT a favorite for generations. So there's your reason—mountain water makes the difference!

Ginger Boots Bowie Victor

6,321 Fans Brave Cold Wind At Track

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 19—Surviving a bitter-cold wind, a crowd of 6,321 fans was on hand here today as J. J. McCarthy's Ginger Boots gained an easy 2¼ length decision over Oriole in the Stymie Purse.

The winner, ridden by Bobby Permane, returned $10.20 straight while turning the mile and a sixteenth in 1.48 2/5.

Oriole, 5-to-2 favorite, rallied well from last place in the final quarter-mile but was no threat to the winner, although outfinishing King Mowlee for second money.

Seven League set the early pace, leading to the final turn where he was displaced by the rail-running Ginger Boots. The latter moved to the front in effortless fashion and was never in further trouble.

King Mowlee went through the same opening to gain second place in early stretch, but he was not able to turn back the rally of the fast-closing Oriole.

Biggest price winner on the program was J. B. Rosen's Let's Buz who led all the way in the six-furlong sixth race, returning $63.20 straight. The 3-year-old gelding, ridden by Jerry Parenti, was six lengths to the good of Pal's Dream at the finish, while King Bud was a length and a half farther back in third position.

Here's good news for the husband who likes pie with his lunch. There's a new wedge-shaped plastic container on the market that makes it easy to pack and carry a cut of pie in the lunchbox. Good "lunchbox" pies at this season are apple, blueberry, pumpkin, mincemeat and cherry. Whether home or bakery baked, wedges of luscious pie make a welcome addition to lunchbox meals. You'll want to use the pie container for fall outings and picnics, too.

Education Week Is Marked At Area School

Frostburg Observes Annual Affair

FROSTBURG—American Education Week was observed at Hill Street School last week.

John F. Manley, principal, stated that the week's program opened with a special meeting Monday evening, when homeroom mothers were guests. The theme of the meeting was "Faith in God."

Those attending also listened to a radio address by Kenneth Malcolm, president of the Allegany County Board of Education.

On Tuesday morning children of the intermediate grades participated in program about children's activities in the class room. On Tuesday afternoon the primary grades held a similar program.

Wednesday morning Rev. John Bayley Jones addressed the intermediate group on "Your Role in the World Today."

Thursday was designated as visitor's day. Parents observed classroom work from 1 to 2:30 p. m., after which they had a get-together in the auditorium. The topic "Understanding Your School and the Value of School Records" was presented by Manley. This was followed by the movie "Who Will Teach Your Child."

After the picture and discussion the teachers, assisted by homeroom mothers, entertained the parents with a tea. Friday, a radio skit was presented by the sixth grade presenting a series of activities on "Appreciating Our Freedoms." A program depicting the writing of the "Star Spangled Banner" was given.

Area Eastern Star Entertains

WESTERNPORT — Bethlehem Chapter No. 14, Order of the Eastern Star, entertained the Past Matrons and Past Patrons Association of Western Maryland at their regular meeting Friday in the Odd Fellow's Hall.

Mrs. Clara Shank, Mt. Savage, and Ervin Martin, president and vice president respectively were the guests of honor.

Each guest was present with a gift the ladies receiving corsages and the men boutonnieres.

A ceremony, "Threads of Sunshine," was presented by the officers of the local chapter in honor of the guests. Refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Ida DeVore.

The next meeting of the chapter will be held Friday, December 7.

Midland Briefs And Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Turner announce the birth of a daughter at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland.

The Homemakers will meet tomorrow evening.

William A. Wilson, state treasurer of the Maryland Firemen Association attended an executive meeting Sunday at the Cabin John Park Volunteer Fire Company hall.

Mrs. David Williams and Mrs. Elijah McKenzie are convalescing at their homes following operations at Miners Hospital in Frostburg.

John Tighe returned home from Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he had been a patient for two weeks.

Mrs. Rodney Hyde continues to improve at Memorial Hospital.

Frostburg Personals

Mr. and Mrs. R. Leslie Eisentrout and daughter, Ann Leslie, returned to their home in Hagerstown after spending the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eisentrout, Midland, and Mrs. Edward Davis, Ormond Street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Poole, of Moorefield, W. Va., spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Edward Davis, Ormond Street.

Here's good news for the husband who likes pie with his lunch. There's a new wedge-shaped plastic container on the market that makes it easy to pack and carry a cut of pie in the lunchbox. Good "lunchbox" pies at this season are apple, blueberry, pumpkin, mincemeat and cherry. Whether home or bakery baked, wedges of luscious pie make a welcome addition to lunchbox meals. You'll want to use the pie container for fall outings and picnics, too.

Education Week Is Marked At Area School

Frostburg Observes Annual Affair

FROSTBURG—American Education Week was observed at Hill Street School last week.

John F. Manley, principal, stated that the week's program opened with a special meeting Monday evening, when homeroom mothers were guests. The theme of the meeting was "Faith in God."

Those attending also listened to a radio address by Kenneth Malcolm, president of the Allegany County Board of Education.

On Tuesday morning children of the intermediate grades participated in program about children's activities in the class room. On Tuesday afternoon the primary grades held a similar program.

Wednesday morning Rev. John Bayley Jones addressed the intermediate group on "Your Role in the World Today."

Thursday was designated as visitor's day. Parents observed classroom work from 1 to 2:30 p. m., after which they had a get-together in the auditorium. The topic "Understanding Your School and the Value of School Records" was presented by Manley. This was followed by the movie "Who Will Teach Your Child."

After the picture and discussion the teachers, assisted by homeroom mothers, entertained the parents with a tea. Friday, a radio skit was presented by the sixth grade presenting a series of activities on "Appreciating Our Freedoms." A program depicting the writing of the "Star Spangled Banner" was given.

Ministerial Group Plans Thanksgiving Service

FROSTBURG—The annual community Thanksgiving Day service will be held Thursday at 10:30 a. m. in Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church, Broadway. The service will be under the auspices of the Frostburg Ministerial Association. Rev. George L. Wehler, secretary-treasurer of the group, will deliver the sermon on the subject: "A Living Thanksgiving." Rev. John Bayley Jones, president, will conduct the opening worship service. Rev. Daniel B. Eveland will read the scripture. Rev. J. Fred Zimmerman will offer the general prayer and benediction will be given by Rev. Harold R. Stoudt.

The offering will be used to purchase equipment for the Miners Hospital. The choir of the host church will sing special music. Mrs. Virgil S. Atkinson will be the organist.

4-H Meeting Set

LONACONING—The Junior 4-H Club will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the VFW Home. Election of officers will be held and plans discussed to hold a Christmas party.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19 (INS) — Clyde Beatty, the circus and wild animal man, has two good reasons to be happy these days.

First, the Beattys are expecting their first child in just a few months. Second, the expectant pappy returns to Hollywood next week to start the first of 26 color films for TV for Walter White's Commodore Productions.

This puts Clyde in four fields of entertainment — radio, movies, TV, his Universal-International and Republic movies and, of course, his circus. He's touring the midwest now showing the kids from six to sixty how he tames wild animals.

Oh, yes, I almost forgot his merchandising program — hats, shirts, whips and other gadgets — which is estimated to bring in over a million annually.

Who is to play Mabel Normand is the big question in "The Mack Sennet Story" at Paramount, which will be three-fourths silent. An unknown girl will be selected, for Mabel is too fresh in the memory of too many of us to have any of Hollywood's well known actresses attempt to play her.

Robert Welch, the producer, and Frank Tashlin the director, who will co-author the script with Sennett, will ask Hank Mann, Chester Conklin and the other old Keystone Cops to train the young actors in their roles.

The old style of pantomine is a lost art these days and all of the Keystone stuff will be silent to make the comedy effective. Who better than the originators know how it should be played?

When Elizabeth Taylor is coming back to Hollywood only she knows and she isn't telling. There were whispers that Liz would be on the plane bringing Michael Wilding back but that wasn't the case. He arrived to visit Jean Simmons and Stewart Granger, but Liz wasn't on the plane as everyone expected — but Marlene Dietrich was.

When Liz does return, there is the little matter of a revision in her contract to be taken up by her agent, Jules Goldstone. He had expected her Saturday but so far as anyone knows she decided to remain in New York where she has had a whirl with Wilding, Monty Clift and her other admirers.

I was talking to someone just back from London, who tells me that Greta Garbo and Cecil Beaton are the talk of the town.

Greta goes to parties in London with Beaton, and she appears to have forgotten both George Schlee and Gayelord Hauser. Beaton, who is the No. 1 photographer of England, tells anyone who will listen that he's asked Garbo to marry him and he believes she'll accept.

Meanwhile, John Gunther is waiting in New York for her to discuss her motion picture, "The Life Of Eleanora Duse" with him. That, she's supposed to do for MGM, but I'd hate to hang until she does it.

Shell's romance with Farl may be colder than her last name but the tempestuous Miss Winters is not exactly shivering in loneliness. Just as everyone had her linked up with Vince Edwards, Hal Wallis' tall, dark and handsome actor, Shell resumed her last year's romance with Sidney Chaplin.

And leave it to her to complicate even that. The other evening, she arrived at the Bantam Cock for dinner with Edwards, staged such an argument with him that he left and she dined alone, and then two hours later, she turned up at a party with Sid as her date. Some passion flower.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Mrs. Robert Young is in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for treatment and a checkup.

Twelve-year-old Christina Crawford will have a very glamorous classmate when she enters Woodbury Business College this summer. Her ma, Joan Crawford, is taking the course with her.

The off-again-on-again romance of Producer Jed Haris and Broadway Actress Elaine Stritch is very much on again.

Signe Hasso, now starring on Broadway, is seeing a lot of Bill Langford, former boy friend of Tallulah Bankhead.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

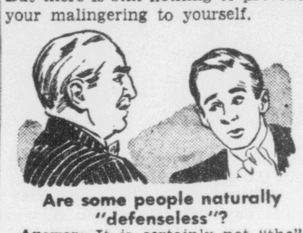
Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Is choosing the right mate important?

Answer: Sometimes, perhaps, but I suspect that they are more often worn to conceal—and console—a weak Ego. I speak, of course, on the basis of the fact that nowadays a bearded man, especially a young one, is sufficiently unusual to attract attention. Whether the attention gained is admiring or critical is relatively unimportant, as is true of a child, to whom having nobody take any notice of him means that he is helpless and unprotected. No one ever wholly outgrows the desire for attention, but the mature way to get it is by your achievements, not by being unnecessarily "different" from your neighbors.



Are some people naturally "defenseless"?

Answer: It is certainly not "the" cause, and is "a" cause only under special circumstances, such as (a) actual hardship, especially malnutrition, which creates a sense of insecurity or (b) having parents who are worn out or embittered by their economic struggles. In a country like ours, the percentage of neurotics is little, if any higher among those we call the underprivileged than among the well-to-do or wealthy. The most nearly universal cause of mental illness is "anxiety" based upon the many difficulties every human being faces in adapting himself to a word that is so largely hostile to his natural instincts.

May "sleep rituals" become obsessions?

Answer: It has become so, writes Dr. Edward J. Murphy in the Irish Journal of Medical Science. The deliberate pretense of suffering from physical disease was commonest in the military service (to escape unpleasant duties or to win a discharge) and in damage suits against employers and insurance companies. It has declined to almost the vanishing point because the X-ray, blood tests and other examination techniques have made it so much easier to determine whether the pretended illness is actually present or not. Feigning mental illness is also much more difficult as the knowledge of psychology increases. But there is still nothing to prevent your malingering to yourself.

TWUA Asks Wage Raise On U. S. Work

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, today proposed a 21½ cent hourly increase and other safeguards in Walsh-Healey Act minimum rates for work on government contract in the woolen and worsted industry.

The proposals would lift the present Walsh-Healey Act minimum in these mills to $1.26½ an hour.

Emil Rieve, TWUA general president, in a letter to William R. McComb, administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the U. S. Department of Labor, also petitioned for inclusion of an escalator clause providing for a one-cent increase in these rates for each 1.18 rise in the consumer's price index.

Ice cream is supposed to have originated in Italy sometime before the discovery of America.

The proposals would lift the present Walsh-Healey Act minimum in these mills to $1.26½ an hour.

Emil Rieve, TWUA general president, in a letter to William R. McComb, administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the U. S. Department of Labor, also petitioned for inclusion of an escalator clause providing for a one-cent increase in these rates for each 1.18 rise in the consumer's price index.

Ice cream is supposed to have originated in Italy sometime before the discovery of America.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, (INS)—It will be interesting to see what drastic action the President, secretary of state and the Justice and Defense Departments will take against Sen. Ed Johnson as a result of palpably treasonous statements made Sunday on "Meet The Press."

Sen. Johnson, though apparently in his right mind, brazenly suggested that we should stop fighting bayonet battles in Korea, kick the blazes out of the opposition with the most advanced weapons we possess (including atomic), then get the heck out of that rotten place for keeps.

This constitutes reckless talk. It suggests that the administration map possibly be wrong — heaven forefend — in its outlook on that modest little police action over there. The way Sen. Johnson babled he probably gave a lot of simple people the impression that he considers 100,000 casualties, a lot of billions of dollars invested, and acts of barbarism that would have paled the cheek of Genghis Khan, a war.

Worse, Johnson predicted that Mr. Truman would not run again in 1952 and would not be able to impose completely his will on the platform committee at the convention in Chicago. The senator said Chief Justice Vinson probably would be his party's candidate and that the vice presidential nomination, he thought, would go to Jim Farley.

This must have given Sen. Johnson's friends in the party as nasty a turn as they've had of a Sunday afternoon in years. Why Jim Farley had opposed F. D. R.'s third term! And here was a respected member of the party saying in effect that Farley was a fine man whose name would lend strength and prestige to the ticket.

The senator said he doubted if Gen. Eisenhower would run, despite all those organizational motions being gone through by Sens. Duff and Lodge. But if the general does make up his mind, and runs, he'll be awful tough for the Democrats to beat—the Democrat said right out loud on our TV screen. In fact, the senator conceded that the general, if he runs, might even sweep the senator's own state — Colorado.

There were many other treasonous statements uttered in a matter-of-fact tone by the big, rough-hewn man from the West. For example, he said that he would never vote for another increase in taxes, as if he did not know his colleagues were cooking up a mess of them.

Piling heresy on heresy, Sen. Johnson said that the administration had muffed the ball in Korea by not equipping and training the South Korean army as well as the Russians equipped the North Korean forces—though the South Koreans outnumber the North Koreans two to one.

He said, sure, it was a boner (an admission which may cause him to be drummed out of the party), and he hoped that when we got another chance we wouldn't make the same mistake.

But in retrospect, this startled viewer and listener to one of the air's finest half-hour's remembered chiefly the man's audacious demand that the Korean war should be won. It was for this kind of unorthodox doctrine that MacArthur had to be canned.

(Incidentally, earlier in the day two pompous squares named Richard Rovere and Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., propounded on "Author Meets Critic" the thesis that the general never was much of a soldier. Freda Utley's defense of the general missed one abundantly obvious point: If Rovere and Schlesinger hustled real hard in their military training for the next 13 years they'd be suitable candidates for the job of MacArthur's orderly.)

As for Sen. Johnson, he'd better take a refresher course. To be plagued by such old fashioned beliefs as we enter wars only to win them singles him out as something of an anachronism in the thinking philosophy of the colleagues around him in Washington.

SUSIE Q. SMITH — By Linda and Jerry Walter

"Have you seen a lady without a little girl who looks like me?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU DON'T HAVE TO HELP

YOU MAY be sure the opponents are going to do the best they can to defeat your side's contract. There is no obligation upon you to help them in their work. That, however, is exactly what you do, without realizing it, when you unnecessarily show them a suit you hold. That simplifies their problem of what might be the worst and the best defense, steering them away from one and toward the other course. When you are reasonably sure of the final declaration, don't bid anything else except when you think it will help your side more than the opponents.

	♠ K 9 5 4 3 ♥ K 8 6 2 ♦ A 9 4 ♣ A
♠ Q J 10 2 ♥ A J 9 ♦ K Q 10 ♣ 7 6	N W E S	♠ A 8 7 6 ♥ Q 10 7 ♦ 4 3 ♣ J 5 9 6
	♠ None ♥ 5 ♦ 8 3 2 ♣ K Q J 10 8 5 4 3 2

(Dealer: South. North - South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
4 ♣	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
5 ♣

Thanks to North's bid of spades, West was steered away from leading that suit and opened his diamond K, which the A won. Desiring to refrain from using up the only sure entry to the dummy, South shied away from laying down the club A and instead ruffed the spade 3 so that he could lead toward the heart K. West won with the A. If West had now been silly enough to lead anything except a diamond, South could have parked one of his losers in that suit on the heart K. But West was not that foolish. He scored the diamond Q and 10, and the contract was down one.

West said after the hand that his lead would have been a spade if North had not shown that suit, but had merely raised the 4-Clubs to 5-Clubs. That would have made the contract for South. He could have ruffed it, led toward the heart K, West winning, and a diamond return could not have hurt him. The A would have won, the heart K would have given him a diamond discard, and there would have been no earthly way for the defense to take any more tricks except one in diamonds.

There is seldom any percentage in making a bid such as North's 4-Spades after a pre-empt, as the chance of a fit with that kind of suit is virtually nil. North's expert bid, after the 4-Clubs, would have been 5-Clubs. If one of his major kings had been an ace, then 6-Clubs would have been the preferred call. The pre-emptor is morally certain to be short in the majors if he is sound, though he might have something in the other minor.

Tomorrow's Problem

Following West's original 1-Heart, what bidding should follow on this rubber deal?

SUSIE Q. SMITH — By Linda and Jerry Walter

"Have you seen a lady without a little girl who looks like me?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU DON'T HAVE TO HELP

YOU MAY be sure the opponents are going to do the best they can to defeat your side's contract. There is no obligation upon you to help them in their work. That, however, is exactly what you do, without realizing it, when you unnecessarily show them a suit you hold. That simplifies their problem of what might be the worst and the best defense, steering them away from one and toward the other course. When you are reasonably sure of the final declaration, don't bid anything else except when you think it will help your side more than the opponents.

	♠ K 9 5 4 3 ♥ K 8 6 2 ♦ A 9 4 ♣ A
♠ Q J 10 2 ♥ A J 9 ♦ K Q 10 7 6 ♣ 7	N W E S	♠ A 8 7 6 ♥ Q 10 7 4 3 ♦ J 5 ♣ 9 6
	♠ None ♥ 5 ♦ 8 3 2 ♣ K Q J 10 8 5 4 3 2

(Dealer: South. North - South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
4 ♣	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
5 ♣

Thanks to North's bid of spades, West was steered away from leading that suit and opened his diamond K, which the A won. Desiring to refrain from using up the only sure entry to the dummy, South shied away from laying down the club A and instead ruffed the spade 3 so that he could lead toward the heart K. West won with the A. If West had now been silly enough to lead anything except a diamond, South could have parked one of his losers in that suit on the heart K. But West was not that foolish. He scored the diamond Q and 10, and the contract was down one.

West said after the hand that his lead would have been a spade if North had not shown that suit, but had merely raised the 4-Clubs to 5-Clubs. That would have made the contract for South. He could have ruffed it, led toward the heart K, West winning, and a diamond return could not have hurt him. The A would have won, the heart K would have given him a diamond discard, and there would have been no earthly way for the defense to take any more tricks except one in diamonds.

There is seldom any percentage in making a bid such as North's 4-Spades after a pre-empt, as the chance of a fit with that kind of suit is virtually nil. North's expert bid, after the 4-Clubs, would have been 5-Clubs. If one of his major kings had been an ace, then 6-Clubs would have been the preferred call. The pre-emptor is morally certain to be short in the majors if he is sound, though he might have something in the other minor.

(Dealer: South. North - South vulnerable.)

Following West's original 1-Heart, what bidding should follow on this rubber deal?

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Market, In Dullest Session In Four Months, Declines

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—The stock market drifted downward today during the dullest session in four months.

There were no violent selling wages. The market was just plain neglected.

The volume attested to the number of trades who sat on the sidelines. It ran to 1,020,000 shares, the slowest full session since last July 11 when 970,000 shares were traded.

The losses were counted in fractions during most of the day but in the final couple of hours an increasing number of point or more declines cropped up through the list.

This is the third week in a row that a holiday has cut trading on the New York exchange from a normal six days to five.

The statistics showed the Associated Press average of 60 stocks down 40 cents at $96.20. The rail averages took the deepest drop—60 cents—while industrials dropped 50 cents and utilities a dime.

There were 1,064 stocks traded and 522 declined while 281 advanced. Eleven issues hit new highs and 29 dropped to new low points.

The most active stock of the day was United Corporation, which traded 38,100 shares and remained steady at 5. The runnerup was Northern Pacific, which sold 27,700 shares at 59¼, up 1½.

Among the 16 most active issues there were six advances and six declines with four unchanged.

But that did not reflect a true picture of the less active stocks.

The declines spread through every major group. The chemicals showed a little more life than other categories but while several issues in this group gained ground it was only by fractions.

Among the weaker issues were the rubber stocks. Firestone was off 1¾ at 55¼, U. S. Rubber was down 1½ at 68½ and Goodrich lost a point at 56¼.

Position Of Treasury

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The position of the Treasury Nov. 15:

Net budget recpts, $146,618,270.92; budget expenditures, $236,050,006.38; cash balance, $3,960,050,118.96; customs receipts for month, :$18,873,-176.33; budget recpts fiscal yr July 1, $16,740,147,658.37; budget expenditures fiscal yr, $22,753,059,549.43; budget deficit, $6,012,911,891.06; total debt, $257,991,845,754.69; increase over previous day, $113,984,941.16; gold assets, $22,282,968,883.38.

There were 4,000 furniture factories in the U. S. in 1949.

Lindbergh

"This hope proved to be fully justified. Colonel Lindbergh returned to Washington with an extremely full report on the Luftwaffe for which he was rewarded by the enthusiastic thanks of the American air staff. He has yet to receive the thanks of the rest of his countrymen, or credit for the silence which he maintained during the subsequent years."

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Market, In Dullest Session In Four Months, Declines

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—The stock market drifted downward today during the dullest session in four months.

There were no violent selling wages. The market was just plain neglected.

The volume attested to the number of trades who sat on the sidelines. It ran to 1,020,000 shares, the slowest full session since last July 11 when 970,000 shares were traded.

The losses were counted in fractions during most of the day but in the final couple of hours an increasing number of point or more declines cropped up through the list.

This is the third week in a row that a holiday has cut trading on the New York exchange from a normal six days to five.

The statistics showed the Associated Press average of 60 stocks down 40 cents at $96.20. The rail averages took the deepest drop—60 cents—while industrials dropped 50 cents and utilities a dime.

There were 1,064 stocks traded and 522 declined while 281 advanced. Eleven issues hit new highs and 29 dropped to new low points.

The most active stock of the day was United Corporation, which traded 38,100 shares and remained steady at 5. The runnerup was Northern Pacific, which sold 27,700 shares at 59¼, up 1½.

Among the 16 most active issues there were six advances and six declines with four unchanged.

But that did not reflect a true picture of the less active stocks.

The declines spread through every major group. The chemicals showed a little more life than other categories but while several issues in this group gained ground it was only by fractions.

Among the weaker issues were the rubber stocks. Firestone was off 1¾ at 55¼, U. S. Rubber was down 1½ at 68½ and Goodrich lost a point at 56¼.

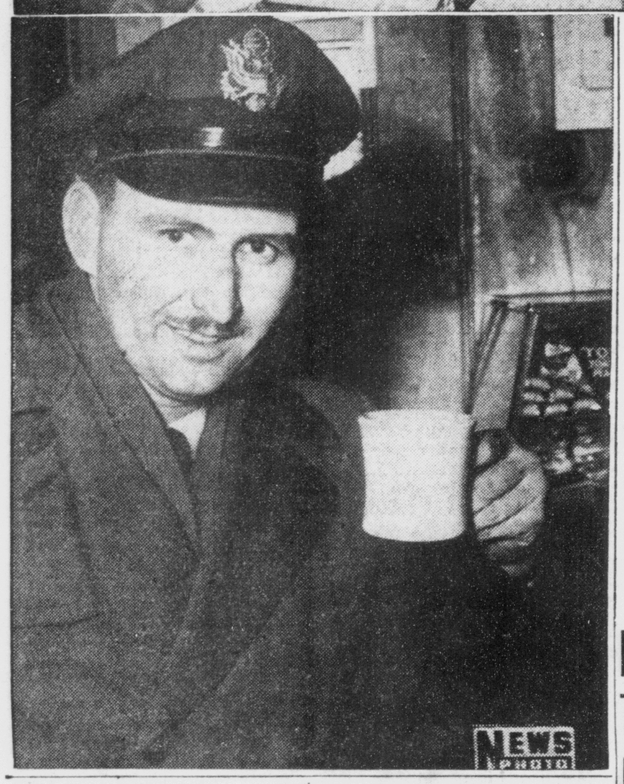
Air Force Specialists To Seek Missing Flier



RESCUE TEAM — Air Force Land Rescue and Survival specialists from Westover, Mass., AF base are seen here last night before they pushed off for Aurora, W. Va., to lead the search for an airman believed to have survived the crash of a B-26 near there Friday night. They are Tech. Sgt. Leonard Lane, Staff Sgt. Louis Fontana, Sgt. Robert Parkansky, Cpl. Dan Goldstein, Sgt. Leo Miller, Staff Sgt. Curtis Hibbard and Tech. Sgt. Raymond Perry. Seen in the lower photo is Capt. J. T. Woodyard, Washington, D. C., pilot of the C-82 Flying Boxcar which brought the rescue men and their equipment to this city. The men drove to Aurora last night in a weapons carrier brought in the plane, along with a trailer containing some 2,000 pounds of rescue equipment. Some 250 men are slated to join the search today as 100 more AF men arrive from Greater Pitt, Pa., and Langley Field, Va., Air Force bases.

250 Men Slated To Join Search For Lost Airman

Hope Lt. Ross May Have Survived Crash

BY C. WESLEY BLACKBURN
News Staff Writer

An Air Force land rescue team early last night left here for Aurora, W. Va., to join in the search for a missing airman believed to have survived the crash of a B-26 near that Preston County community Friday night. The team brings to 250 the number of men participating in the rescue work.

Capt. J. T. Woodyard, pilot of the C-82 which brought the veteran rescue squad to this city early last night, said the chance that Lt. Prentice E. Ross, Jr., is alive is considered good if he was able to make a successful parachute jump from the doomed ship.

He said authorities reported that the missing airman from Hampton, Va., was familiar with cold weather survival tactics.

To Intensify Search

Given favorable weather today, rescue workers, who generally marked time yesterday pending a break in the weather, will intensify the search which has been underway since the plane carrying three Air Force reserve officers crashed.

Meanwhile, an Air Force helicopter yesterday joined in the hunt for the missing lieutenant.

The search was concentrated over Cooper Rocks State Forest, near Morgantown, W. Va.

The land rescue team which pushed off from here last night was flown from Westover, Mass., Air Force Base, along with a three quarter ton truck and a trailer to hold equipment, in a Flying Boxcar piloted by Capt. Woodyard of Washington, with Lt. R. J. Powers, Concord, Mass., co-pilot.

The rescue specialists will join in the rescue work at Aurora under direction of Capt. D. D. Bachman, Capt. A. F. Woznak and Capt. Robert A. Bourcy.

Two jump men, Tech. Sgt. Lane and S. Sgt. Yursha, are already at the scene, waiting to drop from CAP planes to inaccessible areas to give immediate first aid.

Both of the jump men are combat veterans and thoroughly experienced in their work, Capt. Woodyard said.

Copter Joins Search

Some 12 CAP planes, under the direction of Lt. Col. Johnson, are awaiting orders from AAF officials.

The H-5 helicopter, piloted by Capt. D. D. Bachman, joined the search yesterday.

The seven-man rescue team is headed by Tech. Sgt. Leonard Lane, from Kotzebue, Alaska, and Tech. Sgt. Raymond L. Perry, of Honolulu.

Other members of the team were Staff Sgt. Louis Fontana, Sgt. Robert Parkansky, Cpl. Dan Goldstein, Sgt. Leo Miller and Staff Sgt. Curtis Hibbard.

Will Head Teams

Each of the men will head a seven or eight man rescue team which will work out of the Aurora base.

Teams will conduct a systematic search of a 25-mile area between Morgantown, W. V., and Aurora, where the missing airman might have jumped.

Members of the team said it was "reasonable to assume the missing man had a chance to get out of the plane before the others."

The area has been estimated on the basis of available data. The doomed plane was at 7,000 feet when it passed Morgantown, where it reported it had run into icing conditions and wanted to go to a lower altitude.

100 To Join Search

Woodyard said 125 men are now engaged in the search and that another 100 men from Greater Pitt Air Force Base and Langley Field, Va., will join the rescue work today as the search intensifies.

The team, with some 2,000 pounds of survival equipment, drove on to

Roads Become Slick As Snow Turns To Ice

Highways Dangerous West Of Frostburg

Area highways became dangerously slick last night when snow which fell Sunday and yesterday was turned into ice by low temperatures.

Shortly after the half-inch snow fell in the city about 6 p. m., streets reflected ice like glass and autos were seen skidding as they approached hills.

Ashing Roads

Maryland State Road Commission here reported that all cindering crews were busy ashing area roads. Crews were sent to Westernport and all along the George's Creek area to LaVale and Frostburg. Also, highways east and west of Frostburg were reported slippery by Maryland State Police.

State Police said chains were needed to travel over mountains west of Frostburg toward Grantsville and into Garrett County.

West Virginia State Police at Romney said roads in that area were not too bad, but a light snow was falling late last night. One inch of snow was reported in Romney last night.

C. A. Suter, Jr., weather observer at Frostburg, reported two and one-half inches of snow in that section with temperatures down to 21 degrees last night. Garrett County reported roads slippery with five to six inches of snow in the area.

Altamount measured six inches of snow last night with temperature at 20 degrees and still snowing. Terra Alta, W. Va., had six inches with snow falling steadily last night.

Eight Inches

Thomas, W. Va. recorded eight inches of snow with the thermometer at 18 degrees and still snowing last night. It was still snowing at Deal, Pa., last night where six inches was reported with readings down to 16 degrees.

There was light snow at Keyser, W. Va. last night and about three to four inches on Allegheny Front. Highways there were reported in a dangerous condition and motorists needed chains.

The Associated Press reported a heavy snowstorm struck east of Elkins, W. Va. late yesterday but did not seem to increase the depth of snow there.

That area was one of those hit hardest by the week-end snow. Seven inches was the depth reported on U. S. Route 33 east of Elkins. U. S. Route 250 over Cheat Mountain was buried under another seven-inche layer of snow.

Here in Cumberland temperatures plunged to a low of 22 degrees yesterday with a light snow squall occurring about 6 p. m. The high temperature was reported as 30 degrees and at 8 p. m. the mercury leveled at 25 degrees. One-half inch layer of snow covered the city. At about 9 o'clock, the atmosphere turned clear but a crisp cold air continued to push down the mercury.

The weather Bureau predicted a low of 15 to 25 degrees with winds expected to diminish today. Skies will remain sunny.

Yuletide Season Is Heralded By Lights, Decorations Here

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

Downtown Cumberland is taking on the appearance of the coming Christmas season. Workmen of the Potomac Edison Company yesterday were putting finishing touches on the gay lights and decorations strung along Baltimore Street.

Large center stars, peppermint sticks, multi-colored cylinders and shepherd scenes have been put up amid strands of balsam pine. The lights will be turned on Thanksgiving evening, officially opening the Yuletide season in Cumberland.

Counters Well-Stocked

Local merchants have their counters and shelves well-stocked with various gifts for the early shoppers. Residents are reminded that only 27 shopping days remains before Christmas.

Santa Claus has already put in his appearance here in the Queen City and through the approaching holiday season he will be in some of the downtown stores and receive letters from the children of the area. Appropriate gifts will also be presented by St. Nick to the younger set.

Extra help is being employed by local merchants and gay Christmas window displays are blending with music befitting the season. Last night, despite the chilly weather, many shoppers were making early purchases.

South End Decorates

South Cumberland Businessmen's Association is providing lights and decorations along Virginia Avenue from Boone Street to Laing Avenue. Huge Santa Claus figures will be located in the center of each strand of lights adorned with laurel.

George Millenson, co-chairman of the South End committee, said last night decorations and lights in that area will be installed beginning today, by workers of the Potomac Edison Company.

Beginning Tuesday, December 11, according to Robert Little Ebert, chairman, local stores will be open until 9 p. m. up until December 24 when the merchants will close at 6 p. m.

Regular Monday evening opening hours will prevail during that period, Little noted. Stores will also close at 6 p. m. on New Year's Eve.

Another event heralding the gala Yuletide season in Cumberland will be a mile-long giant balloon parade scheduled Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Bands, marching units and colorful floats will all be part of the procession wending its way through downtown Cumberland.

B & O Directors Vote Preferred Stock Dividend

Operating Expenses Exceeding Revenues

BALTIMORE, (AP) — Stockholders of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yesterday received a gloomy picture of increasing costs, then learned that the board of directors had voted a four-percent dividend on preferred stock.

The dividend, which comes to $4 a share and is payable Dec. 21 to stockholders on record Nov. 30, is equal to one announced at this time last year.

It was announced after Roy B. White, president of the railroad, told the annual stockholders meeting that revenues are increasing but expenses are increasing even faster.

"The spread is continually widening," he added.

White said revenues jumped 13.6 in the first ten months of this year, while operating costs went up 15.96 per cent. The reason for this, he said, was "the increases in costs were not promptly followed by approval of higher rates."

The answer to the problem is greater efficiency, he told the meeting. As an example, he noted that B & O saved $34,000,000 (M) a year by replacing steam locomotives with Diesels.

The president said the company's income for January-October this year was about $13,527,863 on operating revenues of about $375,502,619.

The stockholders re-elected all directors and the directors re-elected White president and all other principal officers of the company.

News In Brief

Roy W. Merritt, 20, of 191 Thomas Street, has enlisted in the U. S. Air Force at the local recruiting station and been assigned to Sampson Air Force Base, Geneva, N. Y., for basic training.

City Hall offices will be closed Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, under an order approved yesterday by the Mayor and Council.

A child hygiene clinic will be held today at 10 a. m. at the LaVale Fire Hall by the Allegany County Department of Health.

An absolute divorce was granted in Circuit Court yesterday morning to Donovan G. Cline Stanley, 29, of 303 Pennsylvania Avenue, in his suit against Henrietta S. Cline Stanley, who is said to be a resident of New York City.

WM Safety Council To Elect Officers

The Western Maryland Safety Council will elect officers for the coming year at a meeting this evening, Lynn Walker, president announced last night.

The business meeting is scheduled to get underway at 7:30 o'clock in the Public Safety Building.

Boy Sentenced For Stealing

A 15-year-old South Cumberland boy was sentenced to the Maryland Training School for Boys yesterday in Juvenile Court for stealing merchandise from the Charlton Brothers Transportation Company warehouse on Bowen Street, October 21.

Three other youths, ages ranging from nine to 11 years, were paroled in the custody of their parents. These boys were given hearings in Juvenile Court shortly after the robbery, but Magistrate Alban C. Thompson withheld sentencing the trio pending the apprehension of the fourth suspect.

Authorities said the South Cumberland boy left the city after the stealing and was roving the surrounding cities near Hagerstown and Frederick. The boy told the court he had slept on back porches.

Police said the four boys gained entrance to the warehouse on October 21 by climbing beneath a loading platform from an alley. A number of boxes containing an assortment of merchandise was broken open.

Loot included a large amount of candy, men's shoes, nylon shirts, cans of coffee, three pounds of Lino cement, a case of spaghetti meatballs, eight mixing bowls, a case of hosiery and other articles.

Police reported that most of the merchandise was recovered.

Local Churches Announce Annual Thanks Services

Rites Scheduled Wednesday, Thursday

Many Cumberland area churches are planning special services either Wednesdy evening or Thursday morning in observing the real significance of Thanksgiving.

Union Service

Members of Centre Street Methodist and First Presbyterian Churches will attend a union Thanksgiving service at 10:30 a. m. Thursday at Centre Street. Rev. Seth C. Morrow, Presbyterian pastor, will preach the sermon.

Emmanuel Episcopal

A Holy Communion service will be celebrated at Emmanuel Episcopal Church at 10:30 a. m. The choir will provide special music and the rector, Rev. H. M. Richardson, will preach a brief sermon.

Joint Service

Park Place and LaVale Methodist Churches will have a joint Thanksgiving Day service at 10 a. m. Thursday at Park Place. Rev. W. W. Patterson, LaVale pastor, will be the speaker. Special music will be provided by the combined choirs.

Churches Combine

St. Mark's, Zion and St. Matthew's Evangelical and Reformed Churches will hold a union Thanksgiving service at St. Matthew's, Bowling Green, at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Rev. Carl Clapp, pastor of St. Mark's, will speak on "Thankfulness." Rev. Raymond Faulds, Zion pastor, and Rev. Lloyd Voll, St. Matthew's pastor, will serve as liturgists.

A combined choir will sing "Prayer of Thanksgiving" by Kremser.

Mt. Pleasant Church

A special Thanksgiving service will be held in the Mount Pleasant Methodist Church at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday. Appropriate hymns of thanksgiving and scriptures will comprise the service. Rev. Allen B. L. Fisher, minister, will speak on "The Significance of Thanksgiving Day—From a Personal Point of View."

Grace Methodist

"What Motivates Our Thanks" will be the Thanksgiving subject of Rev. Allen B. L. Fisher, minister, at the special service at Grace Methodist Church at 10 a. m. Thursday. The choir will sing "The Harvest Home" as a special number.

Baptist Service

LaVale and Cumberland Baptist churches will have a joint service at LaVale Baptist Church at 10 a. m. Thursday in observance of Thanksgiving. Rev. O. Afton Linger, pastor of First Baptist Church, Cumberland, will be the speaker.

The LaVale Church choir, directed by Frank Byer, will be featured.

TV Amplifiers Being Installed By Engineers

Reception Expected Soon In Mapleside

Installation of coaxial cables and amplifiers to transmit television signals into Cumberland homes is progressing despite inclement weather, a spokesman for the Potomac Valley Television Company Inc., said yesterday.

Actual work in the installations of amplifiers is now underway by two television engineeers from a Trenton, N. J. firm. The improved amplifiers cost from $1,000 to $1,500 each and must be installed each 1,200 to 2,500 feet to step up the signals.

The two engineers engaged in installing, the amplifiers are James B. Crane and Lawrence W. Smith. Cable has been strung underground at the Virginia Avenue railroad crossing as well as the Frederick Street crossing.

Transmission of television signals to homes in the Mapleside section is expected to get underway within the next few days. The system enables signals to be tpransported, according to the local television company, along an electrically fed coaxial cable wire and into residences without the installation of a TV aerial.

The route of the cable will be along Williams Street from its intersection with Williams Road to Louisiana Avenue and up Douglas Street, feeding houses along the west side of Memorial Avenue and the east side of Louisiana Avenue.

Line will be strung on both sides of Oldtown Road from Memorial Avenue to Pennsylvania Avenue givin service to Pennsylvania Avenue from Oldtown Road to First Street and the west side of Smith Street. Lines will also service First Street from Smith Street to Virinia Avenue and both sides of Virinia Avenue from First to Third Street.

Cable has already been installed to feed both sides of Williams Street from Louisiana Avenue to Maryland Avenue.

When television reception is realized in Cumberland homes, the company noted, three channels will be provided for the present with room on the line for a local station if one is ever erected.

Tawes Will Address Rotary, Kiwanis Clubs

Maryland Comptroller J. Millard Tawes will address a joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs today at 12:15 p. m. at Central YMCA.

Tawes will discuss "The Distribution of the Maryland Tax Dollar."

SA Makes Plans For Christmas

Meeting Set Next Tuesday

The Christmas Committee of the Salvation Army Advisory Board will meet next Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Citadel to make definite plans for the Salvation Army's Christmas program.

The committee includes Lewis J. Ort, chairman, Carl Amtower, Lynn C. Lashley, L. Leslie Helmer, David Kauffman, Frank Carpenter and A. Trago Brust, Jr.

Presidents of all clubs which took part in the Army's Christmas Kettle collection last year have been asked to attend.

Major Elmer Wall, commander, said the clubs, including the Kiwanis, Lion, Rotary, Exchange, Optimist and Junior Association of Commerce, of Cumberland, and the Lion and Rotary Clubs of Frostburg, collected $2,000 last Christmas toward the Salvation Army's holiday program.

He said it is anticipated that all who have cooperated in the program will join the drive again this year.

A number of requests for Christmas service have been received by the Salvation Army here.

Major Wall said the Army is anticipating one of the best Christmas programs ever to be sponsored in this city.

Foresters Will Attend Meeting

Representatives from Allegany, Garrett and Frederick Counties will attend a state forest management personnel meeting November 26 and 27 at the nursery at Harmans, in Anne Arundel County, District Forester William H. Johnson said yesterday.

Attending from this district will be Harry M. Hartman, Allegany County; Jack Paulhamus and Stanley Walton, both Garrett County, and Charles Covel, Frederick County, all assistant district foresters.

While at Harmans the group will tour the nursery, study use of tree planting machines and the use of timber making agreements. State Forester H. C. Buckingham will tell about the nursery, expected output, use of three planters and making adjustments and demonstration of various machines.

Beer Permit Sought

Roy L. Merritt has filed an application with the Allegany County Board of License Commissioners for a beer license for premises at 100 Columbia Street.

Interest Added To Old Debt In Jury Verdict

Plaintiff Will Get Total Of $4,903.50

A verdict of $4,903.50 for James L. Tunney, 217 Glenn Street, was returned by an Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday after hearing evidence in a $5,000 suit involving a debt allegedly incurred 22 year ago.

Defendant in the suit was Chester D. Sowers, Highland Park, Mich., a former resident of Cumberland.

Tunney contended Sowers borrowed $2,100 from him in 1929 and never repaid it. He also asserted that Sowers made a promise to pay the debt two years ago to renew his liability. Witnesses said the promise was made when the two men met at the Fairgo race track two years ago.

In figuring the verdict, the jury tabulated six per cent interest on the original $2,100 over a 22-year period.

Tunney was represented by William L. Wilson, Jr., and Edward J. Ryan.

Sowers, who was represented by Walter C. Capper and Thomas N. Berry, denied the indebtedness and claims the alleged cause of action did not accrue within 20 years.

An attachment was obtained against Sowers holdings in Cumberland. The First National Bank of Cumberland filed an answer of garnishee stating Sowers had $560.50 in a checking account and $12,014.36 in a savings account.

This is the last court case scheduled this week with members of the petit jury reporting back next Monday.

Club Begins Toy Drive For Needy

"Toys for needy children are needed this year more than ever," said Mrs. Fay Stillwagon, president of the Soroptimist Club, yesterday.

The newly-formed women's service club is now collecting toys for Christmas gifts for needy children in the community.

Mrs. Stillwagon urges all persons having toys about the house that they wish to donate to some needy child to call her by telephoneing 873. In this way a member of the Soroptimist club will call at the home to pick up the toy.

The club members are contacting local toy stores which may have toys slightly damaged which cannot be sold but could be repaired to make a gift for a needy child.

In connection with this drive, Mrs. Ethel Newman, manager of the Garden Theater and a club member, will present a two-hour showing of comedies Saturday at 10 a. m.

Admission will be one toy per person. Parents are also invited to the showing and may bring a toy for admission.

Dr. Jacob B. Agus To Install Rabbi Schimelman Sunday

Dr. Jacob B. Agus, noted Baltimore rabbi and author, will install Joseph Schimelman as rabbi of Beth Jacob Congregation next Sunday night at the synagogue on North Centre Street.

Rabbi Schimelman came here from New Hampshire to replace Rabbi Joseff Kratzenstein, who now heads a congregation in Bay City, Wis.

Dr. Agus, rabbi of Beth El Congregation in Baltimore is a native of Poland and a graduate of Talmudical Academy and Yeshiva College of New York with honors, and of Harvard University.

At 40, he has written numerous articles, essays and editorials on philosophy, social science and Jewish thought in several periodicals.

He is perhaps best known for his widely acclaimed book, "Modern Philosophies of Judaism," which has been accepted as a textbook in Jewish colleges and universities.

Dr. Agus also was organizer of a radio series, and helped found the Dayton Mental Hygiene Society.

DR. JACOB B. AGUS

Rabbi Schimelman, who came here this month, resides at 121 Tilghman Street.

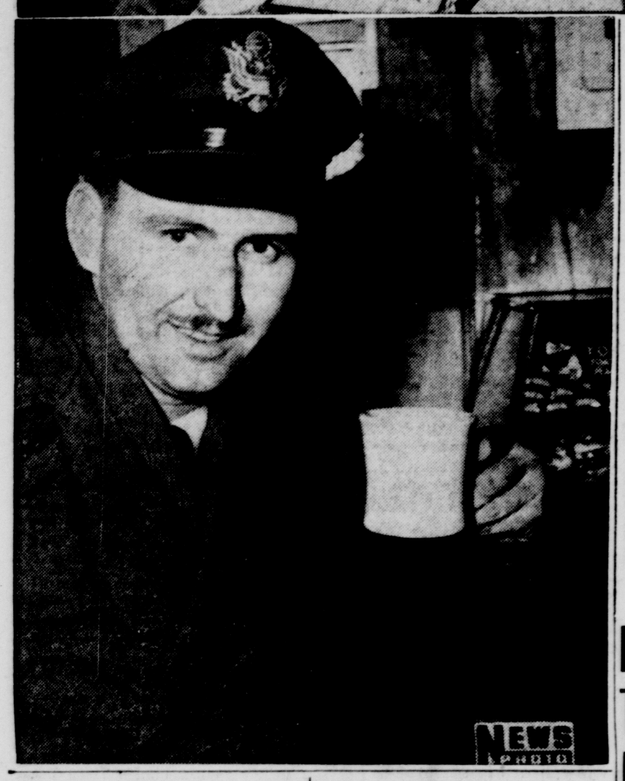
Air Force Specialists To Seek Missing Flier



RESCUE TEAM — Air Force Land Rescue and Survival specialists from Westover, Mass., AF base are seen here last night before they pushed off for Aurora, W. Va., to lead the search for an airman believed to have survived the crash of a B-26 near there Friday night. They are Tech. Sgt. Leonard Lane, Staff Sgt. Louis Fontana, Sgt. Robert Parkansky, Cpl. Dan Goldstein, Sgt. Leo Miller, Staff Sgt. Curtis Hibbard and Tech. Sgt. Raymond Perry. Seen in the lower photo is Capt. J. T. Woodyard, Washington, D. C., pilot of the C-82 Flying Boxcar which brought the rescue men and their equipment to this city. The men drove to Aurora last night in a weapons carrier brought in the plane, along with a trailer containing some 2,000 pounds of rescue equipment. Some 250 men are slated to join the search today as 100 more AF men arrive from Greater Pitt, Pa., and Langley Field, Va., Air Force bases.

250 Men Slated To Join Search For Lost Airman

Hope Lt. Ross May Have Survived Crash

BY C. WESLEY BLACKBURN
News Staff Writer

An Air Force land rescue team early last night left here for Aurora, W. Va., to join in the search for a missing airman believed to have survived the crash of a B-26 near that Preston County community Friday night. The team brings to 250 the number of men participating in the rescue work.

Capt. J. T. Woodyard, pilot of the C-82 which brought the veteran rescue squad to this city early last night, said the chance that Lt. Prentice E. Ross, Jr., is alive is considered good if he was able to make a successful parachute jump from the doomed ship.

He said authorities reported that the missing airman from Hampton, Va., was familiar with gold weather survival tactics.

To Intensify Search

Given favorable weather today, rescue workers, who generally marked time yesterday pending a break in the weather, will intensify the search which has been underway since the plane carrying three Air Force reserve officers crashed.

Meanwhile, an Air Force helicopter yesterday joined in the hunt for the missing lieutenant.

The search was concentrated over Cooper Rocks State Forest, near Morgantown, W. Va.

The land rescue team which pushed off from here last night was flown from Westover, Mass., Air Force Base, along with a three quarter ton truck and a trailer to hold equipment, in a Flying Boxcar piloted by Capt. Woodyard of Washington, with Lt. R. J. Powers, Concord, Mass., co-pilot.

The rescue specialists will join in the rescue work at Aurora under direction of Capt. D. D. Bachman, Capt. A. F. Woznak and Capt. Robert A. Bourcy.

Two jump men, Tech. Sgt. Lane and S. Sgt. Yursha, are already at the scene, waiting to drop from CAP planes to inaccessible areas to give immediate first aid.

Both of the jump men are combat veterans and thoroughly experienced in their work, Capt. Woodyard said.

Copter Joins Search

Some 12 CAP planes, under the direction of Lt. Col. Johnson, are awaiting orders from AAF officials.

The H-5 helicopter, piloted by Capt. D. D. Bachman, joined the search yesterday.

The seven-man rescue team is headed by Tech. Sgt. Leonard Lane, from Kotzebue, Alaska, and Tech. Sgt. Raymond L. Perry, of Honolulu.

Other members of the team were Staff Sgt. Louis Fontana, Sgt. Robert Parkansky, Cpl. Dan Goldstein, Sgt. Leo Miller and Staff Sgt. Curtis Hibbard.

Will Head Teams

Each of the men will head a seven or eight man rescue team which will work out of the Aurora base.

Teams will conduct a systematic search of a 25-mile area between Morgantown, W. V., and Aurora, where the missing airman might have jumped.

Members of the team said it was "reasonable to assume the missing man had a chance to get out of the plane before the others."

The area has been estimated on the basis of available data. The doomed plane was at 7,000 feet when it passed Morgantown, where it reported it had run into icing conditions and wanted to go to a lower altitude.

100 To Join Search

Woodyard said 125 men are now engaged in the search and that another 100 men from Greater Pitt Air Force Base and Langley Field, Va., will join the rescue work today as the search intensifies.

The team, with some 2,000 pounds of survival equipment, drove on to

Roads Become Slick As Snow Turns To Ice

Highways Dangerous West Of Frostburg

Area highways became dangerously slick last night when snow which fell Sunday and yesterday was turned into ice by low temperatures.

Shortly after the half-inch snow fell in the city about 6 p. m., streets reflected ice like glass and autos were seen skidding as they approached hills.

Ashing Roads

Maryland State Road Commission here reported that all cindering crews were busy ashing area roads. Crews were sent to Westernport and all along the George's Creek area to LaVale and Frostburg. Also, highways east and west of Frostburg were reported slippery by Maryland State Police.

State Police said chains were needed to travel over mountains west of Frostburg toward Grantsville and into Garrett County.

West Virginia State Police at Romney said roads in that area were not too bad, but a light snow was falling late last night. One inch of snow was reported in Romney last night.

C. A. Suter, Jr., weather observer at Frostburg, reported two and one-half inches of snow in that section with temperatures down to 21 degrees last night. Garrett County reported roads slippery with five to six inches of snow in the area.

Altamount measured six inches of snow last night with temperature at 20 degrees and still snowing. Terra Alta, W. Va., had six inches with snow falling steadily last night.

Eight Inches

Thomas, W. Va. recorded eight inches of snow with the thermometer at 18 degrees and still snowing last night. It was still snowing at Deal, Pa., last night where six inches was reported with readings down to 16 degrees.

There was light snow at Keyser, W. Va. last night and about three to four inches on Allegheny Front. Highways there were reported in a dangerous condition and motorists needed chains.

The Associated Press reported a heavy snowstorm struck east of Elkins, W. Va. late yesterday but did not seem to increase the depth of snow there.

That area was one of those hit hardest by the week-end snow. Seven inches was the depth reported on U. S. Route 33 east of Elkins. U. S. Route 250 over Cheat Mountain was buried under another seven-inche layer of snow.

Here in Cumberland temperatures plunged to a low of 22 degrees yesterday with a light snow squall occurring about 6 p. m. The high temperature was reported as 30 degrees and at 8 p. m. the mercury leveled at 25 degrees. One-half inch layer of snow covered the city. At about 9 o'clock, the atmosphere turned clear but a crisp cold air continued to push down the mercury.

The weather Bureau predicted a low of 15 to 25 degrees with winds expected to diminish today. Skies will remain sunny.

Yuletide Season Is Heralded By Lights, Decorations Here

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

Downtown Cumberland is taking on the appearance of the coming Christmas season. Workmen of the Potomac Edison Company yesterday were putting finishing touches on the gay lights and decorations strung along Baltimore Street.

Large center stars, peppermint sticks, multi-colored cylinders and shepherd scenes have been put up amid strands of balsam pine. The lights will be turned on Thanksgiving evening, officially opening the Yuletide season in Cumberland.

Counters Well-Stocked

Local merchants have their counters and shelves well-stocked with various gifts for the early shoppers. Residents are reminded that only 27 shopping days remains before Christmas.

Santa Claus has already put in his appearance here in the Queen City and through the approaching holiday season he will be in some of the downtown stores and receive letters from the children of the area. Appropriate gifts will also be presented by St. Nick to the younger set.

Extra help is being employed by local merchants and gay Christmas window displays are blending with music befitting the season. Last night, despite the chilly weather, many shoppers were making early purchases.

South End Decorates

South Cumberland Businessmen's Association is providing lights and decorations along Virginia Avenue from Boone Street to Laing Avenue. Huge Santa Claus figures will be located in the center of each strand of lights adorned with laurel.

George Millenson, co-chairman of the South End committee, said last night decorations and lights in that area will be installed beginning today, by workers of the Potomac Edison Company.

Beginning Tuesday, December 11, according to Robert Little Ebert, chairman, local stores will be open until 9 p. m. up until December 24 when the merchants will close at 6 p. m.

Regular Monday evening opening hours will prevail during that period, Little noted. Stores will also close at 6 p. m. on New Year's Eve.

Another event heralding the gala Yuletide season in Cumberland will be a mile-long giant balloon parade scheduled Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Bands, marching units and colorful floats will all be part of the procession wending its way through downtown Cumberland.

B & O Directors Vote Preferred Stock Dividend

Operating Expenses Exceeding Revenues

BALTIMORE, (AP) — Stockholders of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yesterday received a gloomy picture of increasing costs, then learned that the board of directors had voted a four-percent dividend on preferred stock.

The dividend, which comes to $4 a share and is payable Dec. 21 to stockholders on record Nov. 30, is equal to one announced at this time last year.

It was announced after Roy B. White, president of the railroad, told the annual stockholders meeting that revenues are increasing but expenses are increasing even faster.

"The spread is continually widening," he added.

White said revenues jumped 13.6 in the first ten months of this year, while operating costs went up 15.96 per cent. The reason for this, he said, was "the increases in costs were not promptly followed by approval of higher rates."

The answer to the problem is greater efficiency, he told the meeting. As an example, he noted that B & O saved $34,000,000 (M) a year by replacing steam locomotives with Diesels.

The president said the company's income for January-October this year was about $13,527,863 on operating revenues of about $375,502,619.

The stockholders re-elected all directors and the directors re-elected White president and all other principal officers of the company.

Local Churches Announce Annual Thanks Services

Rites Scheduled Wednesday, Thursday

Many Cumberland area churches are planning special services either Wednesdy evening or Thursday morning in observing the real significance of Thanksgiving.

Interest Added To Old Debt In Jury Verdict

Plaintiff Will Get Total Of $4,903.50

A verdict of $4,903.50 for James L. Tunney, 217 Glenn Street, was returned by an Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday after hearing evidence in a $5,000 suit involving a debt allegedly incurred 22 year ago.

Defendant in the suit was Chester D. Sowers, Highland Park, Mich., a former resident of Cumberland.

Tunney contended Sowers borrowed $2,100 from him in 1929 and never repaid it. He also asserted that Sowers made a promise to pay the debt two years ago to renew his liability. Witnesses said the promise was made when the two men met at the Fairgo race track two years ago.

In figuring the verdict, the jury tabulated six per cent interest on the original $2,100 over a 22-year period.

Tunney was represented by William L. Wilson, Jr., and Edward J. Ryan.

Sowers, who was represented by Walter C. Capper and Thomas N. Berry, denied the indebtedness and claims the alleged cause of action did not accrue within 20 years.

An attachment was obtained against Sowers holdings in Cumberland. The First National Bank of Cumberland filed an answer of garnishee stating Sowers had $560.50 in a checking account and $12,014.36 in a savings account.

This is the last court case scheduled this week with members of the petit jury reporting back next Monday.

Boy Sentenced For Stealing

A 15-year-old South Cumberland boy was sentenced to the Maryland Training School for Boys yesterday in Juvenile Court for stealing merchandise from the Charlton Brothers Transportation Company warehouse on Bowen Street, October 21.

Three other youths, ages ranging from nine to 11 years, were paroled in the custody of their parents. These boys were given hearings in Juvenile Court shortly after the robbery, but Magistrate Alban C. Thompson withheld sentencing the trio pending the apprehension of the fourth suspect.

Authorities said the South Cumberland boy left the city after the stealing and was roving the surrounding cities near Hagerstown and Frederick. The boy told the court he had slept on back porches.

Police said the four boys gained entrance to the warehouse on October 21 by climbing beneath a loading platform from an alley. A number of boxes containing an assortment of merchandise was broken open.

Loot included a large amount of candy, men's shoes, nylon shirts, cans of coffee, three pounds of Lino cement, a case of spaghetti meatballs, eight mixing bowls, a case of hosiery and other articles.

Police reported that most of the merchandise was recovered.
